In the warmth and comfort of his bed John Doe read the evening paper, a lighted cigarette in his hand. After five minutes or so he became drowsy and the cigarette dropped from his fingers. In a short time, the room was full of smoke and the deadly flames which were produced killed John Doe before he even had a fighting chance to escape.

This tragic scene is enacted many times each year in homes throughout America. A few are lucky enough to escape with their lives—others escape from life's troubles forever.

Each year, 240,000 fires are caused by careless use of matches and careless smoking habits and in addition, claims 12,000 lives every year. This means that nearly one thousand people are killed each month as a result of fire, to say nothing of the $700,000,000 worth of property that is destroyed also.

What can we do to keep this Public Enemy from bringing ruin and death to American homes and families?

First, we can go through our homes and clear the attics and cellars of rubbish thus eliminating dangerous fire-traps. We can keep electric wiring in good repair and check any other equipment that might prove to be a fire hazard.

The following rules, set up by the National Board of Fire Underwriters will help us in keeping the death rate caused by fire as low as possible:

1—Chaperon your cigarette. Don't let it go out alone.

2—Put every match out cold. Keep live ones out of children's reach.

3—Avoid improper use of gasoline and benzine for home cleaning.

4—Use only electric wiring and appliances bearing the seal of approval of a reliable company. Don't overload circuits.

5—Maintain your furnace and stove in good repair and insulate them.

If you follow these simple rules, we may stop three out of every four fires before they start.

STUDENTS VISIT AG-TECH FESTIVAL

Friday, Nov. 12th, six senior students, Rosemarie Baker, Hattie Wahl, Sara Padden, Reta Goodridge, Joan Woodruff and Beverly Clair, along with the vocational teacher, Miss Shoup, journeyed to Alfred to visit the State Agricultural and Technical Institute, which was having a Harvest Festival composed of exhibits which were of interest to high school students.

They arrived in Alfred around 10:15. After registration they journeyed up to the Ag-Tech classrooms where they saw exhibits on business machines. After climbing a steep hill to the Museum, they found much to their diappointment that it was closed, but they did get a look at the carillon. The next stop was at the laboratory where the spectators got excited over a dissected cat. The group also took in the greenhouse, where corsages for the Harvest Festival were being made.

At the Wheaton House, they were served a delicious smorgasbord, dinner as guests of the A. T. I. women students.

After lunch the visitors went to Alumni Hall to take in the movies and community singing. From there they drove down to the farm, to see many different kinds of cows.

Exhausted after the long day, Miss Shoup gathered the Andover girls in the car and started back to school.

HEANEY THE MAGICIAN TO PRESENT SHOW

The Future Farmers of the Andover Central School will sponsor the appearance of Heany the Magician in his full evening stage show on the evening of Nov. 19th, in the high school auditorium. Proceeds to go to the Future Farmers.

The Heaney Show is a two-hour review of comedy, illusion, and magic. It has been said of this show, "That if you turn your head you miss a trick."

One of the features of the Heaney performance is the levitation of a young lady without apparent support, an illusion which has amazed and baffled all those who have seen it. The feature illusion, of the show is the "Flight of Life," one of the most unusual acts ever presented in any magic show.

True to magic tradition Heaney will produce his pet rabbit, Harvey, from out of nowhere.

Also featured is an escape trick made famous by Houdini, in which Heaney will be bound in chains and in the matter of seconds escape.

Those who have been the entertainment say it is an evening long to be remembered.

Tickets are on sale now by the members of the Future Farmers.

BASKETBALL SEASON TICKETS ON SALE

by Bob Baker

Season tickets to the 1948-49 home games at Andover are now on sale at the school. Players class officers, and cheerleaders are selling tickets at 2.50 each for adults and $1.50 for students. Single game tickets will sell for 40c for adults and 25c for students. Taxes are included in all these prices.

There will be nine home games this year, so we can save about a dollar by buying a season ticket.

This year there will be two officials at each game.
