Fertilize Farm Ponds Now for Fish Production

Now is the time to fertilize your farm pond for maximum fish production. Robert A. Reed, District Conservationist, reports that the over 200 farm ponds in Allegany County which are suitable for stocking fish, should be fertilized now in accordance with the following recomendations.

"Apply commercial - fertilizer of the analysis 8-8-4, secured at your local source of supply at the rate of 100 pounds per surface acre every 10 days until the water reaches a dark green color. You can tell when the color is dark enough by placing a silver dollar about 12 inches below the surface. If you can still see it, you'll need another application of fertilizer. Those applications should be at ten day intervals and on the average, an acre pond would require from 1000 to 1200 pounds of fertilizer per season. Fertilizer placed in a pond accomplishes three things. First it greatly increases the food for the fish; second, it controls submerged pond woods; and third, it makes fishing more successful. For these reasons you should fertilize your farm pond. A pond that is always muddy or one that becomes muddy with every rain cannot be fertilized successfully. Farmers are urged to stock their ponds in accordance with the recommendations of the Soil Conservation Service and the Allegany County Soil Conservation District, and to fertilize them properly for the most prolonged, successful use of the pond."

If you have any questions concerning your farm fish pond program, please feel free to contact the Soil Conservation District office at the Court House in Belmont.

Dr. Scholes Honored

Dr. S. R. Scholes, Sr., Associate Dean of the State College of Ceramics at Alfred was twice honored last week.

The students of Alfred University honored Dr. Scholes by dedicating this year's college year book, the Kanagadea, to him in honor of his 19 years as an instructor and administrator of the College of Ceramics.

Dr. Scholes was also appointed last week as a visiting delegate to the International Commission on Glass to be held in Paris, June 5-9. Dr. Scholes will represent the American Ceramic Society at the Paris Meeting.

Compound Interest

"So you met Marian today?"

"Yes, I hadn't seen her for ten years."

"Has she kept her girlish figure?"

"Kept it? She's doubled it."

Better Health For Children

A Community Service Issued by Children's Hospital of Buffalo, N. Y.

Recently in the course of just one week, nine children were admitted to the Children's Hospital having swallowed various kinds of medicines. Seven had eaten aspirin tablets. Three children in one family gulped down unknown quantities and were admitted together. Another child who had swallowed 50 grains, an overdose even for an adult, was not brought to the hospital until the following day but most fortunately was revived.

Dr. Charles Kennedy, resident pediatrician, said that the commonest cause of death among children is accidents, of which swallowing medicines, household remedies and cleaning materials is among the most frequent. During the past six months children have been admitted to the hospital after swallowing such things as worm medicine, strychnine, moth flakes, turpentine, Air Wick, kerosene, paper matches and crayons in addition to aspirin.

"These near tragedies could be stopped if parents could buy a metal box equipped with lock and key for all medicines," Dr. Kennedy said. "Household Cleaning supplies should be kept on a high shelf beyond reach and the child's ability to climb should not be underestimated. Candy flavored pills, especially aspirin, have their place in medicine if prescribed by a physician, but they are extremely dangerous if left around the house. Be safe—lock them up."

If you suspect that your child has swallowed something harmful, call your doctor at once. If he wants to see the child, be sure to take along the container and remains of whatever has been swallowed so he can determine its contents to prescribe an antidote. Parents are urged against giving remedies before the doctor has seen the child.

Naturalism in the Kitchen

The modern trend in kitchens is toward a room that not only is well-equipped for cooking and baking, but is large and friendly enough to attract the whole family. That's probably why modern decorators have veered away from vivid colors and glossy surfaces. A room to live in must be restful, not exciting.

They call this new trend "American naturalism." Wood paneling, real brick or real stonework are used for the walls instead of such artificial materials as tile, wallpaper, or glossy paints. And natural walls have advantages. They soften the streamline effect of white kitchen equipment and, even more important, they don't show soil as quickly as wallpaper or tile.

Yes "naturalism" is a throwback to great grandmother's day before kitchen decoration was considered important. But great grandmother's "undecorated" kitchen was the favorite room in the home. It's worth considering.

Buttonholes that March

By the buttonholes you shall know them—the good seamstresses from the bad. That's what clothing specialists say. If the buttonholes on your new spring cotton are supposed to march in a horizontal line down the front of your dress, make sure that they march straight and true; they mustn't straggle.

Specialists from the U. S. Bureau of Home Economics have offered a few hints on the subject of buttonhole making. Here they are:

1. Mark the lines for horizontal buttonholes, starting 1|16th of an inch past center front. Measure and mark a perfect line-up—all buttonholes the same distance apart, and are parallel to the waist.

2. Worked buttonholes are the best choice for a wash dress since they are stronger; bound buttonholes make an attractive finish for dressy rayons, wools, and silks.

For an Evener Crust

Quick mix hot bread can dress up a company meal, if its handsome brown crust is smooth and even. But it's not nearly so company-ish if the crust cracks down the middle.

And that crack down the middle isn't just a matter of bad luck, say specialists. Here's what you can do to prevent it: Fill your pan just two-thirds full and spoon in more batter at the sides than in the center. Then turn a second pan upside down over the batter. Bake the bread thus covered for 20 minutes and remove the pan to finish the baking. If you follow those direction, your bread should come out of the oven with a flat, evenly-browned crust, quite free from those disfiguring gullies.

Nylon for Summer

A nylon dress for summer? If you decide to buy or to make one, remember that nylon is not a cool fabric. So you will want to select a style that allows air circulation. Cap sleeves and an open neck are likely to be more comfortable than puffed sleeves that are tight around the arm or a high neck that hugs the throat. A loose blouse and a wide skirt are also a better choice for summer nylon than are the form-fitting styles.

Before You Launder, Read the Label

Corn, coal, air, glass—what are your textiles made of? It's difficult to tell, of course, when so many new fabrics come to market and even the old standbys have a new look. That's why it's important, say specialists, to hear the labels and washing or cleaning instructions attached to garments when you buy them, and to follow directions carefully.

Cottons may look like silk or nylons like wool. Vicara, a newcomer soon to make its bow, is a soft, cashmere-like fibre made from corn. Vicara loses strength when wet so it has to be handled carefully in the laundry. Then there's a fabric called orlon that has the quick-drying quality of nylon but is more resistant to strong sunlight. Fiberglass used in draperies and glass curtains won't stand rubbing when laundered but when properly handled dries without a wrinkle. White nylons tends to yellow in hot water, and all nylon is weakened by prolonged exposure to strong sunlight.

With every fabric an individualist, you can see why it's important for you to know your goods and read your labels.

Used rear attached Dearborn 7 ft. mower, a late model	$225.00
Used Dearborn bean puller for a Ford or Ford Ferguson tractor	$90.00

If you have not seen the new DEARBORN ECONOMY PLOW, come in and ask for a demonstration of this new plow sensation. Like all Dearborn Moldboard Plows it can be attached to the Ford Tractor in 60 seconds! It lifts and lowers by Ford Tractor Hydraulic Touch Control. It adds "weight" and traction to the Ford Tractor—and thereby contributes directly to the performance of the Ford Tractor itself!

Since the Ford Tractor carries this plow, in effect the rear wheels of the tractor become wheels for the plow. So the plow has no wheels, or axle. It has no tongue, no control levers, clutch, coil springs or shear pins. The steel shares for this plow are cheaper than most cast shares, $2.35 each in boxes of six.
