A HAPPY NEW YEAR!

YOUR WILL POWER

by Rose Mary Baker

Do you need to make New Year's resolutions? It is in season again, you know, and the popular fashion right now is to do so. Like many other things, this is one fashion which repeats itself every year.

This year as last we shall make resolutions because it is done, but since resolutions like rules were made to be broken, we won't keep them long.

Wouldn't it be much more worthwhile to keep a few of the resolutions we make than to make a lot of them to be broken?

When making New Year's resolutions, we must remember to make practical resolves, not things that are impossible for us to do at our best.

Before making our resolutions we should think of the things which we need to amend. Choose a few of these and keep them. After they become a habit we shall no longer need to remember them and will do them automatically.

Resolutions can be made at any time, not just on New Year's and as the resolutions we have become habits we can adopt ones to work on until they also become habits. In this mind we will not make resolutions because others do but in order to improve our ways of living and become a better citizen of our community.

INTERMEDIATE ALGEBRA

by Madge Collins

As you know the science of mathematics is an old one which has been developed to a point of accuracy thru the years, due to the contributions of many people, nationalities and races.

However, perhaps the people who have given most to this great science are the students of Mr. Reil's second period class.

At the present time the class has been led into the deep mysteries of "logrithms" by their most profound teacher, and can you imagine the exasperation which befalls that man when Harriet Herring or Helen Yannie completely forget to put down the characteristics of the numbers after a week's work of finding characteristics.

This does not seem to dismay Mr. Reil, because he patiently goes thru the examples and explains them all, and by the next day someone else in the class will make the very same mistake.

So goes our Intermediate classes and they will probably continue like this until January, when at that time everyone will be in a complete stew, and a loss to know what Mr. Reil is talking about, due to the thought of the approaching Regents examination.

But with hard work and the quality of applying ourselves to the subjects, we all should get thru easily.

A patient, recovering from pneumonia, asked repeatedly for food. Finally the nurse served him a mere spoonful of rice.

A few minutes later he called the nurse and said: "Now I want to read a little. Bring me a postage stamp."

A gardening expert has written a book on cabbages. Surely paper would have been cheaper.

Student: "This math is a cinch for me. I finished these problems in ten minutes and thought nothing of it."

Teacher: "After looking them over, I don't think much of it either."

HONOR ROLL GIRLS OUTNUMBER BOYS

The girls of Andover Central School hold 21 of the 27 places on the honor roll for the third marking period ending Dec. 12. Nine of the eleven to receive first honors, an average of 90 per cent in three major subjcts, with none below 85 are girls while 12 of the 16 who received second honors, an average of 85 per cent in three major subjects, with none below 80, were also girls.

REGENTS WEEK COMING JAN. 26-29

You have probably been hearing groans of pain from the seniors this past week and you will probably continue to hear them until Regents week which begins January 26 and lasts until the 29th. Why are they groaning and moaning about this? It's simply that we are all taking our English IV Regents then and a few of us are also taking a Latin III Regents as well as history and math.

THREE RADIOS GOING AT OCEAN!

by Lila Childs

There are three radios in my home. My mother has one, my brother has one and I have one, and this is what it sounds like when all three radios are going:

"Luckies please because Ovaltine is the greatest food drink of its kind on the market. The motor of the new Chevrolet Six is composed of two tablespoons of soda, one teacup of Crisco and one spark-plug made of the finest banana oil . . . The crank case may be filled with 20 Domino cigarettes for ten cents and two big bowls of Wheaties every time the Atwater Kent radio is made by the makers of 16 men on a dead man's chest of angel food cake with pure chromium plated frosting . . .

"Please write us concerning full details of the new Pontiac six slices of pineapple well stirred with four super hub caps. Floating power may be had by drinking one bottle of Liberty beer and throwing the clutch into one dish of puffed rice well saturated with coal tar. . . .

