PANTHERS CAPTURE CLASS C CROWN

By Mick Baker

Coach Carl Witzel's five came through with a narrow win over the Allentown Eagles Friday night with a score of 35-34. Following the game a formal protest was launched which stated that one of the Allentown players had a shot in the air when the final whistle blew. This was settled Sunday morning when a meeting of the Allegany County Athletic Association decided that Andover had won the game.

Bob Baker's lay-up in the final seconds of the game put Andover ahead 35-34.

Joe Smith was high for the night with 14 points, and Baker placed second with 10. Bob Wray was high for Allentown with 12.

WILDCATS LOSE TO CANISTEO 46-36

By Bob Baker

The Andover Wildcats completed their 1949-50 basketball season here Tuesday, February 21, as they lost to the Canisteo Junior Varsity by a 46 - 36 margin. This gives the Wildcats a season record of seven wins against eight losses.

The Canisteo five moved out to an early lead but could not increase it as the locals fought back hard to play one of their better games of the season. The last half was even as the Canisteo coach substituted freely.

Fisher was high for Andover with 13 points.

WILDCATS TAKE ALLENTOWN IN OVERTIME 33-31

By "Bob" Baker

In an overtime thriller at Allentown Friday, February 17, the Andover Wildcats defeated the Allentown J.V.'s by a 33-31 score. The locals were ahead for most of the game until the final quarter when Allentown tied the score to send the game into overtime.

In the extra period "Ron" Monahan dumped in a field goal and "Rich" Davis scored a foul shot as Allentown could score only one point on a foul shot by Stephens.

Stephens was the game's high scorer with 13 points while Monahan had 11 for the locals. Four players left the game via the foul route. They were Cole for Allentown and Hann, Wheaton and Atwell for Andover.

TOT SPOT

This week we wish a happy birthday to Merton Wright of the first grade and Joan Clark, Sally Clark and Norman Pelton of the fifth and sixth grades.

Tuesday afternoon Mrs. Corwin's kindergarten had their Valentine party, even though so many were absent. Teddy Edwards and Cheryl Storms each brought a treat for the room which the class enjoyed very much.

The Elves and Fairies of Mrs. Tompkins' second grade are beginning new units in reading. The Elves unit is "Old Storybook Friends" and the Fairies book is "Friends and Neighbors."

All class members of Mrs. Helmer's third and fourth grade have made a silhouette of themselves which they are displaying on the bulletin board.

In Mrs. Connor's first grade, Gary Wightman visited an eye specialist in Buffalo.

The class is enjoying reading games which help for quick recognition of words.

Groups one and two have completed the book "Fun With Dick and Jane."

In Mrs. Hall's first grade Lyle Nye and Philip Barrett brought decorated cookies to go with their ice cream. Hugh Church brought Valentine candy.

Maxine Mead's grandparents have returned from Florida.

We all welcome back Robert Clarke and Sandra Bird of the kindergarten, Regina Baker, Alfred Whiting, Homer Glover, and Carl Lehman of the second grade and Gerald Tanner of the first grade, who were absent because of illness.

Congratulations to Miss Church—the fifth and sixth grade class gave her a two pound box of candy for Valentine's Day.

The fifth grade has finished their booklets on Washington.

In Mrs. Schwarzenbach's sixth grade they have made Lincoln booklets and in social studies they are studying Germany.

We are very sorry to hear that Paul Waters of the second grade and Lloyd Hollenbeck and Dorothea Merriam of the first grade are ill.

CANISTEO DUMPS PANTHERS 47-37

By Bob Baker

The Canisteo Redskins ended the Andover Panther's four game winning streak by a 47 - 37 win here Tuesday, February 21. The first half was very close as the locals trailed by 24-21 when the second half began. Then the Panthers went cold and couldn't find the busket for many scores as Canisteo threw in shots from all angles. At the end of the third quarter Canisteo led 38-25 to win easily although the locals continued to threaten them throughout the game.

Mulconery and Baker led Andover with nine and ten points respectively.

The Panthers play Angelica Friday, February 24, for the Allegany County Class C championship at Alfred-Almond.

SOCIAL HOUR NETS $14.00

The Sophomore Class netted $14 in their social hour venture Thursday night in the Andover school gym where the youth of the community frolicked from 7:30 to 9:30.

The Sophomores sold refreshments and played such games as shuffleboard, ping pong, badminton, after which they enjoyed round and square dancing.

After paying the debts, the tenth grade have a balance of eight dollars profit in the treasury.

WHY DON'T THEY?

Why don't they place a cop in the halls of A. C. S. to slow down the speed of the seventh and eighth graders?

Why doesn't Colleen McAndrews make up her mind between Bob Dunham and Don Mulconery?

Why doesn't Kenneth Milligan enter his side burns in a nationwide contest?

Why doesn't Charlie Dougherty turn his truck int oa taxi?

Why don't Pat Sackett and Colleen McAndrew stay out of the back of Ronald Atwell's truck?

Why doesn't Annabell O'Dell sell half of pens she has and go south for the rest of the winter?

REGIONAL CONFERENCES to be held in sixteen convenient places around the state will begin Tuesday, February 28, in the Newburgh area at Little Britain Grange hall. Morning and afternoon sessions for all Masters, Lecturers, and Juvenile Matrons, Patrons or committee chairmen. Luncheon will be served at each session.

