The last two winters have inseribed on our statute book ofter constments full of vice. The charter of New York and other cognate acts bave enabled a brode of seute bad men to grasp by the throat the greatest community in the western world. They have introceded themselves on every site. They have morabed and subsidized meaning with useless corporation advertise ments. They have maintained multitudes of retainers in sincears with lavish pay, and every avenue warms with their open and secret agents. They have intimidated the rich with the fear of exhortistates existing the property of the control of th ries with the fear of churbitant essess thems and taxes, they have altured the no-dy and rapicous with pold and with advantage. The indigent have been mavellously southed, and respectability has been made to pay tribute to tiem, and even to whitewash their integrities. They have made it safe and proticable for be with them, and dongrous and couly to be against them.

They have set up and pulled down men, not only in the Democratic party; but a partiam pulse, all centions provided in the protice of the protection of the protice of the protection of the protice of the pro
