Section 1, of "An act to vest in Boards of Supervisors certain legislative powers," was amended by the legislature last winter so as to read as follows:

The Board of supervisors of the several counties of this State, the county of New York excepted, at their annual meeting, shall select from within their respective counties, by a vote of two-thirds of all the members elected, to divide or alter in its bounds, or erect a new town, but they shall not make any alterations that shall place parts of the same town in more than one assembly district, nor where it is proposed to divide towns into two or more towns, unless upon application to the board as hereinafter provided, of all twelve freeholders of each of the towns to be affected by the division, and upon being furnished with a map and survey of the towns to be affected, if the application be granted, a copy of said map, with a certified statement of the action of said board hereinafter announced, shall be filed in the office of the Secretary of State, and it shall be the duty of the Secretary to cause the same to be printed with the laws of the next Legislature after such division takes place, and cause the same to be published in the same manner as other laws are published.

HORSE TRAINING.—On Monday of this week Rockwell & Harbort exhibited a tent as advertised, and excited a trained horse; after which they organized a class of twenty-three members at $5 each, for which sum they agreed, according to their advertisement, to explain their system of training horses; and each member of the class should receive also a book on one of their patent bits. The members of the class paid their respective dues, but no bit. The afternoon entertainment passed off quietly, as also did the evening show of trained dogs, &c.; but the next morning some of the class concluded that they ought to have a bit, and so one was agreed upon to follow the said company to Greenwood and enter a claim for their bit. Rockwell admitted that the advertisement was plain enough, but they were not doing that of business now; but he would give him a bit. But this would not go down, he must have them for the balance of the class, although a number of them had bought bits giving the said gentleman $1.50; and the result was this member of the class remained about Greenwood all day without getting up a class, or taking any stamps out of the place. It would be far better for this firm to do pretty near as they advertise, for such little disturbances make a great difference with their business all over the country. Their system of training is good, and many good ideas were given by them during the day in regard to the treatment of horses; and had they done as they advertised, and as is reported they did do in Allegheny—the bit with the hook—all would have been well.
