BASE RUNNING

By Eunice Hall

The subject of base running deals with all the movements by the offensive team, or by the individuals, who advance runners all the way around the bases until runs are scored.

Good base running can serve as a great part of a team's offense and will give a team confidence and a spirit which leads to success. Alert, timely, strategic base running will cause confusion on the part of the opposition and tend to create a condition which causes the defense to fall apart. Speed on the base paths can give the offensive team an aggressiveness which often leads to a big inning.

The ideal base runner is a student of the game. He studies the opposition and knows the strong and weak points of each opposing player. This base runner knows how much ground they cover in the field and studies the individual throwing arms from the standpoint of strength and accuracy. He learns as much as possible about the opposing pitcher's move to throw to each base, and is alert to take advantage of every opportunity when it arises, and is ready for that opportunity. The assets of the ideal base runner are speed, a knowledge of the opposition, a quick-thinking mind, and the courage to act.

Base runners should always consider themselves under control unless given a sign by the coach or manager. The situation in the game determines what risk shall be taken by the manager or coach. The situation may change wich each succeeding pitch so it is extremely important that signs be received and acknowledged promptly. In general, base runnning is always in the field of calculated risks.

Unless the risk is a necessity in winning the game, it should not be taken.

HARVEY

After seeing Harvey skip and hop about at Easter maybe we should call him Peter Cottontail or the Easter Bunny.

Harvey decided that in his column this week he would have something different as long as there wasn't any school.

Harvey wants to know: What would happen if?

"Jim" Padden weren' so silly?

"Jim" Conde grew a few inches?

Frank Cornish weren't down by the windows?

Mickey Baker weren't teasing the girls?

Volley ball team won county championship?

Marion Milligan was not writing to Don?

Pat Sackett grew ten inches.

John Atwell were not going with Doris Burdick?

Dale Green were not at locker 259 to meet Charity?

Charity Howland did not have rosy cheeks?

Anita Nichols were not called "Red?"

Mary Brown and Doug Wheaton were going together?

Margaret Daley told us who the man of her dreams is?

Vic Daley did not go down Chestnut street so often?

Lois Ruger did not go to Hornell over the week-end?

Carl Atwell did not write to Shirley Baker?

Well, now wasn't this different? Harvey thinks so.

A. C. S. STUDENTS ATTEND FARM AND HOME WEEK

On Monday, March 19, many Ag. boys with their advisor, Mr. Bronson, journeyed to Cornell University to attend Farm and Home Week.

The boys were especially interested in the dairy, horse and poultry barns. They attended different lectures during the day on different parts of the campus.

The girls who went on the Tuesday found the sewing, cooking, modeling finger painting, child care and flower arrangements very interesting. The girls attended lectures on home furnishings, frozen foods, and appropriate styles for the spring clothes.

Both groups were immensely interested in the new Statler Hall which they read about in the March Digest. It was a huge brick building with modern lighting devices and spacious windows. The course taken at Statler Hall is a four year course with a major in the different duties in a hotel. There are huge student lounges, faculty clubs, dinning rooms, kitchens, lecture halls and one large auditorium.

Most of the money for the building was given by Mr. Statler, owner of the Statler Hotels.

CUBS OUTSCORE OPPONENTS 452-378

By Dean Fisher

When the final statistics were compiled for the year I discovered that Carlyle Carmody's Cubs had piled up 452 points as compared with 378 for their opponents in posting a 10-4 record.

The Junior Varsity boys got off to a great start and they won their first eight games in a row. The Cubs moved the ball very well and had a fine pass and cut system which worked to great advantage.

The Cub regulars showed "Cannonball" Connor and "Blockbuster" Vickers at the guards, "Jet" Jackson in the pivot, and "Skyview" Harkenrider and "Whizzer" Howland at the forward posts.

Slim "Skyview" Harkenrider the Cub's rangy, high-scoring ace, led the scoring race with 156 markers, which is a new Cub scoring record and his 30 points in the season's opener was a new single game scoring record.

Speedy "Whizzer" Howland, Harkenrider's scrappy running mate, was second high with 79 points.

IRA BLIXT, County Agent

Robert Stowell, Chairman of the Allegany County Farm Bureau Dairy Committee stated today that he was very pleased with the "More Milk Cosumption" meeting that was held at the Court House, Tuesday evening, March 20th.

The purpose of this meeting, was to point out the importance of the dairy industry in Allegany County and encourage proprietors of restaurants, diners, etc., to promote the consumption of milk in their respective places of business. Mr. Stowell said, "What is good for the farmer, is good for all businessmen in Allegany County."

A very interesting program was presented to about fifty proprietors and milk distributors. Ralph Eastwood, Secretary of the N. Y. S. Milk for Health Program discussed the milk promotion program that is being done on a State and Nation-wide basis, through the Milk for Health Committee, which was organized in New York State approximately two years ago. William Joyce a member of the Allegany County Milk for Health Committee, pointed out that Allegany County was one of the first counties to cooperate with the Milk for Health Program and that to date it is the leading county in the sign-up. There are six cooperating plants with approximately 750 dairymen cooperating. Mr. Joyce said that dairymen are already realizing the effects of the Milk for Health, Inc. Dairymen, he said, are contributing one cent per hundredweight to this program. Five-twelfths of it goes to the various milk councils for promotion through dieticians, doctors, nurses, etc., and seven-twelfths of that contrubutions goes to the American Dairy Association for National advertising purposes. Herald Ford, secretary of the Allegany County Farm Equipment Dealers, Assoc. pointed out that of every dollar that the dairyman earns, twenty - three cents is spent for machinery, so he remarked that he was vitally interested in the income of the dairyman, because out of every $100 earned. $23 would be spent for machinery, and perhaps every businessman would be comparatively effected. Mr. Ford urged all businessmen to cooperate in this program. The chairman concluded the meeting by offering attractive posters to all who were present and suggested that they take some along for other restaurant proprietors. They also expressed the hope that every businessman, whether he be a proprietor of a restaurant or diner support this program which is effecting the main industry of the county.

Ten years ago yellow rockett, Chickory, and wild morning glory caused Allegany County farmers little or no alarm, but now controlling weeds is an important problem on most farms, according to H. Ira Blixt, county Agricultural Agent.

A few new weeds are gradually taking over once productive fields, and because of the widespread appearance of weeds, hand pulling weeds by the farm family is now out-dated.

Prof. S. N. Fertig, Cornell weed Specialist, states "there are specific steps farmers can take to partially control weeds in their fields, but we do not have all the answers on weed control.

"Chemical weed control has much to offer. Although good results can be obtained on certain weeds and brush by using such chemicals as 2, 4-D and 2, 4,-5-T, these chemicals cannot preform miracles."

Agent Blixt emphasized that the kind of chemicals, amounts, and time of application are important in controlling weeds in crops. Certain crops can be damaged if proper precautions are not exercised.

He reported that he has a supply of the new leaflet "Chemical Weed Control Recommendations" at his office in the Court House at Belmont. "Any farmer desiring facts on how to control weeds by using chemicals will find this free literature helpful."
