Missions at Your Door

The 1950 missionary convention of the Christian and Missionary Alliance church brings to Andover Rev. A. M. Sluyter of Peru and Miss L. Hillman of French West Africa.

REV. A. M. SLUYTER

Indians have been the chief concern of Rev. Sluyter, as he worked in his mission station 16,000 feet up' in the Andes mountains.

Africa's open sores have been in part attended to by the faithful work of Miss Hillman. She was placed in charge of a medical station and preached the Gospel to these needy people. Miss Hillman has travelled from Gao and Timbustu to Bouake and Manou.

Orphan babies were brought to the mission for many reasons. Often the babies were children of mothers who had just died. The superstition against such a practice often resulted in the starvation of the babies. The belief was "No woman should nurse the child of a dead woman; if she does, all her children will die and she will never have another baby of her own."

Both missionaries have with them slides of their mission fields which will be shown during the convention.

The convention begins tonight at 7:30 p. m. at the Rochambeau avenue Alliance church.

County Dairymen's League Officers Elected

The annual business meeting of the Allegany County Dairymen's League was held in the Methodist church at Friendship Tuesday evening, September 19 at which time the following officers were elected.

Glenn Talbot was re-elected president, Raymond Hall was elected secretary-treasurer.

The Associate delegates selected Mrs. Nina Lewis as chairman, Mrs. Pearl Wixon as vice chairman and Mrs. William Graves as secretary and treasurer.

William Graves was elected to serve on the resolutions committee at the annual meeting to be held in Syracuse in October.

Jungle Hospitality

"Well, what do you think of the savages you met on your trip to Africa?"

"Oh! They were very kind hearted people. They wanted to keep me there for dinner."

Better Health For Children

A Community Service Issued by Children's Hospital of Buffalo, N. Y.

At this time of year colds occur often. The Children's Hospital of Buffalo cautions parents that children who have colds should be given extra care. Colds are caused by a germ so small that it can't be seen even with a strong microscope. The only known way to avoid them is to stay away from people having them which is not always possible.

A plain head cold is not a serious matter, but unless the child gets extra rest it may lower resistance so that bacteria, such as influenza, make trouble. Such bacteria is often present in healthy people but are harmless until resistance is lowered allowing them to multiply and spread. Bronchitis, pneumonia, ear and sinus infections are some of the cold complications which are often brought on in this way.

A certain amount of immunity seems to result from daily outdoor activity even in winter and by sleeping in a cool room. Dressing over-warmly is to be avoided as well as too many bed covers. The healthiest daytime house temperature is 70 degrees or less. Children who receive a well balanced daily diet do not increase their immunity by taking supplementary vitamins. Antihistamines should not be given to children except on a doctor's prescription.

Small infants seldom get colds but if they do they may have great difficulty particularly when being fed. Because their nasal passages are closed, they cannot breathe while the bottle is in their mouth. Consequently they may choke or inhale milk which can cause a severe pneumonia. Your doctor will advise how the nose may be cleared.

In case of colds or any other abnormal condition, parents should always consult their physician. His advice in the early stages of illness often prevents serious complications.

If Shakespeare were living today he might alter one of his famous sayings to read: "All the world's a quiz show and each one of us wants a prize." In keeping with the listeners' demands WWHG-FM is soon inaugurating a two-hour evening quiz show to replace the Dodger ball games.

One pound of carrots will yield about five servings.

HEALTH FOR ALL

This column is sponsored, in the interest of better health, by the Allegany Health & Tuberculosis Association, 44 Schuyler St., Belmont, N. Y.

When Feet Hurt

The successful, self-confident man and woman usually boast a graceful walk with a brisk, but easy pace. Conversely, poor posture and an awkward, shuffling gait are often characteristic of a person who has allowed discouragement or an inferiority complex to get the upper hand.

But many people whose manner of walking is clumsy or graceless simply suffer from "feet that hurt." Their "bad walk" has become characteristic because they have neglected or postponed measures to have their foot trouble corrected. While some people are born with foot troubles or deformities, most of us court foot ills by buying ill-fitting shoes and hose, ignoring simple rules of cleanliness and hygiene, and generally neglecting care of the feet.

