THE SENIORS REIGN

By Barbara Wintemberg

After 12 years of tedious work and undying pleasure, the seniors of Andover Central School have finally reached the climax of their high school days. This joyous occasion calls for recognition by everyone as the seniors begin their happy whirl on the rushing tide of events.

Beginning Thursday morning, June 8, the junior and senior girls will participate in the solemn candlelight ceremony, at which time the seniors will light the candles of the juniors, after which they will quickly extinguish their own.

The candle lighting service will be followed by the regular moving-up day ceremonies when awards will be presented. The senior will and prophecy will be read after which the seniors will present the annual skit. From there, the day will belong to the seniors as they relieve the teachers of their duties for the remainder of the day. The following seniors will take part in the teaching:

Ronald Atwell, agriculture; Joan Jackson, librarian, homemaking; Maxine Filler, nurse; Gloria Clair, girls' gym; Nedra Burrows, 10 and 11 English; Lois Honegger, typing; Don Mulconery, boys' gym; Ken Nye, business law; Joyce Linza, art; Joan McAndrew, Latin; LeRoy Caple, Mr. Carmody's subjects; Kenneth Milligan, 7th English; Claton Burdick, janitor; Bob Baker, secretary; Betty Smith, office; Bob Carpenter, principal; Joe Smith, physics, geometry; Bob Dunham, business arithmetic; Teddy Van- biology, 10 and 11 history; Bob Marsh, general science, agriculture; Aquinas Lynch, 9th history, algebra; Barbara Wintemberg, 8th and 9th English; Mary Ellen Connor, junior high mathematics, nurse; Annabell O'Dell, homemaking; Frances Baker, music.

Thursday evening will be the occasion for the junior-senior banquet, where the two classes will come together for the last time for a formal meeting of any kind.

Friday, June 9, will find both the juniors and seniors hustling around as final preparations are completed for the "Cinderella Ball." Of course there is to be a Cinderella, who will be selected and crowned by Yale Jacobs, the orchestra leader. This very fact should be particularly encouraging to all people wishing to attend.

But this isn't all! The seniors are not yet through with this wild rush before "finals." If all goes as previously planned, the seniors will have one whole day, Saturday, June 10, which will include fun and gaiety for the entire class.

PEERING AT THE PEDAGOGUES

Mrs. Patricia Tompkins entertained the family at a birthday party for her husband. Also she went to the park on a picnic.

Mrs. Carolyn Helmer just enjoyed her home.

Mrs. Scharlie Schermerhorn spent the week-end in Albany with two teacher friends whom she knew at Delmar.

Miss Ruth Baker went to Cuba Lake.

Miss Ruby Jordan spent the holidays at home putting in a garden, housecleaning and mowing lawn.

Miss Doris Church attended two basehall games and worked.

Miss Mary McCarthy visited in Addison.

Miss Betty Block went to Syracuse and Buffalo.

Mr. Carlyle Carmody visited friends in Penfield and went to Seabreeze.

Mr. Glenn Bronson went to Corning where he visited his parents.

CANASERAGA EDGES ANDOVER 3-2 FOR COUNTY TITLE

by Dean Fisher

Last Friday afternoon the local Panthers traveled to Belfast to drop a heartbreaking 3-2 decision to the Canaseraga nine.

The locals drew first blood as they picked up a tally in the first inning on a walk to Wayne Atwell, a sacrifice by "Mickey" Baker and a double by Joe Smith. Canaseraga tied it in the third on a walk and two errors. Andover forged ahead by one run in the fourth as Bob Baker drew a bases-loaded pass. The Panthers held their edge until the last frame when Canaseraga scored twice on a single, an error and two fielders' choices.

"Don" Mulconery pitched a fine game all the way, but the breaks seemed to be against him.

AROUND THE SCHOOL

By Marion Milligan

Dear Molly Meg:

Here I am again to bring you all the news around A. C. S. I hope you won't be busy Saturday because I want you to go to the big track meet with me I hope many A. C. S. students will turn out to support our wonderful athletes.

