Better Health For Children

A Community Service Issued by Children's Hospital of Buffalo, N. Y.

The Children's Hospital reminds parents that the return-to-school season usually brings with it an increase in accidents. Traffic presents a special hazard to small children; autumn sports may result in injury to older ones; and bonfires invariably tempt children of all ages.

During the past summer, Buffalo experienced what amounted to an epidemic of traffic accidents involving children. As youngsters return from camps and summer resorts, this situation is apt to become more serious. Constant reminding is needed to impress children with the danger of darting out into the street from between parked cars. Absorbed in their play, children tend to become forgetful of precautions. This is entirely normal and should be anticipated. It is up to parents to remind children continually of street hazards. Youngsters starting school should be accompanied for a while so that they learn the danger spots and not to cross the street except at a corner in accordance with the traffic signal or policeman. In rural areas where there are no sidewalks, they should be taught to walk at the side of the road and face traffic. Those who ride bicycles should avoid crowded highways and never be allowed to ride after dark.

All children are interested in bonfires and should be given supervised instruction and warning in this regard. Use of inflammable liquids such as gasoline or kerosene, should be forbidden and they should be warned against throwing empty cans on a fire in case their former contents were combustible.

Autumn also stimulates interest among older children in hunting ond guns. Air fifles are illegal in most communities and children should be taught to respect the law. In order to promote safe handling of firearms and an interest in the sport of hunting, many organizations, such as the Boy Scouts, gun, and athletic clubs sponsor classes for children. This is the safest method of introducing them to the proper use of guns.

Band Finals at Wellsville Raceway

Finals in the area band contest which has been sponsored by officials of the Wellsville Raceway are scheduled to be held Saturday night of this week prior to the regular program of stock car racing.

Incomplete tabulations show the Scio Band and the Rushford Band to be leading but the final tally will not be released until later. The winner of the first elimination which will bring together the two most popular bands will result in a $100 prize to the band which secures the greatest number of votes Saturday.

In races last week, Dutch Hoag of Naples, again came through with three victories, including the 20-lap feature and also placed second in a strickly modified heat. Loren Doan of Knoxville, won first in the strickly stock heat and semi-final race. Emory Mann of Warren, Pa. won the second heat for strickly stock cars.

Nelson of Bradford managed to hold his total point lead although Dean Layfield narrowed the margin to five points. Doan moved into third place with 97 points and Egbert dropped back into fourth place.

Officials of the Atlantic Stock Car Racing Association have announced that the annual Championship race will be held on the Wellsville track, Saturday night, September 29.

Preserve Plentiful Pears

Pears are plentiful and ready for preserves. If you haven't your own favorite receipt, specialists at the New York State College of Homemaking suggest these proportions: 4 cups sliced pears, 3 cups sugar, and ½ cup of water. It's a good idea to bring water and sugar to a boil before you add the pears. Then boil the mixture for about 10 minutes or until the pears are clear and the sirup is thick.

For a spicy touch, tie 6 whole cloves in a cheescloth bag and cook with the fruit. When the preserves are done, remove the bag of cloves. Or make ginger pear preserves by adding to the water and sugar an ounce of shaved crystallized ginger.

Fair Impressions

Tips for the seamstress were plentiful in the New York State Fair Dress Revue. We hope you saw the 100 4-H ribbon winners who modeled the dresses they had made, but if not, here are some of the ideas we gleaned.

1. Fabrics with unusual textures, such as nubby surfaces or basket weave, look best made up in plain patterns. 2. A darkcolored slip under a frosted organdy brings out the design in the dress material. 3. Good partners are velvet or velveteen and plaids, whether cotton, rayon or wool. 4. Waistcoats with suits increase the suit's versatility but are meant for slim figures only. 5. An outfit of many uses consists of a sunback dress, a matching bolero, and a reddingote of a contrasting color or print.

Explained

A negro woman called regularly at a bank to draw her weekly pay. As she could neither read nor write she used to make an X on the receipt. Then one day she made a circle.

"What's the matter, Liza? Why don't you make an X as usual?"—asked the cashier.

"Well, sar," replied Liza, "Ah done got married yesterday and changed my name."
