What do health laboratories do?

They assist in the detection of diseases; analysis of milk, water and foods; distributing vaccines for the prevention and treatment of diseases, etc.

What does the health statistical service consist of?

The service records births, marriages, cases of communicable diseases, and deaths; it then analyzes these statistics to point out ways of combatting illnesses affecting the county's residents.

Will the County Health Department provide individual service?

Yes, the department will help you plan such things as digging wells, building sewers and eliminating health nuisances as well as give you aid on other sanitation and health problems.

Who appoints the County Health Board?

The County Board of Supervisors.

What is the membership of the Board of Health?

It includes three physicians, a supervisor, and three other persons, all of whom serve for six years with the term of one member expiring annually. The membership of the Board is such that it may represent everyone in the county interested in health.

What are the duties of the Board of Health?

The Board selects the county commissioner of health, prepares the budget for approval by the Board of Supervisors, establishes sanitary regulations, and aids in the selection of other personal. Other duties are prescribed by the Public Health Law, State Sanitary Code, County Law, and other laws and regulations.

Do members of the Board of Health receive pay?

Yes, the members of the board are paid for attendance at meetings of the board and are allowed traveling expenses necessary to get to the meetings. The per diem compensation given them is fixed by the Board of Supervisors.

Must physicians on the board be appointed from a list of nominations submitted by the County Medical Society?

The appointment of the physician members is left to the discretion of the Board of Supervisors. Usually the Board of Supervisors appoints physicians nominated by the local medical society.

Does the term of office on the board end for a supervisor when he is no longer a supervisor?

Yes, it does.

Once a County Health Department has been formed may it ever be abandoned?

Yes. After three years, upon vote of the Board of Supervisors, the county could revert to the local, village and town system.

Annual Potato Show To Be Held February 26-27

Dates for the fifth annual Allegany County potato show have been set for Thursday and Friday, February 26 and 27, it has been announced by William Hodnett, chairman of the potato committee of the Farm Bureau. While plans are still in the making, they are expected to follow those successfully used in past years. As in the past, the show will be held in Wellsville High School.

Edward L. Kent, Andover, extensive grower of certified seed potatoes, will have charge of the potato exhibit as for several years past. Every effort will be made to increase the number of plates of sample tubers to be exhibited by the many growers of the county. An interesting and helpful feature will be blight proof varieties, growing of which is coming more and more into use as seed becomes available. The trade show will be in charge of Julian Carter, vocational agriculture instructor in the Wellsville High School, assisted by Ellis Hawkins, Wellsville.

It is planned to hold the annual banquet on the evening of February 26 in the cafeteria of the Wellsville school, with several committees set up to look after details. Paul Regan, Willing, heads the general committee.

As in past years, the junior potato show, under direction of Laurence Dedrick, county 4-H Club agent, will be a big factor in the county-wide interest the show creates. Chairman Kent suggests that selection of nine-tuber samples of any commercial variety for exhibit be made at once by growers rather than putting off such choice until the time they must be entered.

Experts in various lines of potato growing in the State College of Agriculture at Cornell University will again visit the county for this important event and will remain during the show, taking part in discussions of all phases of potato culture and marketing, conducting demonstrations and showing moving pictures.

Further details will be announced later.

Poultrymen can avoid wasting feed by not filling the feeders more than two-thirds full and by placing a piece of chicken wire on top of the feed to prevent the birds from billing it out.

Area Baptists Plan "Baptist Day"

Baptists in the Allegany-Cattaraugus area have announced plans for the observance of "Baptist Day", a Bible and Missionary Conference, in the First Baptist Church of Olean, N. Y. on January 20, 1948. The day's activities will begin at 10 a. m. with a period of Bible exposition. This will be one of a seriess of such convocations being held throughout the Northern Baptist Convention.

Highlighting the day will be a series of addresses and discussions by outstanding missionaries and religious leaders. One portion of the program has been reserved for young people. Fellowship luncheons and dinners for youth, laymen and ministers will be served in the dining rooms of the Olean Church.

The conference team will include such notable personages as; Rev. Paul C. Allen of Chicago; Rev. Ernest Elwell of Patterson, N. J.; Mrs. Howard Colwell, vice president of the Northern Baptist Convention; Rev. Oscar Rodriguez well known missionary to Cuba; Dr. and Mrs. Bernard W. Armstrong, missionaries to the Belgian Congo; Rev. Paul Collyer, director of Finance and Promotion in New York State Baptist circles; and Mr. Kenneth Dodgson, prominent denominational youth leader.
