Farm and Dairy.

Edited and conducted by W. A. ASHCROFT, of Elmira, Secretary of the State Grange.

Communications from farmers upon subjects pertaining to Agriculture will be cheerfully received.

Preparation.

Farming is not a business which can take care of itself without the exercise of thought or the supervising watchfulness of a leader. Grass and grain grow out of the elements furnished by nature. Fruits come in their season, ripening to luscious perfection through the genial influence of timely showers, the refreshing dews and the summer sun. But the grass and the grain must come from seed sown in fertile soil and carefully attended by the husbandman. The fruits are the reward of long years of watchful care and patient waiting. Men do not gather grapes of thorns nor figs of thistles. All there is of excellence in the material blessings of this world comes as the reward of labor. Not always the labor of the recipient, it is true, nevertheless the reward of labor, bestowed by some teller, in obedience to the law which requires of us all exertion. There is in these facts nothing new. For some thousands of years there has been in force the law which requires sweat of the brow and during all that time there has doubtless been steady effort to evade it as there is now. But, disobedience brings its penalties.

We may not all be skilful cultivators. He who plants a tree and he who guides a plow earn their reward the same as do those who follow to water the plant and to sow the seed. All we have from the soil comes through labor which precedes the blessing.

These reflections will be entirely without value if they be received as propositions to which placid assent may safely be given, and then the whole matter dismissed. There is the lesson to learn. What shall we do to increase the store of earthly comforts? What can we do? Each for himself has a duty to perform, and he who gives that duty the most thought, will attain the fullest accomplishment.—There is always work to do and it cannot be well done without thought.—There is preparation to make. Every farm in all the land needs its preparation for something to come in the future.—Active spring labors are nearly closed, and the hope of harvest rests mainly with Him who cares for the most feeble of His creatures. But we can use the time profitably in perfecting plans for future operations. We can make preparation for the various processes yet to be observed. We can eliminate errors from established practice. We can open ways which lead more directly to good results. Intelligent and skillful labor is the result of full preparation on the part of the performer, and little performances perfect in their kind lead to excellence in all things.—If there is no lesson in this, then our words are wasted, but if the careful application of thought to all farm purposes does bring improvement, let every work have such preparation.

Co-Operation.

The numerous organizations designated granges, in the order of Patrons of Husbandry, are arranging for co-operation in various ways. Co-operative purchases in the way of massed orders for the purpose of securing the lowest prices are common. Another feature now beginning to appear is the disposition to organize for the sale of products, of course not attempting to corner the markets, but to gather complete statistics of production, and precise information of the wants of the country, by which action may be guided. Whoever looks at this matter will see that great power may be exerted by these bodies if they can act in harmony. Let us illustrate. Chemung county, in this State, and Bradford, in Pennsylvania, make a considerable portion of the first-class butter which enters the New York city market. In these counties there are more than sixty subordinate granges, the membership mainly composed of the very best farmers and dairymen. Now these bodies, through carefully selected committees, obtain, first, very full information of the amount of butter made in each jurisdiction. Second, they learn all that can be learned of its quality, how it sold last year, and where it was consumed. Through other committees and agents they learn of the probable demand. Finding that this great production bulked and held will be sure to advance the price, they distribute the information to the interested parties, and without a dollar of cost the operation is performed. Their butter reaches the price fixed upon and the rise goes into the pocket of the very persons who have earned it. This procedure will excite the virtuous indignation of those who regard it as a horrid thing to put up prices. But it is done every year by a few speculators, or it is at least attempted. If honest farmers do it, why it is a grey horse of another color. No man need enter into an engagement to hold his products. His interest, however will lead him to act in accordance with the advices of those skilled persons whom he has aided in selecting, to gather information to be used in deciding his proper course. He takes no risk for he loses no control of his products and pays no middle man.

If very easy to see that in a brotherhood, terribly in earnest in the determination to get the proper reward of labor, such combinations are very likely to be made. This organization brings together in one common interest men who have been separately striving to accomplish that which separated they were not strong enough to do, but together they may and they will. There are few as they have been who would be men willing to live by the sweat of the brow, but they want the sweat to come from other brows than theirs. These men will find their vocation gone, or what amounts to the same thing, they will cease to make it profitable. Unless a man can do something for all and most of the world he is of not much use in it, and if it comes to pass that all those who live on the toil of others learn to bear a hand to aid the honest, unbalanced it will be pleasant to all concerned. So most it be.

