13 County Herds Produce Over 40 Pounds Butterfat

Thirteen dairy herds scattered over Allegany county averaged more than 40 pounds butterfat per cow during January, according to tests of the County Dairy Herd Improvement Association.

The records came from 137 herds, made by six testers. Fourteen herds averaged between 35 and 40 pounds, 24 herds between 30 and 35 pounds. The averages follow:

Merwin & Sons of Fillmore, produced 13,450 pounds milk, 663 pounds fat. A five-year-old grade Brown Swiss, same herd, produced 12,760 pounds milk, 601 pounds fat.

Pittsburgh Press Chronicles Death of Mrs. Muriel Sheppard

We reprint the following from the February 7th issue of The Pittsburgh Press, concerning the late Mrs. Muriel Sheppard formerly of Andover:

Woman Author Dies at Fairmont

Funeral services were to be today in Fairmont, W. Va., for Mrs. Muriel Earley Sheppard, 52, well-known author and former Pittsburgher, who died Monday.

Mrs. Sheppard's death came as she was waiting to put the final touches on her first novel, "Cumberland Mail," a story of medicine in Western Pennsylvania a century ago.

She became ill from overwork on research for it and developed anemia.

Mrs. Sheppard was the author of "Cabins in the Laurel," an account of the life in the North Carolina mountains, from which selections are used in school readers in New York, Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

In 1947 she completed "Clouds by Day," a historical work on the coke region around Uniontown. Her poetry also appeared in Carl Van Doren's "I Hear America Singing."

Mrs. Sheppard lived in Pittsburgh for some time when her husband, Mark Sheppard, was on the staff of the U. S. Bureau of Mines. Later they lived at Uniontown and at Barracksville, W. Va., near Fairmont.

Potato Show At Wellsville Next Week, Feb. 22-23

When counties of two states combine for a two-day potato show they use a good climax to top off the first day. For the third year, Allegany county, New York and Potter county, Pennsylvania, are putting efforts together to produce an educational program at Wellsville high school next Thursday and Friday, February 22 and 23 and have arranged for their annual banquet on the evening of February 22 at 7 o'clock.

William Hodnett of Fillmore, widely known grower of seed potatoes will be chairman at the bi-county banquet and Hugh Cosline, associate editor of the American Agriculturist will be the capable toastmaster.

HERBERT HARRISON
Banquet Speaker

"Just What the Doctor Ordered" will be the title chosen by Herbert Harrison, main speaker of the evening. Mr. Harrison, a former Brooklynite, has enjoyed good audiences among civic, religious, professional and educational groups and comes highly recommended for his inspiration, homespun philosophy and humor. Baked ham is the main banquet dish.

Professors from Cornell and Penn State, outstanding businessmen and leading farmers will join forces to present a wide range of subject matter at the Winter Potato Show, sponsored by civic groups, business establishments and growers.

Growers from the two counties will exhibit their best to compete for cups and prize money and then join with the interested city and country folk in this area in viewing the trade show, going to the annual banquet and attending the educational program.

Of special interest to the ladies will be a skit "Do Unto Others", which will be on the program for the afternoon of February 22.

Other program headliners for Thursday are: Dr. Meadows and Dr. Pratt, Cornell specialists; M. T. Fetterman of the Wise Potato Chip Company, and leading farmers from Allegany, Potter and Broome counties on a panel with varied subjects entitled "Here's What I Do."