Didn't the school band and all the rest that participated in the Memorial Day parade look wonderful. Annabelle O'Dell recited "In Flanders Field" like a professional speaker and "Bob" Carpenter spoke "The Gettysburg Address" like a statesman.

All of the kids are enjoying the new tennis court immensely. Gay Rogers and Charity Howland with their long skinny legs were out there the other day playing. I thought I would burst, Charity would volley and hit it so hard that when Gay jumped for the rebound she got smacked in the eye. Then when Gay finally did return the ball, Charity would run like mad to hit it back and fall over her own tennis racket.

Well, so much for their troubles. Of course you have heard about the big prom coming up June 9. There is to be a Queen chosen from the junior or senior classes by the orchestra. All the girls are worrying about what they are going to wear and the fellows are practicing all the rules of etiquette and dancing steps.

It's getting late so I will close and post you on the news next week.

STUDENTS SEE SAFETY PICTURES

The students of the junior and senior high school filed into the gymnasium Tuesday at 9:00 a. m., to see a film of safety pictures sponsored by the Erie Railroad Safety Commission.

The film took the audience on a trip through towns and cities in which the Erie Railroad runs showing many points of interest as well as many accidents caused by thoughtless boys and girls.

LIBRARY COUNCIL PURCHASES PINS

The Library Council girls received their club pins May 23 which they purchased from the Metal Arts Company of Rochester with the money raised from a social hour and three candy sales.

The pins, which are gold plated, are a small purple and white book with the word library printed across them. There is also the year '50 attached to the main part of the pin by a small gold chain. PJB

SO YOU'RE GOING TO THE PROM

by Eunice Hall

The juniors and seniors are holding a semi-formal dance, as it has been called to your attention. Of course you have decided to attend. It's part of the glamor of being a senior and the biggest social function.

This advice is particularly applicable to the boys (who need it just as much as the girls). Well boys, just relax, your worries are over (or are they?)

Good taste requires that you extend a definite invitation to the girl of your choice at least one month before the prom, if possible. It's quite proper for the girl to invite a boy, and if he accepts, he should not disappoint her later. At least one week before the prom, ask her what kind and color gown she'll wear, so that you'll know what kind of corsage to get her. Your mother, sister, or the florist will be glad to advise you, but don't tell the girl; let it come as a surprise.

If the prom is to be informal, and it is, then any neat suit, light in the summer, may be worn.

Comes the big night. Boys, looking like a million and feeling as suave as a diplomat, call on your glamor girls. Of course you're on time, and calling for her in a cab or car, and bringing her corsage in a box. Confidently and graciously you greet the members of her family. When you leave you help her on with her wrap, carry the box with the corsage, and assist her into the car. If you should be delayed on the night of the prom, be sure to phone the girl.

At the prom, take your girl's wrap to the cloakroom. If there are teachers present, greet them and make proper introductions. On leaving, bid them good-night. While it is perfectly natural for you and the girl to prefer to be alone or with a chosen few, do the accepted ballroom dances. Avoid the jitterbug type because it is not good taste. Don't get into a huddle with other boys and forget about the girl you brought. Don't be a show-off. Avoid loud, rude language and don't make anyone the butt of your jokes. Friendly remarks and good natured actions should prevail.

You can have as much fun or more at a round-robin breakfast, after the prom with the other couples than going to a night club. On this a number of parents will have to co-operate. Arrangements are made by four or five mothers to have the young people over after the prom. At the first home the couples will be served the first course of what may be a rather hearty breakfast, some kind of juice. After a short stay, they proceed to the second home where the next course is hot or cold cereal. At the third home they may have wheatcakes; at the fourth bacon and eggs, and they finish at the last home with cake and cocoa.

