Enjoy Entertaining

"Enjoy yourself." These are key words to being a successful hostess. A good way to put them into practice is to plan meals that star just two or three dishes.

Food specialists at the College of Home Economics, Cornell, suggest that company dinners for just a few guests be based on simple menus. You might serve one or two specialties such as a knock-out main dish with a salad and a super dessert. And this can be a dinner "fit for a king". The main dish might be creamed ham or chicken a la king on fluffy rice. With this have a big fruit salad or a tossed green combination. And for dessert, how about cherry or apple pie (made in advance, of course) with ice cream on top plus lots of hot coffee?

You can be a sparkling hostess when you plan dinner parties this way. Guests will be well fed. And best of all, you'll feel like having friends in for dinner more often.

Thanks

The Slim Line of Fashion Makes News This Spring

MAKE IT YOUR OWN WITH OUR WONDERFUL

Gossard's NARROLINE

This is the girdle that actually does narrow you all the way around. The secret's in the panel design along each hip. It divides the elastic, limits stretch, narrows your waist, hips, thighs. Yet it's exceptionally fluid, action-free.
