ALLENTOWN NIPS PANTHERS 4-2

Last Friday afternoon the Allentown Eagles invaded Andover to take a close, hard-fought decision from the Panthers by a 4-2 score.

The first half was very gruelling with the ball being in Allentown territory most of the time. Andover had repeated shots at the goal but couldn't score.

In the second half Allentown drove two field goals through while Wayne Atwell kicked two penalty kicks between the goal posts.

The Panthers fought desperately in the final minutes but they couldn't score thus the game ended with them on the short end of a 4-2 score.

BE YOURSELF

By Eunice Hall

Be yourself! Yes, that is a good statement, but what does it mean? I can be myself but I do not know what I am. Don't be a copy-cat and try to be someone you aren't or do something you can't do unless you do it like another person. Develop your own personality to benefit you, as if you were going out to buy something new in the line of clothes or sporting equipment. You buy new clothes that go well with your characteristics and you buy a football, because you like to play with it.

Allow your friends to be themselves. Don't expect them to agree with you or always have to explain why they made their decision.

Don't keep score on your friends by doing favors only when they have done things for you by inviting them over to your house after they have had you over, or by taking them skating because they took you. Don't be afraid to ask your friends to go with you before you are asked by them.

The way to make and keep friends is to act naturally. Be yourself.

Up went a hand in the front row. "Well, John?" she encouraged.

"The porcupine!" triumphed Johnny.

COMMUNITY LETTERS

From News Correspondents

Elm Valley

(Mrs. Nellie Mead, Reporter)

Sept. 26—A new unit of the Home Bureau was organized at the school house Wednesday afternoon with a good attendance. The officers are: Chairman, Rosemary Wightman; vice-chairman, Nellie Mead; secretary, Janice Day. The unit will meet the second and fourth Wednesday of each month. A special meeting will be held Wednesday afternoon, October 4 at the school house for those interested. Come so as to pay your dues.

Betty Agett of Franklinville spent the week-end with Doris Atwell, who was home from her work in Franklinville.

A variety shower was held in the school house for Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Snitzler (Lucille Cole). A good attendance was present and the couple received many gifts. Lunch was served with a large wedding cake.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Wightman and children spent Sunday with her parents in Knapps Creek.

STATE GRANGE Sessions are getting closer. Last week we took a trip down to the southern tier city of Elmira, where the 5-day convention will be held, to see how plans were progressing for entertaining Grange members from all over the state in what will probably be the largest session ever held in New York.

A large church, with a seating capacity of 1200, will be the scene of most of the activities of the week with the exception of the 6th degree at the armory. Both the church and the armory are within two short blocks of the headquarters hotel and are all in the downtown area and easily reached.

DRAFT EXEMPTIONS for farm workers are the same as those adopted in 1948. A farm worker of draft age can receive an occupational deferment if he is a full time employe on a farm which produces a substantial quantity of commodities for marketing purposes. This means that the farm has to be larger than a small family operation. Another requirement is that the worker cannot be easily replaced either because of his skill or the supply of workers. Final decision on deferment cases is left up to the local Draft Boards. Revisions are being worked out by the National Grange in cooperation with the United States Department of Agriculture and other interested organizations.

COMMUNITY SERVICE Contest for 1951 is currently being announced by National Grange Master, Albert S. Goss, in the form of a new booklet being mailed to all Subordinate Masters and secretaries. The 1950 contest, just coming to a close, has demonstrated that participation has had a direct effect on increased membership within those Granges who carried out one of more community service projects. This is a broad hint to our Grange leaders throughout the state.

Hogs to Them

A young lawyer, pleading his first case, had been retained by a farmer to prosecute a railroad company for killing 24 hogs. He wanted to impress the jury with the magnitude of the injury.

"Twenty-four hogs, gentlemen! Twenty-four! Twice the number there are in the jury box!"

Better Health For Children

A Community Service Issued by Children's Hospital of Buffalo, N. Y.

Parents are often disturbed because their baby sucks his thumb. The Children's Hospital of Buffalo points out that sucking is a natural instinct for infants. It is an actual need for many months and is stronger in some babies than in others. Sometimes it is better temporarily to postpone weaning a baby in order to satisfy his sucking needs. All babies try to get their hands into their mouth when they're hungry, teething or uncomfortable. This is perfectly natural and should not cause alarm.

Today dentists generally agree that although thumb sucking after baby teeth come pushes them outward, they later straighten themselves with no damage to permanent teeth or jaw. Restraints, such as metal mits or splints, should not be used. They only frustrate the child, which is bad for him, and rarely break the habit. In most cases, children stop sucking their thumb by the time they're six years old.

In older children, thumb sucking is usually a sign of some emotional disturbance, frustration, boredom or fatigue. It is the child's way of comforting himself. In such cases parents should try to find the cause and correct it rather than nag, bribe or punish the child. The less the undesirable habit is discussed the sooner it will usually stop.

It does no good to ask a child why he sucks his thumb. He probably can't tell you. Watch to see that in addition to an adequate diet he has enough affection, attention and interest shown him at home and that he has the right kind of companionship. If these things are as they should be, but he still persists in sucking his thumb, Children's Hospital advises that you consult your doctor or a child psychiatrist.

Program for Fox Trapping Will Be Held This Year

The county fox trapping program for 4-H Club and Future Farmers of America boys will be conducted again this season by the groups sponsoring it a year ago. These groups include the Sportsmen's Federation of the county, 4-H Clubs, F. F. of A., Extension Services, Soil Conuservation Service, New York State Conservation Department bureau of game. The contest will continue from October 15 to December 15.

Over 100 prizes of various kinds will be awarded to the boys catching the most foxes under this program. Demonstration meetings for training boys how to make their sets, etc., will be held the last week in September and the first week in October under the direction of Richard E. Hyde, Olean, district game manager.
