NO SUBSTITUTE FOR WORK

AN EXECUTIVE of one of our National companies recently said:

"The person who makes his job the most important thing in his life, other than taking care of his family, and who has common sense and intelligence to apply to his job, should be entitled to greater success and rewards than the one who only wants to work eight hours a day, five days a week . . . .

"Everything in the way of farming, mining, manufacturing and distribution must keep on expanding to give work to the increased population and to produce and distribute the larger requirements of more people. This will call for more and more leaders of industry.

"Those leaders will be the people who have such enthusiasm for their work they would rather stay on the job and see that which they are interested in progress and grow than to spend their leisure time at less important pursuits . . . .

"When you hear bright young people talking about working only forty hours a week who expect equal compensation with the man who loves his work enough to put the necessary time in to make his company grow, then you owe it to such a person to tell him how wrong his ideas are."

This is an old-fashioned doctrine. It is in opposition to the new and engaging theories of the more advanced social and economic planners. But, whether we like it or not, it is a theory which is solidly supported by centuries of human experience—and human experiment. There is no substitute for production—which simply means there is no substitute for work. A genius may find an easy short cut to success, but the number of geniuses at large at any time can almost be counted on a man's fingers."

West Notch and Allentown Garages Burn

The Wolfang garage on the West Notch road, town of Richburg burned to the ground last Tuesday and the Wood garage at Allentown was completely destroyed by fire Thursday afternoon.

The fire at the Wolfang garage was caused by the explosion of an electric light bulb which ignited gasoline fumes as a gasoline tank was being removed from a car for repairs. No one was injured.

At Allentown gasoline tanks were being filled and in doing so some gas seeped under the building and a terrifying explosion followed. Mr. Wood jumped through a plate glass window with one of his children who was badly cut as well as being burned. Mrs. Wood and the two children were also burned and the whole family taken to Jones Memorial hospital in Wellsville for treatment.

Both garages included living quarters from which nothing was saved.