"Buckeye Grange," is the name of a [illegible] in Ohio, [illegible] styled "Buckeye Empire."

Mowing Machines.

No farmer having a dozen acres of meadow to cut over, can afford to do without a mowing machine. If he has not one of his own, he makes an arrangement with some neighbor who has one, by which he gets his grass cut at such time as suits his neighbor. At the best, this depending on others, works poorly in farm matters, and it is therefore better for every farmer to be well supplied with machinery and tools of the best kinds. Hay to be good must be made from grass which has just reached the proper stage of growth. It must also be made in the quickest way consistent with safe keeping. All the way from cutting to housing, the processes are critical, needing skill and first class energy. These are the reasons why every farmer should be well supplied with haying tools. If all the work could be hired just at the right time, it might be cheaper than to buy tools; but there is the rub—the work will not be done in season.

A good mower will cost say one hundred dollars, will with good care and skillful handling, waste ten per cent. of its value every year. The gain is not in reduced labor expense. It is in having in hand the means by which this important work may be accomplished, just at the right time when the crop will have the greatest value. Thus twenty acres of good meadow may be gathered in such good order in a week of fair weather without extra hard help, that the product may be worth more than it would with another week's delay, by the whole cost of the mower.—The gain is the real gain in the use of a mower.

Just now there is an important matter to be considered by those who put away their machines last year without repairs. Set them out now and put every part in first-rate order, ready to drive into the grass with a certainty that they will work. Let there be no delay. Time is not worth as much now as it will be three or four weeks hence. Replace every broken knife by a new one, tighten every loose guard, and if there are blunt ones, point them on a grindstone. There may be worn boxings, see to them. A little Babbit metal easy to apply may save a ton or two of hay in the increased excellence of timely work, or it may save a general break down of the machine. It is so much better to have all the tools in good order that the thoughtful farmer will only need to have his attention directed that way and he will have them in order.

In the hurry of spring work, farm horses' feet are often seriously injured by the shoes remaining set too long.—It is an excellent hoof that can carry a shoe six weeks without necessity for re-setting, and yet farmers often complain of the blacksmith if he cannot nail them on so tight that they will stay three months. It is not pleasant, it is true, to have shoes pulling off when work presses, but it is unquestionably necessary, that at regular intervals not longer than six weeks, all the shoes be re-set. Many a young horse is hopelessly crippled by lack of attention to this important matter. The farm horse would be better off without shoes, than to have the feet girt with iron nailed on to stay during several months to save two small items of cost, the time required to visit the shop and the smith's bill.

The miserable tent worm which infests our orchards, and destroys the foliage, and with it the promise of fruit, is a nuisance easily abated now. A smart workman armed with a pole to which is attached a swab, will remove a hundred nests in a few minutes.—The proper time is in the early morning when the worms are snugly stowed. Pass the swab a few times over the nest with a rasping motion, causing all to adhere, and then crush all beneath the foot. So passing to all the infested trees, all may be quickly destroyed. If delayed much longer, damage is sure to ensue.

Two Failures.

From the American Rural Home.

One Fair or two failures?" was the question we asked last week. The question has divided itself, it seems to us, by the action of the Board of Managers of the Western New York Fair last Saturday. By a unanimous vote it was then decided to go on and hold a fair next fall, according to previous announcement, and to offer unusual inducements to exhibitors and the general public. As there is no probability that the State Fair Managers will recede from their choice of date, it seems certain that we shall have two fairs in the same week. The only query left, then, is the one which heads this article—"two failures?"

The State show will have years of prestige; it will have also years of experience in management, and the advantages accruing therefrom. It will have a well-filled treasury to draw upon, an extensive influence to back it up, and the efforts of a strong local organization to help render it successful. It will enjoy the advantages of new grounds, new and ample buildings, and many success. The Western New York Fair will have as large a prestige younger, but excellent; a determination to win against all opposition; and a strong sectional feeling of favor and support. Against the State show will be this sectional feeling, and a long-time belief that a peregrinating exhibition is of less account to Western New York than a fair of its own holding, regularly held. Against the latter show will be the rather difficult access to its grounds, the comparatively poor accommodations thus afforded, and, perhaps, a belief on the part of some county societies that the Western New York Fair is in a way trenching upon their rights and privileges.