Care of the feet should begin early in babyhood—not in adult life when painful feet drive the sufferer to the doctor. Parents should be aware that the slightest foot deformities, even in early infancy, demand medical attention and treatment. Doctors report that most unusual foot conditions of babyhood, when treated promptly, can be corrected, so that painful foot deformities are avoided.

The fit of no article of apparel is as important as shoes. Ill-fitting suits or hats, for instance, might cause temporary discomfort, but shoes that are wrong will be painful and, perhaps, cause permanent foot injury. Every pair of shoes should be bought with great care. After all, the feet literally carry the entire weight of the body and they deserve and need the best possible support.

Hose, as well as shoes, should fit properly. Wrinkled or tight hose can cause friction or pressure that results in painful blisters and sometimes infection.

Feet should be kept clean and bathed at least once a day. Cuts, blisters, or other skin irritation of the feet shuold receive prompt attention. When corns and callouses appear, they should be removed by a chiropodist. Toenails should be trimmed straight across to avoid "ingrown toenail," and not cut too short.

Persistent pain in one's feet may indicate "fallen arches," the misplacement of the bones and muscles which support the feet. This condition shuold receive prompt attention by the doctor or the foot specialist.

When feet are chronically swollen, the sufferer should see the doctor. Swollen feet can be the result of constant walking or standing, but they can also constitute a "danger signal," indicating a serious illness, such as heart disease or kidney trouble.

How to Antique

An antique finish is frequently applied to wall surfaces and furniture to produce an appearance of age and to accentuate the designs of carvings and mouldings. The material used for the purpose, generally composed of raw lumber and glazing liquid, is brushed on the surface and immediately wiped off with a cloth, working away from the center of the object toward the edges—or removing it from the high points of the carvings or mouldings. A finish coat of light varnish is usually applied.

Paper From Tobacco

Paper probably could be made from tobacco. Most organic plant materials can be used for the manufacture of paper, as a source of cellulose. In the process of chemical digestion used to obtain it, many of the other constituents are removed. Probably tobacco could be used in a similar way, though paper so made would not show many of the characteristics of tobacco, since the constituents responsible for these would be removed in the manufacturing process.

Potatoes, Please

Don't slight the spud because you're on a diet, say food marketing specialists at Cornell University. One medium-sized potato contains only 100 calories, about the same amount as a medium-sized orange. Compared to rich desserts, which as a rule have 3 or 4 times that number, the potato is scarcely any help in boosting poundage. Potatoes, what's more, have vitamins B-1 and C, and some iron. These potato facts and many more are included in a new leaflet, "Potatoes, Large Medium or Small," authored by Mrs. Lola T. Dudgeon, New York State College of Home Economics, and Miss Mary B. Wood, New York State College of Agriculture, both at Cornell.

Furniture Wash

Whether or not you're a stickler for fall housecleaning, you may be interested to know that wood furniture with a good quality varnish finish can be washed to remove the dingy film that accumulates over a period of time.

Use a mixture of 1 quart of hot water, 3 tablespoons of boiled linseed oil, and 1 tablespoon of turpentine. As you work with the mixture, keep it hot over hot water in a double boiler. Dampen a clean cloth—do not have it dripping wet as the moisture might get into the joints and soften the glue. Wipe off the wood surfaces until they are clean, wipe dry, and polish with a clean, dry, soft cloth. This solution is not recommended for a shellac finish nor a finish of poor quality varnish.

Good Cooks

By-guess-and-by-golly methods of cooking may have been fine in grandmother's day when all cooks learned the hard way. But the modern method is to use tested recipes, measure accurately, and follow directions exactly. That doesn't mean that you can't use imagination or experiment in cooking. Often the best cooks are the ones with originality. Good cooks, however, are seldom, if ever, careless cooks.

Now that the wingless chicken has been developed, let's hope someone learns how to keep money from flying too.
