Farm and Dairy.

The Staying Quality.

Immediate and great profits seldom attend any line of legitimate farming. Whoever expects to become rich by the pursuit of agriculture in any of its branches, must patiently bide his time and steadily pursue the course marked out. He will travel no royal road to wealth, but if he be the happy possessor of an equable temper with a disposition to persist in the face of discouragements, and withal blessed with physical and mental activity, his industry will bring comfort and happiness, and at last competence. The ambition to become rich, is by itself, a sordid sentiment, but the desire to accumulate the fruits of honest labor, as a reserve to be converted into lawful enjoyments for ourselves as we may need, and for our successors, is laudable. It is a sentiment common to humanity, and its proper exercise exerts a benign influence on society.

The great requisite to success in farming, after intelligence, is steadiness, tenacity, persistence, and the lack of this quality makes of the whole business a mere speculative venture.—More high hopes are shipwrecked by vacillating purpose, than by elements which blast the growing crops, or waste the ripened grain. We live in changeful times. Old farmers tell us of practices in vogue when they began, but long since abandoned, and of innovations which grieve their conservative souls. Now that tenacity which clings to the old modes and practices as most fastens on the venerable oak, is of no worth. It serves only to retard progress. We cannot if we would, continue to tread in the worn steps of antiquated custom. There are no places to gather in the wake of improvement.—We must keep to the front, even to the extent of testing that which is beyond. But the persistence which is indomitable in a farmer is that which impels him to pursue through thick and thin, in sunshine and in shadow, his particular road, never deviating through temptations which lure the unsteady into untried and profitless paths. To be more precise in the definition, we may say that the steadiness which tends to success is that quality which holds the grain farmer to the plow right along through the years of low prices and sluggish sales to come out at last—certainly at last—on the topmost wave of prosperity. Or with dairying, to stay through poor seasons and low products—bear feed and low prices, mind the feeble and fickle retire, until probation is passed and prosperity earned—that is the quality which compels success and our admiration.

Now there may be farmers who will dispose of all this sentiment, with the cheap remark "it is very fine to talk of holding on, but who will do it at a loss?" The answer is, no one can lose in the end if his course be judiciously selected and all along illuminated by intelligence. There must be adaptation to circumstances. Lands especially adapted to grass must not be persistently devoted to grain, nor on the other hand should grass be made the chief reliance in fields where its growth must be constantly coaxed.

It would be easy to furnish illustrations of the benefits to flow from continued effort in any well-chosen direction, but these will occur to the thoughtful farmer.

We may remark however, that in dairying, old pastures and old meadows are the very best guarantors of success, and those require long years of persistent effort to establish. They are wholly incompatible with fickle purpose, and hence, in our American farming they are too rare; and then again, in steady purpose leading always to a clearly defined object the lessons of experience become very valuable.—One becomes a finished workman—master of his vocation.

Allegany county is becoming eminent for the excellence of its dairy products, and with faithful, earnest effort on the part of her dairymen to excel in quality will soon rank among the first.—Enough of this staying quality will, in the course of the next ten years, add millions of dollars to her wealth, and besides this substantial reward, bring that high gratification which attends all effort to excel.

A Georgia clergman has thirty-two children and his parishoners object to his having four pews without paying for them.

The difference between perseverance and obstinacy is that one often comes from a strong will, and the other from a strong won't.

A Western member of Congress who interpreted M. C. to mean More Corrupt, was made to understand that it meant Mighty Corrupt.

A stranger who threw a ten-dollar bill into the contribution-box of a Savannah church got trusted for five hundred dollars' worth of goods next day one the strength of it.

The world is full of men who will cheerfully "boss a job" for a dollar and a half a day, when five dollars a day for actual work would not be the slightest temptation for them.

Two Irishmen were in prison—one for stealing a cow, and the other for stealing a watch. "Hullo, Mike, an' sure what o'clock is it?" said the cow stealer. "In troth," said the watch stealer, "I've no time piece handy, but suppose it's jist about milkin' time."

"Why are doctors called physicians, mamma?" said an inquisitive little girl to her mother, who had just been visited by one of them. "Physician," replied mamma, who was seldom at a loss for an answer, "comes from fee-seek, as the doctor rides about all day seeking fees."

Boston is well known for economy. We have evidence in the following: As proof of carefulness on the the part of a steamboat proprietor, it is stated that an antiquated steamboat in New England always carries a supply of wooden plugs with which to close up the holes thus frequently appear in her worn out boilers.

An inebriate got into a car in Boston, and became so annoying to the passengers that it was proposed to eject him; but a kind-hearted reverend doctor interposed for him, and soothed him into good behavior however, he scowled upon the occupants of the car and muttered some words of contempt, but shook hands warmly with the doctor, and said: "Good day my friend I see you know what it is to be drunk."

VINEGAR BITTERS

FOREIGN VEGETABLE FREE FROM ALCOHOL CALIFORNIA ONE

D. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA VINEGAR BITTERS

Dr. J. Walker's California Vinegar Bitters are a purely Vegetable preparation, made chiefly from the native herbs found on the lower ranges of the Sierra Nevada mountains of California, the medicinal properties of which are extracted therefrom without the use of Alcohol. The question is almost daily asked, "What is the cause of the unparalleled success of VINEGAR BITTERS?" Our answer is, that they remove the cause of disease, and the patient recovers his health. They are the great blood purifier and a life-giving principle, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system. Never before in the history of the world has a medicine been compounded possessing the remarkable qualities of VINEGAR BITTERS in healing the sick of every disease man is heir to. They are a gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs, in Bilious Diseases.