Good taste means good fun. Each of the events connected with the prom is enjoyable in its own way. The most satisfying recollections you'll have will be your own smooth, confident man-of-the-world manners. Happy prom,enading, juniors and seniors!

TOT SPOT

The tots in Mrs. Connor's first grade were very pleased to welcome Lynford Bledsoe back to school after his five weeks absence. Group 1 in this class has completed its reading series for the last semester.

Mrs. Hall's pupils have been studying "Family Helpers In Family Life." Many of these tots helped out at home to earn money. Some of them helped clean cellars, some planted gardens, others picked up papers, pumped water, cleaned bathroom or practiced their music lessons. They have planned a train ride from Wellsville to Hornell. A school bus will take the students to the railroad station and bring them back from Hornell. Today the tots observed the train passing by their window. They sent an invitation to Mrs. Connor's pupils to join them in the trip. The boys had perfect attendance for one week and four days.

On Thursday the cafeteria group went for a walk to observe the flowers in fields and gardens. Ten of this group marched in the Memorial Day parade.

The tots in Mrs. Tompkins' second grade learned about right and left, about things that come in pairs, about pints, quarts and glassfuls, about the pound and how to find halves, thirds, or fourths of numbers. The Elves have started the reading unit on "New Story Book Friends." The tots in this room have started writing.

In Mrs. Helmer's class the pupils drew colorful pictures of iris. Earl Eccleston's side won the recently completed spelling contest. The third grade are reading "If I Were Going."

Mrs. Carmody's second grade has an attractive bird house to put outside their window.

Mrs. Jordan's fifth graders had perfect attendance on May 25.

In the recent election held by Miss Church's fifth and sixth grades recently, Sally Clarke was elected president, Sylvia Lusk was elected vice president; Gloria Marsh, treasurer; and Jackie Vickers, secretary.

The sixth graders in Mrs. Schwarzenbach's room have just finished reading the poem "The Flag Is Passing By," and are drawing pictures to illustrate their favorite stanzas. These tots have just finished the study of Australia and are about to study Africa.

The seventh graders are planning a picnic to be held June 5.

The eighth graders enjoyed their picnic on May 26. MCB

DO YOU NEGLECT THEM?

by Eunice Hall

Today there are more children wearing glasses than ever before. Why? One big reason is that the eyes are being neglected and used more than in the past generations.

Since I am always willing to lend a helping hand, I shall attempt to give a few pointers on how to keep your eyes in good condition. Most of these should and could be carried out each day. One of the simplest and best beauty treatments is eight or nine hours of sleep each night. Making sure you get your share of crisp, leafy vegetables. Vitamin A foods (butter, carrots, milk and whole grain cereals and breads keeps your eyes in good working order, too. Drinking six glasses of water a day helps to thoroughly cleanse your system and give your eyes sparkle.

When you're at school and have been studying for a long period, give your eyes a brief rest by looking up from your book and gazing out of the window for a minute. During a study period, try closing your eyes for a moment and completely relax. These short rest periods refresh your eyes and give them a chance to regain their strength.

I've never been able to understand why so many girls and boys avoid wearing glasses when

THE GRANGE NEWSLETTER

by E. Payson Smith

NATIONAL Highway Users conference, a bi-annual affair, took place in Washington early in May with some 500 representatives from every state present. Grange has had a strong voice in this important organization since it began in 1932. L. J. Taber of Syracuse, a past National Master is treasurer, and present National Master Goss was re-elected vice-chairman. Albert Bradley of General Motors is chairman.

Committees within the conference carry on a great deal of beneficial work on behalf of all the people who use our national, state and secondary roads. Two trends of thought were apparent this year, both of which are important to all of us.

First, it was recommended that states should resume more responsibility and support themselves as much as possible, taking less from federal government, and above all, resisting federal domination and control. It was a specific Grange recommendation that in addition, county road committees of farmers could be formed to consult with local road officials on long-range programs.

