October Milk Price Estimated At $3.46

New York, N. Y., October 30, 1945.—Dr. C. J. Blanford, administrator of the New York metropolitan milk marketing area, today forecast that the October uniform price to be paid the dairy farmers delivering to pool plants in the six-state milkshed would be $3.46 a hundredweight.

Coupled with the monthly price and production forecast was a second announcement estimating the butterfat differential for the same month at 5.0 cents for each point of fat above the average butterfat test of 3.5.

Although the October estimated price of $3.56 is not exactly comparable with the previous October prices because of the new method of figuring the butterfat differential that became effective August 1, the anticipated price — unlike the price paid for the last two months, is higher than the price paid for the same month in any previous year. Dairymen collected at the peak October price of $3.42 last October.

Since, however, the United States Department of Agriculture's winter fed payments of 70 and 80 cents are not supplemented this year by an additional ten-cent drough payment, the total price return of $4.16 is 6 cents less than the rate received in October 1944.