"Burn Nevel coke in your kitchen sink and when it begins to boil add one rear fender and 17 cups of radiator caps. Pepsodent antiseptic, if mixed with a Dinamic speaker, will immediately start the Victor radio to turn out Lynette which is used by people all over the world to feed growing children. Clean your teeth twice a day with a bag of pure Lehigh cement and you will never suffer with squeaks in the rumble seat and if you see your dentist twice a year he will fill the cavities in your teeth with a jar of Vick's vapor rub. If you are troubled with sleeplessness, climb into a new Chesterfield cigarette with balloon tires and take one rear bumper pill three times a day. If you have any skin disease try Watkins' famous remedy which is composed of hog's bristles vulcanized in rubber and one gallon of Davis baking powder, mix thoroughly with all your old carpets and rugs."

Teacher (helping first-grader fasten her coat). "Did your mother hook this coat for you?"

Pupil: "No ma'm, she bought it."

NO OTHER CLASS LIKE HISTORY

By John Bridge

How many of you do not attend one of the history classes? If you are one of the unfortunate few who don't, due to your dislike or lack of time, I suggest you reconsider and come to one of our classes real soon.

Just to stimulate your curiosity and arouse your interest in the subject I shall relate to you a few of the most interesting aspects of the class. I would also like to remind you that the study of current and ancient history is by no means a waste of time. What other subject could you possibly take that will better acquaint you with how our vast nation and government were formulated and better prepare you to be an intelligent and rational citizen now and in the future?

I take history IV, Problems in Democracy so we will go to class the fourth period in the morning. Many times at 11:30 we get a little hungry and our thoughts begin to wander, however, we soon return to reality, just in time to participate in a heated discussion which may be over any of the prominent topics. After debating for fifteen or twenty minutes and apparently accomplishing nothing, we return to the chapter assigned for the day.

Don't think for one moment any of the classes are dull for Mr. Conde will have a few interesting points and antecdotes for any conceivable topic.

Toward the end of the period we find ourselves discussing a sensational topic and are about to reach a climax when the bell rings. In a clamor we pack our books and try to remember our assignment all at the same time.

So ends another "Problems in Democracy Class" which is, as you have seen is a most interesting and worthwhile forty-five minutes.

During the course of a dinner-table conversation, a three-year-old boy accidentally mentioned that he had to stand in the corner at nursery school. Questioning revealed that he had been punished for putting mud in a little girls' mouth.

His mother, horrified, asked: "why in the world would you put mud in a little girls' mouth?"

Shrugging his shoulders, he answered simply, "Well, it was open."

Misprint: "For sale, young chicks. Cheep."

RED LOSES HIS LIFE

by Rose Mary Baker

Red was just a young fellow when the teacher first met him. He was light, energetic and gay as are all youngsters, but as he grew older it became apparent that his life was becoming shorter. He worked terribly hard trying to please people, especially the students and teachers.

It was when the teacher dropped him and broke his legs that his illness became really noticeable. After the fall, he was always getting bruised and cut up.

One day in assembly he was nearly stepped on and this happened several times in the hall. As he grew older he seemed to grow shorter and shorter and people began to forget him and they soon ignored him almost completely. One day he fell off a desk and as he fell he thought he might never again see the light of day and the faces he loved. During his journey from the desk to the floor all his life seemed to have flashed before him.

He knew he had caused some children much unhappiness but mostly he decided it had been happiness on the face of Johnny and Mary and Jean as they thought of him.

One day soon after his fall he knew that his life was soon to be over. His fall had nearly completely paralyzed him and as the teacher picked him up he held his breath and closed his eyes as she threw him into the waste basket.

Yes, this was the end for the red pencil who had marked faithfully so many papers.

Milk in a Package

Have you investigated the consibilities of milk in a package? "Non-fat dry milk", that is—milk from which water and fat have been removed. One pound package of it equals four fluid quarts of skimmed milk and it costs less than half as much as liquid milk.

Another big advantage of dried milk is that you can store it so easily. Dried milk doesn't require refrigeration. It will keep in any cool, dry, clean place.

And it makes good whipped "cream". One cup of water whipped with three-fourths cup of non-fat dry milk yields 4 to 6 cups of fluffy whip, perfect for ice cream, Bavarian creams, milk shakes, etc. Add a tablespoon of lemon juice and a tablespoon of sugar to improve the flavor and help it "stand up."