We have thus, we think, fairly and impartially stated the case of the two prospective exhibitions. Will they prove two failures? Since we are to have to have them, we hope not. We wish only well to the State Society; we we are not the special champions of the Western New York Fair. We have advocated it strongly, it is true; but its merits of management we have as strongly condemned. Concerning the choice of dates, fixed upon by both parties, we shall only say now that the State Society claim to have chosen the same week chosen by the Western New York managers, upon special request of the Driving Park managers; that the Driving Park managers say the choice was at the special request of those members of the State Society residing in this section; that the said D. F. M.'s affirm that the W. N. Y. M.'s waited until they learned what date the State Society had really selected, but had not announced, and then chose the same, in order to raise conflict; and that the W. N. Y. M.'s say that when they chose their time, after waiting some weeks for the State Society to settle upon something of purpose or time, it was not even decided that the State Fair would come here at all, but it was known that a proffer had been made to go to Elmira, and that proffer was under consideration by the State Board.

It is possible that from this seeming muddle the real facts may come to light, as to who is responsible for what may result in a lively contest. As to that we have nothing now to add. As to the fairs, we begin to thing that both may succeed, though that has not been our opinion. The State Fair can hardly fail far short of success, in any event, with so much in its favor. There is a sectional feeling developing in favor of our own sectional show stronger even than we had anticipated, and this, with the firm determination the managers evince, will almost, if not quite, insure success for that. It would be something to brag of if Rochester should eclipse itself by having two splendidly successful exhibitions in one week! Competition is the life of business, gentlemen! We hope it may not be the death of fairs.

No other Bitters in the universe can equal them. I lack space for detailing the availability of these Bitters, but will briefly state its general effects upon the human system, as follows:

It absolutely Purifies the Blood. It specially corrects all morbid change in the Blood. It regulates the circulation of the Blood. It regulates the supply and quality of the blood. It causes the blood to furnish a proper support to all the vital organs of the body. It purges from the system the morbid humors which retard its natural tone. It imparts vitality and elasticity to every organ of the body. It corrects all derangements, however great, which are the first organs of the system. It promotes the operations of the digestive organs. It improves the appetite and removes all disagreeable feeling after eating. It perfects digestion, rendering it natural and easy. It acts as a mild and efficacious stomachic. It elevates the standard of all the vital forces. It strengthens the nervous fibres and diffuses a calm throughout the nervous system. It destroys all morbid conditions of the mind. It disperses dullness and lassitude. It promotes buoyancy of spirit and freshness. It banishes those sleepy spun pleasures which produce deep gloom. It drives away those distressing symptoms which rob us of happiness. It revives the physical energies by imbuing new life and power into the system. It tortures the system against the dangers of malaria, fluctuations of the temperature, changes in the climate, &c. In short it prepares the system for the ordinary change to be brought to it, and secures it to perfect health and natural vigor.

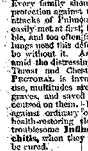
Ayer's

Cherry Pectoral,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping-Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption.



Among the great discoveries of modern science, few are of more real value to mankind than this effectual remedy for all diseases of the Throat and Lungs. A vast trial of its virtues, throughout this and other countries, has shown that it does surely and effectually control them. The confidence of our best citizens, of all classes, establishes the fact, that CHERRY PECTORAL will and does relieve and cure the afflicting disorders of the Throat and Lungs beyond any other medicine. The most dangerous affections of the Pulmonary Organs yield to its power, and cases of Consumption, cured by this preparation, are publicly known, too remarkable as hardly to be believed, were they not proven beyond dispute. As a remedy it is unequaled, on which the public may rely for full protection. By curing Coughs, the forerunners of more serious disease, it saves unnumbered lives, and an amount of suffering not to be computed. It challenges trial, and convinces the most sceptical. Every family should keep it on hand as a protection against the early and unperceived attacks of Pulmonary Affections, which are easily met at first, but which become incurable, and too often fatal, if neglected. Tender lungs need this defence; and it is unwise to be without it. As a safeguard to children, amid the distressing diseases which beset the Throat and Chest of childhood, CHERRY PECTORAL is invaluable; for, by its timely use, multitudes are rescued from premature graves, and saved to the love and affection centered on them. It acts speedily and surely against ordinary colds, securing sound and healthy-sleeping sleep. No one will suffer troublesome Influenza and painful Bronchitis, when they know how easily they can be cured.

Originally the product of long, laborious, and successful chemical investigation, no cost or toil is spared in making every bottle in the utmost possible perfection. It may be confidently relied upon as possessing all the virtues it has ever exhibited, and capable of producing cures as unrivalled as the greatest it has ever effected.