The first series will continue as follows: March 1, at Farmingdale Agricultural Institute, for the Long Island area; March 2, Claverack Grange, for the Hudson area; March 3, Newtonville Methodist Church, for the Albany area; and March 4, Abraham Wing School, Glens Falls for that area.

For all other details, get in touch with your Subordinate Grange secretary. Dates and locations of the other 11 conferences will be given in this column at a later date.

SERVICE and Hospitality committee state chairman Mrs. John Lavery has sent us a copy of her 1950 program booklet, and it promises to be a busy and constructive year for all you S&H folks. You will have to begin day before yesterday if you are going to carry out all of your projects.

We note 5 major items that should get your attention at once: Baking contest; the Grange Monthly in every home; National Grange Sewing contest; a new Digest for every Grange; and sponsoring educational and agricultural projects at the county fairs. Good luck to all of you for a successful year.

NATIONAL GRANGE Master Albert Goss paid tribute to the Future Farmers of America again this year, as they were guests of our group in Washington, D. C., recently. Brother Goss and staff played hosts to six of FFA's national leaders, and these splendid young men form all parts of the nation regarded this as one of the highlights of their visit to the capitol to get a clearer view of American agricultural problems. Said Brother Goss, "you young men are keeping the public's faith in a strong segment of our economy—that of agriculture."

Better Health For Children

A Community Service Issued by Children's Hospital of Buffalo, N. Y.

Important in building child health is immunization.

No longer do parents have to watch their children become ill one after another with contagious diseases such as diphtheria, whooping cough, small pox and typhoid fever. Today, science has not only learned how to treat these illnesses, but it has learned how to keep children from contracting many serious diseases. This protection is called immunity.

A new born baby may inherit some immunity to disease from his mother, providing the mother herself is immune, but this immunity lasts only for the first few months of his life. It is then that the medical profession takes over to give him continued protection.

Your doctor does this by giving your child injections or "shots", as they are commonly called, which will cause his body to produce disease-resisting substances which make him immune to certain diseases.

Your doctor will tell you when it's time to begin injections to protect your baby, but usually injections are started during the third month of the baby's life.

Some parents are fearful of having their babies receive injections because, sometimes, injections cause a slight fever or a little soreness at the point of injection. However, these are not serious reactions and they are certainly easier on the child than the real illness would be.

Unfortunately, not every child who is given injections against an illness becomes immune. But the chance that he will be immune is so great that it is definitely best to give him all the protective injections that science has to offer him.

Today, the deaths among children caused by small pox, diphtheria, whooping cough and typhoid fever have been greatly reduced because of vaccines and serums which produce a high rate of immunization.

The important thing to remember is to follow your doctor's advice regarding immunization. Be sure your child receives all the protective "shots" your physician orders.

All the bone in some folks' spinal columns seems to be lumped at the top.

BEHIND THE MOVIE SETS

with Buddy Mason

No one in Hollywood would have raised an eyebrow if the title of "Little Women" had been changed to "Dance Hall Gals".

Title changes, like death and taxes, are accepted by Hollywood folks as inevitable.

Studios have found that a name can make or break a film. The few words spelled in lights on a theater marquee can spell success or failure at the box-office. They can intrigue and attract moviegoers or can convince them that nothing will be lost not seeing that particular picture.

Authors of best sellers would do well to give their literary works titles that catch the eye and fire the imagination. The sale of picture rights to a novel often hinges on the marguee appeal of its name. When a book is made into a picture many changes must be made to adapt it to the screen. The finished production may contain little that resembles the original story. Studios hesitate to invest in picture rights for a book with a long name. With plot changes and all, they might end up with only an unusable title to show for their money.

A picture name should excite curiosity and convince Mr. and Mrs. Public that it will entertain them. It must not contain too many of the same letters as marquee alphabets are often limited. It also must not be so long that theater managers with a small sign space will hesitate to book the picture.

Many Hollywood stars have shortened, or changed, real names to insure getting them into the-ater lights. "Ellen Farrell' would be a poor screen name. Too many "L's". If the picture name also contained a few "L's" the small exhibitor would run out of letters.

Similarity of titles is quite likely to confuse prospective patrons. If a film called "Devil's Plaything" was exhibited shortly after the release of "Devil's Playground" it might suffer poor business. People who had been to see one picture would be likely to mistake the other picture for the one they had seen.

Actual play-date tests have proven that the same picture when shown under different titles will be greeted by a change in attendance receipts. Therefore much care is taken in choosing a releasing name. Blood, sweat and tears go into finding a title with maximum drawing power.

This is no less true with Hollywood's foreign market. Very often the domestic name of a picture makes very little sense when translated into another language. For that reason a great amount of time and thought is given to getting just the right title for a picture that is to leave American shores. One great cause of headaches among Hollywood's official title changers is the use of phrases that are typically American. They mean little or nothing when translated into a foreign tongue.

Universal-International recently made, "Yes, Sir, That's My Baby" starring Donald O'Connor. The name was fine for this country. Every American remembers the famous song by that title but down Brazil way, for instance, the phrase means nothing. As a result the film will be released in that country with Portugese dialogue and the title will read "A Vida De Solteiro E. Boa" or "The Life of a Bachelor Is Good"!

Perhaps foreign theater owners know what appeal to use in getting coins out of their countrymen's pockets and over the counters of theater cashiers. They must! How else can you account for the fact that Hungarian exhibitors did a land-office business by changing the name fo Danny Kaye's "Kid From Brooklyn" to "I Prefer a Cow"?
