ANDOVER NEWS

A PROGRESSIVE FAMILY NEWSPAPER FOR ALLEGANY COUNTY PEOPLE — IN POLITICS INDEPENDENT BUT NEVER NEUTRAL.

VOL. 63, NO. 46. For the Week Ending Thursday, Nov. 11, 1948. $2.50 year; 7c copy

Alfred Releases Study on Local Health Conditions

The Alfred University Study Area, on which the following report of health conditions has been based, includes 33 townships, 16 in eastern Allegany County, two in Livingston County, and 15 in western Steuben County.

Population of the area, based on the 1940 U. S. Census, is 74,106. Of this total, nearly 45,000 persons live in 17 villages of 500 or more persons. The area is 54 per cent rural, 46 per cent urban.

Basic questions concerning the health of 74,106 persons in upstate New York were posed in the survey which describes general health conditions and hospital services.

Written by Dr. Roland L. Warren, head of the sociology department, the study lists as some of the important health issues facing residents.

The attraction to the area of needed specialists, dentists, and registered nurses.

The improvement of public health services.

The meeting of conditions necessary to obtain maximum state and federal aid for hospitals.

The willingness to pay higher county taxes to provide facilities for the care of chronically ill and aged persons.

A summary of the outstanding facts revealed about area hospitals in the report follows:

Six general hospitals in the area have a total of 335 beds, or 4.48 per 1,000 population. This is slightly below the five per 1,000 recommended by the Council of Rochester Regional Hospitals.

Total admissions to all area hospitals during 1947 was 12,000, or slightly more than one admission for every six persons in the area.

Only hospital in the area with a nursing school is St. James, Hornell. In addition, however, Alfred University has a school of nursing on the college level.

All area hospitals except Wayland store blood from the Red Cross blood bank. Wayland gets blood for transfusions through the Dansville General Hospital.

The report shows that the following facilities, not now available, are needed by area hospitals and could be supported by area people.

At least 58 new beds in Hornell area alone.

Expended facilities for training nurses.

A diagnostic clinic for cancer.

A physical therapy department with a registered physiotherapist at St. James Hospital.

Plans for expansion in the area include:

Reorganization of the floor plan at Bath Memorail for greater efficiency and to provide space for new departments.

An increase of 20 or more beds at Dansville General and the possibility of including public health service.

A new delivery room, operating room, central supply room, sprinkler system, and other improvements at Bethesda Hospital.

A new south wing at St. James to increase its bed capacity from 102 to 145.

Plan To Increase Testing Program

The Allegany County Dairy Herd Improvement Association is at the present time considering the expansion of their individual cow testing program. The five DHIA supervisors are at present testing 117 dairies with a total of 2437 cows. This is 8% of all the cows in the county.

Each supervisor is assigned approximately twenty-five dairies which he visits once each month. Each cow's milk is weighed, sampled, then tested by the supervisor. Records, which show the profit or loss made by each cow are figured and entered in the herd book. Such records are of value in culling the herd, selecting animals from which to raise calves, and in proving bulls.

Anyone interested in attending the next DHIA Training School in Ithaca should see Assistant County Agent, W. R. Hesseltine, at the Belmont Court House. Applicants who have a farm background and a high school education are preferred.

Soil Conservation Contest Winners Announced

The County winners of the System-wide Soil Conservation Contest, sponsored by the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad have just been announced by Hugh D. Chamberlain, Chairman of the District Board at Belmond, New York.

First place, with an award of $10.00 by the District Directors, goes to Archie Foster, R. D., Whitesville, New York; Second place to Melvin Brandes, R. D. Wellsville, New York, with an award of $5.00 by the District Board; Third place to Otis Butler R. D., Whitesville, New York, with an ward of $2.50 by the District Board.

The County winner is eligible to compete for a $50.00 Bond against the winners in the other counties served by the Baltimore & Ohio in New York State. The State winners are then eligible to compete for a $250.00 System-wide prize within the territory served by the Baltimore & Ohio

The work carried on by Archie Foster which enabled him to win the County contest was limited to the conservation measures established in the twelve-month period ending September 30, 1948. Some of these conservation measures established were removal of hedgerows to enable Mr. Foster to contour strip crop about sixty acres of potato ground. In addition to the contour stripcropping, over 5,000 feet of diversion terraces were built duing the Spring of 1948 and seeded with a light crop of oats. Outlets were built to keep the water from washing gullies at the ends of the diversion terraces, and a farm pond to provide water for fire protection, spraying, irrigation and for recreational purposes has been constructed. The earth dam has been lined, fertilized and seeded. The pond has already been stocked with large-mouth black bass and blue gills with the pond fertilized in accordance with good farm management practices.

Anyone interested in seeing conservation measures and the results which may be obtained, should visit any of the three farms mentioned above and talk to the farm owners to learn soil conservation.

Nurses Urged To Take Civic Responsibility

The November meeting of the Allegany County Registered Professional, Nurses Association was held last Wednesday with a 7 o'clock dinner at Long Vue. Miss Katherine Neill, president of the Genesee Valley Nurses Association of Rochester was the guest speaker.

The whole nation will honor the graduate professional nurse during the week of November 14 when the American Nursing Association will acknowledge its' 75th Anniversary.

"At this time we should take stock of ourselves as a profession", Miss Neill said. "There is diversified thinking in nursing at the present but nurses are beginning to look into the profession seeking its strength and weaknesses.

"As medical science developed there came an improvement in the care methods of patients and equipment. More education for nurses was required as scientific nursing took hold."

"Too long have we been concerned only with the physical and now we are stressing the mental and social health of a patient. Medical science is actually pushing us nurses into the field of social responsibility." she said.

"We are putting as much emphasis on prevention as cure, and as we get into prevention all health and social agencies are being woven closer together. We must grasp the tremendous opportunities now open to us in various phases of nursing."
