Plan Big Potato and Vegetable Show

New York growers will display the State's top potatoes and vegetables at the 14th annual joint convention of the Vegetable Growers' Association and the Empire State Potato Club at Hotel Hamilton, in Utica, January, 5, 6, and 7.

According to M. E. Hislop, Oneida county agricultural agent and general chairman for the convention, contests will be open to all New York growers.

Tentative plans call for awards for more than 20 classes of potatoes, consumer packs picked up in markets throughout the State, and for the following vegetables: squash, cabbage, onions, beets and carrots.

A. C. Allen of Waterville is chairman of the potato show, while Kenneth Sheldon of Oswego heads the vegetable show. Other committee members for the convention include: Morris Butts, Sodus, treasurer; H. J. Evans, Georgetown, trade show; K. B. Floyd, Schuylerville, program printing and vetegable program; E. V. Hardenburg, Ithaca potato program; Ward West, Irondequoit, and Favor Smith, Riverhead, speakers; J. W. Robson, Hall, registration; G. S. Butts, Ithaca, educational exhibits; George Humphries, New Hartford, banquet, and C. R. Harrington, Ithaca, publicity.

This year's meeting will open with a joint session on Wednesday afternoon, January 5, followed by an informal dinner and seperate business in the evening. Separate sessions will be held Thursday and Friday mornings with a joint meeting and banquet Thursday afternoon and evening.

"Marketing, merchandising, goverment controls, insects and disease control and new developments will be discussed by several outstanding speakers from the industry," Hislop said.

MARY McANDREW Says:

Andover, N. Y., When a mighty storm churns the Caribbean Sea the chiming of the bronze church bells can be clearly heard. The bells are in a church in Port Royal, Jamaica, fathoms deep beneath the sea.

In the late 17th century, Port Royal, pirate infested and gold ladened, was called the "richest and wickedest city in the world."

In the "city of sin," blood flowed endlessly, thousands were hanged annually and swaggering buccaneers and their wildcat beauties were not uncommon.

Blazing with swift action, hardly a day passed that a pirate ship did not drop anchor and deposit loot gained from raids on ships at sea and port cities. Brawlers ruled the streets. Liquor and drugs were more plentiful here than anywhere else in the world. Brick buildings, several stories high, bulged with gold, silks and jewels.

June 7, 1692 was a quiet day. Quiet because the blazing sun sent the brawlers looking for shelter and because it lessened the activity of the plunderers. Suddenly the city trembled, buildings collapsed and streets split open crushing the panic stricken populace.

Water raced through the streets, washing buildings from their foundations and hunting bodies and treasurer. Seconds later the city of Port Royal slipped silently and shamefully into the sea.

Few survived this havoc, but only to be troubled with plagues, additional tidal waves, fires and hurricanes.

After many unsuccessful attempts to rebuild Port Royal, the remainder moved across the harbor to Kingston.

Some time, Stranger, when a mighty storm churns the Caribbean you will hear the chimes soft and sweet as they peal the story of beautiful, rich and wicked Port Royal.

A. W. Corwin Praised by State for Work in Allegany County

Belmont, Nov. 19—The work of Allen W. Corwin, Allegany County sealer of weights and measures, was praised yesterday in a letter read before the Board of Supervisors by Clerk Denzil G. Perkins.

The letter came from C. A. Baker, director of the Weights and Measures Bureau of the State Department of Agriculture and Markets.

Discussing a report made by State Inspector Fred J. Tucker who surveyed Mr. Corwin's work in this county, the letter said in part:

"I am pleased to say that Mr. Tucker's report to this Bureau shows that conditions in your county are excellent, and insofar as such conditions are under the control of your County Sealer, they reflect due credit on his work.

"We have long regarded Mr. Corwin as one of our ablest, most progressive and conscientious Weights and Measures officials, and wish to take this opportunity to compliment him on the high standards he has maintained in Allegany County."

Storage Apples Off Two Million Bushels

Albany, Nov. 22—The 4,320,700 bushels of apples in New York cold storage warehouses on November 1 were about one-third less than the 6,383,300 bushels on hand a year earlier, according to the monthly report issued by the New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets. Rome Beauty and Wealthy are the only varieties more abundant than a year ago.

McIntosh stocks are only four-fifths and Rhode Island Greenings three-fifths of last year, while the supply of Baldwins in cold storage is only one-fourth as abundant.

HEALTH FOR ALL

(This column is sponsored, in the interest of better health, by The Allegany Health & Tuberculosis Association, Inc., 44 Schuyler St., Belmont, N. Y.)

TONSILITIS

A sore throat may be a symptom of any one of a number of diseases, such as scarlet fever, and diphtheria. Or, a sore throat may mean the tonsils are infected.

Acute tonsilitis is frequently, though not always, due to a streptococcus infection. It may cause great discomfort and can be quite serious. The danger lies not only in the fact the infection from the diseased tonsils may spread to other parts of the body, but also to the fact that the body, weakened by tonsilitis, may have its resistance to other diseases lowered.

Aching pains and chills and fever often accompany acute tonsilitis. The temperature may rise considerably, and may be accompanied by chills. At the same time, the throat will be sore and difficulty will be experienced in swallowing. The tonsils become inflamed and enlarged.

Since the discovery of the sulfa drugs and penicillin, it has become easier to bring tonsilitis under control quickly. However, only the doctor knows how these drugs should be used in an individual case.

After the acute stage of the disease is passed, it is usually advisable for the patient to continue to rest for several days. The doctor will tell him when it is safe for him to go about his normal duties again. Until he has regained his strength completely, his resistance is lowered and he may fall easy prey to other diseases.

The doctor may advise having the tonsils removed after an attack of tonsilitis. The operation is never performed until the patient recovers from an attack. but it may be advisable then in order to avoid future attacks. Tonsilectomy is a very common operation today and there should be no hesitation about having it performed if the doctor so advises.

If there is an infantile paralysis epidemic in the community, the doctor may suggest postponing removal of the tonsils, unless the tonsil condition is so serious it outweighs the remote possibility of danger from polio. The doctor is the best judge of the hazards involved.
