

1874. PROSPECTUS of the Rochester Express. DAILY, TRI-WEEKLY, WEEKLY. For the Year 1874. A Constant Republican Journal. A Paper That Gives all the News at the Lowest Price. THE PEOPLES NEWSPAPER.

The publishers of the Rochester Express announce their terms of subscription for the ensuing year, the fourth year, since its commencement, acknowledging with gratitude the support received from the people of Western New York, and desire to give assurance that the Express shall lack nothing of the independence and vigor of its former days, and that it will endeavor to show a thorough appreciation of the public favor and confidence and increase its attractiveness to all who patronize a journal which presents a complete abstract of the current news, in all departments - political, legislative, administrative, financial, commercial, social, personal, local, domestic and foreign, receiving daily telegrams from all parts of the world.

Politically the Express will continue to advocate Republican principles, and to sustain the party which avows such principles and seeks to carry them out in good faith, and to defend its representatives against all unfounded aspersions and unjust claims, while holding up to just reprobation all public servants who are dishonest, dishonorable or dishonest in their conduct. We shall give due attention to agricultural matters, and publish all information that may be for the benefit of Farmers, Horticulturists and Florists, and pay particular attention to reports of Local Markets, endeavoring to have them fresh, frequent and correct.

Our readers may expect every improvement which we can effect in the character and make up of the Express, which we accomplish by undivided attention and constant labor to that end. The Daily Express, published at half past two and four o'clock P.M., is the cheapest daily paper in the State. It contains all the Telegraphic dispatches to the Associate Press from 9 A.M. to 6 P.M., and the local news of the day, full reports of public meetings, lectures, markets, courts, and a large amount of miscellaneous reading, making it a always acceptable family journal. It has a large circulation throughout this section of the State, and the local news of the day, full reports of public meetings, lectures, markets, courts, and a large amount of miscellaneous reading, making it a always acceptable family journal.
