Erie Centennial Train to Stop In Wellsville

Fourteen cities in southern New York will be visited by the Erie Railroad's Centennial Train on May 14-15. Combining modern and old-fashioned equipment the Centennial Train will reenact the historic inaugural excursions of 1851 when the Erie completed its original line between Piermont-on-Hudson and Dunkirk-on-Lake Erie.

At Wellsville the Reenactment Party will be greeted by Mayor Martin, accompanied by Charles W. Fuller of the Chamber of Commerce. The "Webster flat car" will stop at the Erie Station. The train will arrive there on Tuesday, May 15, at 1:50 and leave at 2 o'clock, Daylight Saving Time.

Adhering to the original schedule, the Reenactment will begin with a boat ride up the Hudson River from lower Manhattan to Piermont, where a part of 150 guests and railroad officials will transfer to the novel Centennial train. The first day's journey lists brief stops at Suffern, Middletown, Port Jervis, Deposit, Susquehanna and Binghamton before stopping for the night at Elmira. Stops on the second day's run will be made at Corning, Hornell, Olean and Salamanca, as well as Wellsville, before ending the trip at Dunkirk.

Elmira will be the scene of a civic banquet as part of a city-wide celebration recreating the festivities which took place a century ago. Dunkirk, also will declare a holiday to reenact the famous hospitality of 1851 when whole oxen were roasted in one of the most staggering displays of food ever produced. At Deposit several ceremonies will commemorate the first breaking of ground for the railroad's construction. At Corning the Reenactment party will tour the permanent exhibition building of the Corning Glass Works.

At each city the local ceremonies will consist of brief addresses by the Mayor and Paul W. Johnston, Erie president. Another speaker will be "Daniel Webster," who as Secretary of State in 1851, made the journey seated on a rocking chair bolted to a flat car. Webster, played by a well-known actor, will once again ride on his famous flat car, on which the local ceremonies will take place.

The Webster flat car will be part of the old-fashioned portion of the Reenactment Train. Along with it will be the "William Mason", an actual working engine of the 1851 era with its baggage-car and coach. This equipment will be mounted on flat cars.

Between Piermont and Suffern, a distance of 16 miles, the Centennial train will be composed of the old-fashioned equipment and ten caboose giving the party an opportunity to get the authentic flavor of real railroading. At Suffern eight of the cabooses will be replaced by modern lounge cars and other up-to-date equipment, providing a contrast with the "William Mason" train of a century ago.

Governor Dewey to Open Glass Center May 19

Sponsors of the new Corning Glass Center have announced that Governor Thomas E. Dewey will formally open the Glass Center on Saturday, May 19, at 12:30 p. m. Present at the ceremony in an audience of approximately 1800 will be a group of 100 national and international leaders of the industrial, labor, scientific, educational and cultural fields who will be in Corning for the Conference on "Living in Industrial Civilization," which begins May 17 and winds up its sessions just before the Governor's address.

This conference is the first event to be held at the new Glass Center, which is a striking new building of steel and glass designed by Harrison and Abramovitz, architects distinguished for their work in Rockefeller Center and the United Nations Headquarters. In addition to its auditorium, the Glass Center includes a library containing the most comprehensive collection of books on glass in the world, and a museum displaying a superb collection of glass objects, from ancient Egyptian times through to the present day. The Regents of the State of New York last week granted a charter to the museum.

Another feature of the building is a complete glass factory with visitors' galleries, from which may be seen the highly-skilled processes of blowing, forming and engraving glass entirely by hand.

For ten days following the formal opening by Governor Dewey, the building will be reserved for previews by company employees and their families and by local residents. Doors will be opened to the general public on Decoration Day, May 30, and daily thereafter except Mondays.

Police Bureau Sponsor "Check Your Car" Drive

Police Officer Albert Rogers calls attention of all automobile owners to the "Check-Your-Car" campaign which is being sponsored during the month of May by the Police Bureau of the State Division of Safety, and urges cooperation in this movement which has for its objective a reduction in the number of motor vehicle accidents.

"Every driver wants to avoid accidents. Every driver wants to operate a safe car and most of us think our cars are safe," Officer Rogers said. "Mechanical defects which are often considered of minor importance, however, may contribute to the cause of an accident. I have in mind such conditions as out-of-focus lights, worn tires, defective windshield wipers, cracked windows and windshield, no tail light or stop light and such things. Bad brakes warn us of their condition every time we touch the brake pedal but other conditions are not quite so apparent.

"The best way to discover if the car we drive needs attention is to have it safety checked. Any unsafe conditions found should then be corrected. The cooperation of all motorists in this "Check-Your-Car" campaign is bound to pay dividends in the form of reduced accidents."

Don't put it off. Do It!

New fiction in our Library

The Whole Armor, by Faith Baldwin. From St. Paul comes the title of this book. Paul Lennox, the pastor of a large New York City church, has a very warm interest in the problems of his congregation. He stuggles to be a tolerant, understanding human being in his fight against sin. His faith brings him safely through his own great trial and affliction.

Candlemas Boy, by Ruth Moore, author of Spoon Handle and the Fire Balloon. This is the story of life in a Maine sea coast town of the Ellis family and of Jen who faces the problem of raising her fatherless family of six children. This book is the literary guild selection for April.

The Faith of Mrs. Kelleen, by Katherine Flannigan, who was the heroine of "Mrs. Mike." It's the true story based on the life of "Mrs. Mike's" great aunt. It happened in Ireland 80 years ago. Young Rory Kelleen was accused of murder and from that moment his mother's every act is based on freeing her son from prison. It is a warm and dramatic story.
