A very destructive fire occurred at Penn Yan Tuesday afternoon, destroying over twenty houses and thirteen Stores. The loss is very heavy. Up to the time of going to press we have been unable to learn the amount.

A young man named Wood, whose mother resides in Freedom, in this county, committed suicide at Yorkshire Center a few days since, by shooting himself through the heart with a rifle. No cause assigned.—Olean Times.

Snow fell to the depth of six inches at Virgenes, Mich., April 16th. Such a blanket must be rather discouraging to early tomatoes, lettuce, pepper-pods and such condiments, thinking to have everything their own way in the line of early garden sass.

We would call the attention of our citizens to the fact that you can buy your groceries as cheap at Ed. Donnelly's as anywhere, and besides all that you will as accommodating a man to deal with as the country has. Give Ed. a call.

We would call the attention of our "city fathers" to the cross-walk from Hunt & Burrows' to D. S. Bradley's. It is dangerous, and if not repaired soon, will be the cause of a bill of costs to the town, by having to pay for some man's horse. Let it be attended to immediately. While we think of it, we would suggest to the "city dad" the propriety of fixing up the cross-walk from H. & B's to J. J. Harman & Son's.

Our Congressman.—The name of our Congressman, Hon. H. B. Smith was among those of the Republican members who did not sign the document desiring the re-nomination of Grant.—Hornellsville Tribune.

The editor of the Tribune would do well to read Mr. Smith's letter, published in the Elmira Daily Advertiser of Thursday, April 25th, wherein he declares first and last for Gen. Grant.

The Lady's Friend for May opens with an uncommonly beautiful engraving of "The Lady Ellelyn"—who is kneeling at an open window, and evidently awaiting the coming of her own true Knight. The Fashion designs are as usual, novel and stylish, and the pattern department is amply illustrated with models for useful and ornamental wear, suitable for ladies of moderate means, as well as the wealthy. The literary department is as rich as usual, Published by Deacon & Peterson, Philadelphia, Pa.

Golden Advice.—"I have always considered advertising, liberally and long, to be the great medium of success in business, and prelude to wealth.—And I have made it an invariable rule, too, to advertise in the dullest times, as well as the busiest, long experience having taught me that money thus spent is well laid out; as by keeping my business continually before the public, it has secured me many sales that I would otherwise have lost."—Stephen Girard.

This is the verdict of every man who has acquired a large fortune in any business. Liberal and steady advertising is what tells the story.

Many people along the line of the Erie Railway have feared that the new management would be less favorable to their interests, but certainly none can deny the test of fair play invoked by the Tribune: "We wish to say to the Counties through which the Erie passes: 'You have been told that the efforts to change the direction of the Road, were hostile to your interests, and calculated to diminish its usefulness. We ask you only to judge the tree by its fruits. If the track and its equipment are allowed to fall off; if you find your facilities diminished, or the charges of the Company increased, then complain; but if the Road be as well run as ever, at no higher rates, and its employees more promptly and regularly paid than under the old management, do not hesitate to say so.'—We [illegible] them now will have [illegible] that [illegible]

Fires.

Fuller's Wagon Shop Destroyed.

About 7 o'clock Tuesday morning, Fuller's Wagon Shop was discovered to be on fire. The fire when first seen was breaking through the roof, and in a few minutes the whole top of the building was in flames. So intense was the heat, and so rapidly did the fire spread, that it was almost impossible to work around the building. The main part of the building was used as a Wagon Shop and Finishing Rooms. The wing of the building was used as a dwelling house by Mr. Fuller. Nearly all of the household goods were saved, but many of them in a bad condition. All the finished work up-stairs in the main part was saved. Several buggy gearings and parts of gearings were lost; also a large amount of paints belonging to the Bronson Bros., painters. Upon the first floor nearly everything was saved. In the Blacksmith Shop about one-third of the stock and tools were destroyed. The building was less than an hour burning to the ground. By hard work Swink's Hotel and barn, together with J. C. Dyer's store and the American Hotel barns were saved. Mr. Fuller's loss was fully $2,500, insured for $2,000. No insurance on the paints and tools belonging to the Bronsons'; estimated loss $110.

Also between 9 and 10 o'clock on Tuesday morning, a house belonging Thomas White, about 1 3-4 miles south west of this place, was totally destroyed by fire. Nothing of the household goods were saved except a little bedding. Loss estimated at $500; insured for $200.

The Elmira Advertiser reports that the N. Y. daily Standard is to be discontinued the first day of May. By what authority we know not, but if it should prove true we shall be very sorry, for it is one of the best dailies in the city.