The properties of Dr. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS are Aperient, Diaphoretic, Carminative, Nutritious, Laxative, Diuretic, Sedative, Counter-Irritant, Sudorific, Alterative, and Anti-Bilious.

Grateful Thousands proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair.

Bilious, Remittent, and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, acting in the powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to DR. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, as they will speedily remove the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with VINEGAR BITTERS. No epidemic can take hold of a system that has been thus fortified.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms are the offspring of Dyspepsia. Feeding Pussy in New York.

Who would think of a man's making his living by boarding cats? Well, a man in New York city is doing just that thing. This is the way he says he started in such a queer business.

"I was a clerk in a dry goods store," he said, "but I lost my place, and was out of work for a good while. I tried to get a new place, but all kinds of business was so dull I couldn't get anything to do. Two weeks ago I found my money all gone. I cudgelled my brains for a scheme to get an honest living and suddenly the idea of feeding cats struck me. The more I thought it over the more it seemed as if it would pay. I knew that almost every downtown store has a cat, and sometimes two or three, that is always a bother to feed. They have to send out for meat, or make the porters bring something from home, and half the cats go hungry.

So I went to work right away at canvassing for customers. I didn't make much headway at first, for everybody laughed at me. I couldn't make them believe that I really intended to make a business of feeding cats. I went home sick enough the first day, because I'd been laughed at more than ever before in all my life, and had not got a customer. The next day though, I had started out again, for I knew I'd got to do something. Before night, by sticking to it, I had ten customers, and on that I made a start. Now I've got over a hundred cats on my list. You see one customer sees a brings another. They see the cats next door getting feed regularly and without any trouble, and it isn't so much work to get their custom."

The way he feeds his strange boarders is by going about with a basketful of food, and visiting each one. When asked what he fed them, he said:

"Well, I give them a variety. This morning I have cooked liver and fish. To-morrow I'm going to serve raw beef, as I know where I can get a cheap lot."

"A deranged business?"

"No, indeed. My customers watch too close for that. I have too fresh sound stuff, whatever it is. I find that the cats like cooked fish about as well as anything, and they don't turn up their noses at boiled liver."

"What are your terms?"

"Thirty cents a week for regular board. Where two or three cats are served in one store I make a reduction. Every Saturday I make an extra round in the afternoon and leave enough for the Sunday feeding. Some of the cats are such pets that their owners are afraid they are not fed enough, or are overfed, or don't get the right kind of food, or something. On the whole, though, I think my customers are always pretty well satisfied with the new system."

Some cats he finds a little better than the common run. A reporter who went with him once upon his route, says that at a great furniture warehouse in College place a beautiful cat of huge dimensions and pure white color was found. She had blue ribbons in her ears, a silver collar around her neck, and a downy rug to lie on.

"This is one of the swell cats on my route," said the caterer. "Mr. Clark pays me a dollar a week for feeding her, but she has to be served with milk every morning."

He took a bottle from the corner of the basket and poured some milk into a saucer that an office boy brought. The meat and fish was also put on a plate. The boy said the cat would not eat off the floor, and even from the plate she rejected the liver and ate the fish daintily.

"I have six cats that I serve with milk," continued Mr. Sturn, "and if I missed them there would be a jolly row I can tell you."

"Do you intend to stick to this business permanently?" he was asked.

"Certainly," said he. "Why not? It's growing every day. Why, I've got as many cats now as I can serve on foot. When I get a little more money saved I shall buy a horse and cart, and hire a boy to take the meat into the stores. Then I'll be prepared to feed all the cats in New York, and swing out a big sign somewhere with my name on it."

Finding of Mastodon Teeth.

From of the Rochester Evening Express.]

DANSVILLE, May 1, 1874.

Dansville for once goes backward. She ante-dates all date; passing thro the centuries since the birth of Christ, she dives deep down into the mould of the tertiary and brings to light the teeth and part of the tusk of a mastodon. Last fall while some men were engaged in the scientific pursuit of ditching and draining a piece of marsh ground, on the farm of Mr. Edward Whiteman, about two miles south of the village, some large heavy chunks of earth were thrown out, which, on examination, were found to contain two teeth and a portion of the tusk of a mastodon of the species known to scientists as M. gigantens. Last Saturday they were brought down and left at the restaurant of our genial friend Tom Griffith for inspection. The teeth are immense rough, rugged pieces of dentine substance, each having three large distinct prongs, and other smaller ones; they are about 7 inches long by 5 wide and 4 1-2 inches high, are longitudinally or divided by four sinus, so that, if separated between each of these sinus, the tooth would, apparently make four distinct teeth; the top or crown of the teeth is covered to a depth averaging from 1-4 to 1-2 of one inch, with white enamel which, though occasionally broken and dented like pit holes in a rock, is still in a remarkable state of preservation. They weigh something over five pounds each, and from the looks we should judge them to be the fourth in order on the jaw. The piece of tusk found is from two to three feet long, and will probably measure, at its base, some twelve inches in circumference. As you will perceive, we have not as yet much of the animal, but we have enough to make us believe that if we should go one coming with his mouth open, showing even sight such molars we should feel like getting out of his presence as soon as was consistently convenient. Information of the discovery has been sent to the scientists of Yale, Cornell, etc., and excavations will probably be made to discover, if possible, the whole skeleton. There being but few mastodon skeletons in the country, that are at all complete, Such a discovery would be a valuable one in science.
