YOUR MANNERS ARE SHOWING

Did you know that:

The proper time to give a graduation present is before the graduation exercises and is more pleasing to the graduate.

When you are going to a formal flowers should be worn on the left and you can try to take care of them while you're dancing. Although some practical girls with lovely flowers who don't want to crush them will wear them on the right shoulder or on their wrist or in their hair.

Three or four weeks before your graduation exercises is plenty of time to send out invitations.

If you have been out several times with a boy who lives in another town, and you do not correspond, it would be correct to invite him to your Prom, if you want him to take you. Make the letter a simple and direct invitation; don't fill it with conversational matter when you're not writing to him regularly.

You shouldn't put Miss before your name on your graduation calling cards when you're 16. An unmarried young girl who is old enough to have calling cards (and you are at 16) should use Miss before her name.

BCG, A CURE FOR TUBERCULOSIS

At a meeting of the American Association for Thoracic Surgery, Dr. Edward F. O'Brien of Detroit reminded his colleagues that French researchers developed a safe strain of tubercle bacilli, a generation ago. which upon injection, sharply raises the body's resistance to new infection. They called the vaccine BCG. It is absolutely harmless and confers immunity up to 90 per cent or over.

Doctors have used BCG in more than 30,000,000 inoculations all over the globe. The U. S. S. R. now vaccinates each newborn baby with it. The American occupation authorities in Japan have made it compulsory—with a drop in Japan's TB death rate from 280 per 100,000 in 1945 to 169 in 1949.

Dr. O'Brien says that every American should be inoculated with BCG at four year intervals "from the cradle to the grave."

CROP PROGRAM for 1950 will have Henry D. Sherwood, Master of New York State Grange, as chairman, according to an announcement this week by Mrs. George Brunish, Syracuse, state director.

Christian Rural Overseas Program seeks commodity contributions from farmers rather than cash. With probably the greatest federation of church groups of every faith taking care of distribution to the needy overseas, CROP has earned deserved respect at a practical means of relieving hunger and want in the distressed countries.

Last year Granges, joining with local churches and other farm groups, turned in tons of goods and farm produce. Under the leadership of Mr. Sherwood, one of the outstanding agricultural figures of the northeast, New York can be expected to be well over the top.

CROP Sunday, at which time the drive will begin and canvassers go into action, has been set for September 10th. We strongly urge the Subordinate Granges to make plans now for full cooperation and support.

RURAL RADIO Network announces that beginning July 1 nightime and Sunday broadcasts will be added as an additional service to upstate New York FM listeners. Heretofore, RRN, sponsored by the ten major farm organizations of the state, including N. Y. State Grange, has been off the air after 7:30 p. m. weekdays and after 1:00 p. m. Sundays.

Featuring special music and news programs from the N. Y. Times station, WQXR, you may enjoy FM listening until 11:06 p. m. weekdays and Sundays. RRN, which has expanded over the past year and a half, now can be heard through stations located at Niagara Falls, Hornell, Wethersfield, Bristol Center, Ithaca, DeRuyter, Watertown, Ogdensburg, Rome-Utica, Cherry Valley, Troy and Poughkeepsie.

BEHIND THE MOVIE SETS

with Buddy Mason

The late Bob Ripley once wrote of a child born to an 82 year old couple who died of old age shortly after his sixth birthday!

I couldn't help thinking of what antiquated infant as Donald O'Connor, on a set at Universal-International studios, recently remarked that he should be thinking of retiring.

The 23 year old actor who has spent 22 years in the theatrical and motion picture business was joking, of course, but it must seem like a long career to him.

Donald claims that he is getting old and protests that 22 years of work should entitle a man to some sort of retirement. When you consider that working theatrical children miss many of the experiences of childhood, perhaps he's right. I doubt if he'd enjoy changing his mode of life now.

Acting is more than a profession. It is a way of life. Like the man who turns his hobby into a business, an actor has no hours. He gripes about never having time to call his own but will ply his trade at any off period to aid any charitable cause. Like a policeman or fireman he is never off duty if he is needed.

In a more serious moment young O'Connor will tell you, "I was born a trouper, and that's the way I want to finish."

Watching him bounce around like a human pogo-stick on the set of "Double Cross Bones" (which is, if you're curious, is the title of a pirate picture). you'd never consider Donald to be a candidate for retirement.

Young O'Connor made his first stage appearance at the age of six months performing with other members of the O'Connor family vaudeville troupe.

A few weeks after Donald joined the family act his father, John E. "Chuck" O'Connor, passed away leaving his widow and children to carry on the already established O'Connor vaudeville unit.

At the age of thirteen months, young Donald was doing the then famous "Black Bottom" dance number. My mother put honey on the seat of panties," the youthful actor recalls, "so I'd pat myself and then kiss my hands. It brought down the house.

The O'Connors toured the American vaudeville circuits and during one of their visits to Los Angeles they performed in a charity show at the Biltmore Hotel. A Paramount Studio talent executive spotted young Don and signed him for the role of Bing Crosby's kid brother in "Sing You Sinners". That was in 1938.

The completion of his present acting chore in "Double Cross Bones" will mark O'Connor's eleventh year in motion pictures.

Like the average man who speaks of retiring, Donald would not know what to do with himself if he did. When a man has spent his entire life working he might find it rather difficult to learn how to spend all his suddenly acquired leisure time.

He might end up like an old character actor of my acquaintance who swore he'd quit working when he reached sixty. He did. Six months later I happened to run into him at a charity show where he was playing a benefit performance.

The old boy looked rather sheepish then promptly defended himself with: "Well! You can't call this working! I don't get one red cent for it!"
