Stock Car Races At Wellsville Saturday Night

Miles Gorsuch and Robert Mitchell of Andover are expected to be among the 50 drivers who will enter stock cars in the first night racing card scheduled at the Wellsville Raceway on Saturday night of this week.

Closed since June 10 when the directors of the raceway voluntarily closed their track in compliance of the much disputed Blue Laws prohibiting Sunday racing, the fast Wellsville track has been equipped with floodlights which will make it possible to race at night.

Installed at considerable expense, the floodlights will illuminate the track with a total of over 51,000 watts which engineers promise will be adequate light for excellent vison on the part of drivers and spectators alike.

It has also been revealed that the Atlantic Stock Car Association, with whom the raceway has an agreement, has opened racing to "modified stocks" which means that faster cars will be appearing at the Wellsville track. According to an authoritative source modified stock cars may be equipped with high lift cams, motor block may be bored out and other alterations made to improve speed.

The Saturday night program will include a total of seven races, with a 20 lap feature race topping the evening's entertainment. Starting time is 8:00 o'clock.
