State Has Quota Of $300 Million In Bond Drive

With the state quota of $300,-000,000 in savings bonds as the goal to be reached, New York has launched its security loan campaign. The drive, which opened April 15, will continue through June. It is the first loan campaign since the war.

"America's Security is Your Security" is the national slogan of the campaign. The treasury's major purpose in conducting the security loan is given as the need for strengthening the nation in these critical times through the achievement of economic security and the enlistment of every citizen who possibly can do so as a shareholder—a bond holder—in the United States of America.

As in wartimes, the emphasis of the security loan will be upon the popular E bond. The New York state quota of $300,000,000 however, includes sales of series E, F, and G bonds.

Within recent weeks the treasury has raised the limit purchase of E bonds from $5,000 by any one individual in any one calendar year, to $10,000.

A. D. Fuller is local chairman of the drive.
