Air Raid Warning Signals for Area Are Outlined

While it has not yet been announced who the defense director for Allegany county will be, some information on civilian defense procedures are being made public.

Air raid warning signals for this area, which will be standardized throughout the state were announced by Colonel Lawrence Wilkinson director of the New York state civil defense commission.

All defense directors were informed that the official signals are to be as follows, in event of a national emergency:

1. Yellow Signal—a confidential alert for authorities only with no public signal. This alert is issued when an air attack on the United States has been identified but the direction of the attack has not been determined nor is the probable strength of the enemy attacking force known.

2. Blue Signal—for dissemination to the public. This signal is given when the air raider's direction has been determined, and the alerted area is along the route or within the probable zone of the enemy force. This alert marshals all civil defense forces. Warning: continuous signal of two minutes duration at a steady pitch.

3. Red Signal—This alert to the public is given when an air attack on the alerted area is probable within eight minutes. Warning: a signal of three minutes duration consisting of either a fluctuating or warbling signal or varying pitch by horn or whistle.

4. White Signal—This alert provides the "all-clear." There is no immediate danger of an enemy attack on area concerned. Warning: a series of three one-minute steady blasts by siren, horn or whistle separated by periods of two minutes of silence.

Local civil defense directors were instructed by Colonel Wilkinson that under no circumstances, except in actual emergency, are sirens to be sounded, even in formal tests, except as authorized by the local director and after he has given wide spread advance notice to the public.

General Lucius D. Clay, chairman of the state civil defense commission, directed the newly formed transportation executive committee to proceed a once to prepare plans for the co-ordination of all transportation facilities in the state in event of an emergency.

The work of his committee includes defense measures for rail, air, bus, truck, and water transportation lines within the state.

Changes in Social Security Law Explained

Sweeping changes in the Social Security law affecting thousands of people in this area are announced by Chester R. Norman, manager of the Social security Administration office at Jamestown.

Among the major changes are the greatly increased benefits payable, liberalized eligibilty requirements, extension of coverage to groups not now protected, and wage credits to World War II servicemen for the period of military service.

The level of benefits is roughly double the amounts previously payable. For retired workers who are already on the benefit rolls, the range of benefits would be between $20.00 and $72.50 per month. Mr. Norman emphasized the fact that the increase in benefits to these people will be made automatic and no inquiry need be made at the field office.

The liberalized eligibility hequirements provide for a "new start" in determining an insured status. The new law requires quarters of coverage for only one half of the number of calender quarters since 1950 and before age 65 or death. Such quarters may include those earned before 1951 with a minimum of six quarters of coverage.

Coverage extended to groups not previously covered include employees of non-profit organizations, certain employees in domestic service, employees of State or local governments not under an existing retirement system will be covered through agreement between States and the Federal Security Agency, and certain emplayees engaged in agricultural work. Except for farmers and certain professional groups, the self-employed are covered by the new law.

The new law gives servicemen wage credits of $160.00 for each month of military service performed during the World War II period.

All monthly insurance checks now being paid will be increased beginning with the September checks according to Mr. Norman. He stated that under the terms of the old Social Security law beneficiaries in this area would have received about $147,194.00 for the month of September. Under the new increases total payments for the month are estimated to be about $265,366.00.

Under the new law the amount of earnings which a beneficiary may make in a month, and still accept his insurance payment for that month, is raised from $14.99 to $50.00. After attaining the age of 75, a beneficiary may accept his check regardless of the amount of his earnings.

A very important aspect of the new law is the more liberal qualifying conditions. Mr. Norman pointed out that any person now 65 or over who has at least six "quarters of coverage" may be immediately eligible for monthly benefits. A quarter of coverage is a calendar three month period since 1936 in which a person has earned $50 or more in covered employment. This will affect approximately 1000 persons in the Jamestown area who had once filed claims for Social Security benefits but had not at that time been able to qualify for the reason that their employment was insufficient under the old law. The Jamestown office has reviewed their records and will send letters to these persons notifying them that benefits may now be payable. A new application must be filed.
