GRANGE ITEMS of interest to all members and friends of agriculture have been piling up a little faster than we can find room for each week, so with your forbearance, and continued attention, we will rapidly clean up our file on about six quickies:

FARM VACATIONS are being made possible for city guests who would like to occupy that spare bedroom at some farm home this summer. An organization working out of New York City, with the blessing of the National Grange, is taking bookings through all of the northeastern states. As National Master Goss says, "The potential good in promoting greater understanding between city and country people is tremendous. Anyone wanting information should write to Farm Vacations, 500 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

BIRDSFOOT TREFOIL poem, one of Grange's 1950 farm projects, has come our way, and while we're no judge of poetry, we know the spirit is wholly there. State Lecturer Florence Fickett is the author:

"My blossom is yellow, perhaps you have heard;
My seed pod resembles the foot of a bird.
My leaves are of the leguminous type,
A dessert for old bossy, morning or night.
I'm found in a meadow, on hill side or plain,
With feet wet or dry, I grow just the same.
Should you ask gentle cow what roughage she'd like,
'B-Trefoil' she'll moo-moo, with all her might."

FARM PROGRAM outlined by Brother Goss at Washington is getting splendid support, with favorable comment coming in from all over the country. Typical remarks: ". . . thing I like about your program is what you are not calling names, just plugging our own." Another writes, "We have been looking for something positive for a long time. This is it." Still another: "You have given us something to fight with." This is important ir view of the fact that the Grange was the first farm organization to come out with a practical and definite program, of benefit to farmer, consumer, wage earner and industry alike.

FLOATER POLICY on your farm equipment, machinery and livestock is now available. First time any Grange organization was able to furnish such. You may have heard of this couple of months ago, but now is the time to see your local Grange representative about it.

"THE GRANGE-Friend of the Farmer" has sold over 10,000 since it came off the presses last year. That's not a drop in the milk bucket. Many Grange members haven't even seen a copy of this history. Get your copies now; there's a rate for six or more. It's a must.

P. C. Berkwater Retires From Erie

Announcement is made that effective April 1, P. C. Berkwater, former Erie station agent at Andover, retired after 47 years of service with the Erie.

Mr. Berkwater came to Andover in 1914 from Mt. Jewett, and was transferred to Salamanca in 1917. In the ensuing years he served at Hornell and Jersey City before going to Buffalo where he has been for the last 22 years.

Mr. Berkwater plans to return to his home town of Kane, where he will devote his time to his hobby of growing roses. He now has 45 rose bushes at his Kenmore home.

While in Andover "Berk" was active in baseball, playing first base with the Andover team.

This is the season when each growing thing
Confirms belief in immortality:
The sap creeps up in shrub and vine and tree
While greening, weeping willows seem to sing.
They carol bright new promises of spring.
Of flowers and fruitage soon to be
As nature puts aside frugality
Exuberant with life's wakening.
No human hand can hold in check the power
That brings new life where death had seemed to reign;
There is a stirring in earth's dormant womb,
A quickening that strengthens with each hour
Until triumphant, life bursts forth again
Leaving behind a broken, empty tomb. —Bessie Wolvington

No Such Mistake for Him

The Stingiest Man was scoring the hired man for his extravagance in wanting to carry a lantern in going to call on his best girl.

"The idea!" he scoffed. "When I was courtin' I never carried no lantern; I went in the dark."

The hired man proceeded to fill the lantern. "Yes," he said sadly, "and look what you got."