Be Careful.—While it remains so dry everybody should be careful of fires, as it would take but a little now to set everything going. Every house should be provided with a barrel, kept full of water, where it could be reached at any moment. This will cost you nothing but a little trouble and may be the means of saving a large amount of property.

A Great Fizzle.—A. N. Cole's Cincinnati Convention at Belmont, was a complete failure. After several days spent in writing letters of invitations to attend the Convention and visiting several towns in the county, Mr. Cole was able to secure six "lone men" together who sympathized with him in his several defeats for office. Big thing, wasn't it?

L. Dana Crandall, formerly of this place, has leased what is known as the old Tracy House, at Belmont, and thoroughly refitted it, and it will hereafter be known as the National Hotel. Mr Crandall is a first-class landlord and we will guarantee that all who may favor him with a call will go away perfectly satisfied that Mr. C. knows how to please the traveling public.—He is also prepared to furnish as good stabling as any hotel in the county.

Accident.—We take the following from our Angelica correspondent:

"Thomas Stendwell, a lad about 16 years old, left home to carry dinner to some of the railroad hands that boarded at his father's house who were at work about one mile from here towards the river. He took a double-barrelled gun with him, intending to hunt some on his way home. His little brother accompanied him to where the men were at work, but on leaving the dinner to the men he sent the little boy home by the road and started up through the woods. In a few minutes the men at the works heard the report of the gun. This was between twelve and one o'clock. At night, after quitting work and coming to supper they learned that James had not yet returned. It was then about seven o'clock; and his parents becoming anxious on his account, the foreman and some of the men started back to where they worked and taking the direction that he went when he left they searched for some signs of the lost boy. They had proceeded but a few rods when they found him dead by the side of a large hemlock log and his gun on the other side of the log; it would seem that he was getting over the log with his gun, by putting the gun over ahead of him, and by some means never to be known the gun was discharged, the contents striking him in the left breast, just at the lower edge of the collar-bone, passing towards the throat, but not going through. Where the charge entered, the orifice was nearly or quite two inches across. He must have been killed instantly. There were no signs of any struggle where he lay. The body was brought to the afflicted and almost crazed parents."

Does it pay to buy good goods? Yes, it does, and for the benefit of all, we advise them to buy their Dry Goods and Groceries at the reliable house of J. J. Harman & Son.

J. J Harman & Son have just received a large stock of Spring Goods, which they are selling at low figures.

New Street.—Dr. Baker surveyed a new street through from Baker St. to the west end of the depot, about three rods west of the corner of Second and Center Streets. This will necessarily make a bad job.

It seems to us that the right place for the road to cross, what is known as the Baker Flats would be to extend Third St. through; this would make a straight street from Chestnut through to Baker Street—a distance of a little more than a half mile, and would be one of the finest streets in the village, and one that will comparatively cost nothing; for the land south of Maple Street through to Chestnut has been given already, and partly fenced and the right of way through from Center to Baker Street will be given and also fenced, and the only cost to the village will be the building of two small bridges which will amount to nothing compared with the benefit that will be derived from it.

Sad Affair.

Wellsville, April 29, 1872.

Last Sunday afternoon a sad affair occurred in this village, the particulars of which were as follows: Four children, Frank Jansen, aged fifteen years Charles Jansen, aged eight years, sons of F. M. Jansen; Cora Wheeler, aged five years, daughter of John Wheeler; and George Wyckham, aged twelve years, son of Jack Wycham were playing together in the rear of Mr. Jansen's house, which is located on Main street, near the wagon shop of Vanghan & Carr. About four o'clock the elder Jansen boy, Frank, dug up a root of wild parsnip, and eating some himself, handed it to the other children who also ate of it, and to his half-sister, aged about twelve years, who merely tasted the deadly poison, but did not swallow any of it. About five o'clock the Jansen children were called in to supper, and the others, residing near by, went home. It was noticed at the table that Frank was unusually silent, and after eating very sparingly he went out into the garden. Not returning, and feeling a vague fear that something was wrong with the boy his parents went out to look for him, and found him lying on the ground, unable to speak and frothing at the mouth. He was taken into the house, and Dr. Anderson was soon in attendance. The Jansen girl then told what her brother had eaten, and the usual remedies were administered. They availed nothing, however, and at half-past six o'clock, after terrible suffering, the poor boy died. In the meantime the other children had been seized with the same fearful symptoms of fatal poisoning, and until midnight of Sunday it was thought that Charles Jansen and George Wyckham would certainly die. By unremitting care however, they safely passed the crisis, and this Monday morning, they and the little girl, Cora Wheeler, are reported out of danger. Frank Jansen, the deceased, was a good, industrious German boy, and had been for some time in the employ of O. P. Taylor, tobacconist.