Secondly, it was urged that the highway program, which has found secondary roads receiving only five per cent of the budget, should be apportioned 45 per cent to arterial highways, 25 per cent to city streets and 30 per cent to secondary roads. This would be of great benefit to the farmers.

IS IS SURPRISING the variety of interests which Grange has on behalf of the farmer. Who would have thought, not too long ago, that we would be passing along a suggestion to the Federal Communications Commission with regard to radio. Yet such is the case, and there has been read into the Congressional Record a resolution passed by National Grange at Sacramento last year which states, in part, that in order to "insure reliable and satisfactory radio service to the farm population of the U. S., we recommend there be no further break-down in the number of clear-channel broadcasting stations in our country, and that sufficient power be authorized to provide adequate service." This may be in answer to a trend toward slanting network broadcasts to the metropolitan areas. Advertisers would be short-sighted if they allow it to continue.

GRANGE HALLS are soon to have a new set of building codes which will enable us to satisfy approved laws governing places of public assembly, without working undue hardship, or causing excessive expense to our individual Granges. Perhaps most of the members who are fortunate in having their own meeting halls know that these places are subject to inspection, and in some cases have been forced to spend large sums of money to install seemingly unnecessary renovations such as extra escapes, fire walls between kitchen and gathering place, etc.

With the passage of Chapter 448, Laws of 1950, State Grange will now be allowed to establish its own set of building codes, and we understand that our Executive Committee has the matter in hand, and we will soon be able to determine if our own halls stand up to what is necessary for our health and protection. It will be a good idea to assume our own responsibilities, lest we suffer from undue pressure.

We have long advocated that with the monetary investment we have in our Grange meeting places, we should have sufficient pride to keep them in proper order.

FARMERS are much different folks than they used to be, or hadn't you noticed? We heard they're a definite necessity, for it would seem better to wear a pair than to go around squinting like an owl or snubbing old friends on the street. Remember that tired eyes can affect not only your health but your disposition as well, so it is wise to have your eyes examined each year.

If you wear glasses, you'd better care for them. Carry them in their own case to prevent scratching the lenses and nicking the frames. Treat them to a soap and water bath every day. You'll find that a special little cloth or paper tissues kept in your glass case will also be a convenience in shining up your specs.

One final pointer is: don't flutter your eyelashes, roll or blink your eyes—for these amazing mannerisms detract from your beauty. Your eyes are your most expressive feature, so take care to keep them brightly sparkling.

RECIPE

by Danjaan Crandall

If you're looking for something that will help those luncheons and dinners on hot days, try this salad, since it will save work and make the kitchen cooler. It will even save you time that you want to spend out of doors:

Tuna Fish and Cucumber Salad

1½ cups tuna fish (12 oz. can)
1 cup cucumber, diced.
½ cup celery, diced
2 teaspoons onion, diced
3 tablespoons French dressing
½ cup mayonnaise
Lemon juice to taste.

Combine tuna fish, cucumber, celery, onions. Moisten with the French dressing and chill.

Drain and moisten with mayonaise to which a little lemon juice has been added.

Serve in lettuce cups and garnish with sliced stuffed olives and sliced hard cooked eggs.

Serves 4 to 6.

a radio quizmaster ask a farm wife if she could milk a cow. She said she'd never had to because they used milking machines now, but she could drive a tractor pretty good. That radio fellow thought that was the funniest thing! Well, he just hasn't been around much lately. Point we are trying to make is that farm folks are just about the largest purchasing group in the country today, small in numbers though they may be. And that goes for everything from machines to radios (pardon us, it's television sets now). Best of all, they are about our best class of churchgoers and scholastic honors winners. Don't take our word for it—just take a look around.

NEW PROJECT for next year has been announced by National Grange. It's a new exchange idea to bring German 'teen-agers into Grange homes. About 83 will arrive next year on a trial basis. we'll tell you all the details as soon as we know them.

Keep on buying Savings Bonds.
