"You say you were once cast away on a desert island, entirely without food. How did you survive?"

"Oh, I happened to have an insurance policy in my pocket and I found enough provisions in it to keep me alive until I was rescued."

Barber: "What's the matter? Ain't the razor takin' holt?"

Victim: "Yeah, it's taking holt all right, but it ain't lettin' go again."

A Wardrobe for the Kiddies

"Don't track up the floor! Be careful with your wet mittens!" Are those familiar words around your house? If so, you may welcome a suggestion from specialists at the New York State College of Home Economics at Cornell.

Their advice is to fit up an old wardrobe with shelves and hooks low enough for the children to reach. Add swinging towel bars for wet mittens and gloves. You will want to be sure that the closet has good ventilation to prevent musty odors from damp outdoor clothing. So for ventilation, bore holes at the top and bottom of the sidewalls or in the door of the cabinet. Or cut a narrow strip off the top and bottom of the door. Place the cabinet near the door the children use, and have a chair close by where they can sit down to take off their rubbers or overshoes.
