90-Pint Quota Faces Andover in Bloodmobile Visit

A total of 90 pints of blood are needed to meet the quota when the Rochester Bloodmobile visits this community Monday October 22nd.

The blood bank center will be set up at Andover Central School. This will give residents an apportunity to donate their blood for urgent military and civilian needs, according to Mrs. Frank Holmes, local chairman.

Through this program, free blood is available to area hospitals for transfusions. The only cost to the patient, is a laboratory fee which rarely exceeds ten dollars. During the month of September 1951, Wellsville and Hornell hospitals used a total of 101 pints of blood, furnished at no charge to the recepient, except the laboratory fee. A few Andover residents received some of this blood.

A second purpose of this Rochester Blood Program is to furnish 400 pints a week to the Deptment of Defense, to meet the blood and plasma needs of the Armed Forces. Blood plasma and whole blood are sent to Korea every day of the week. Remember the war is still going on over there.

The person whose life you save by the gift of blood—who lives, walks, works, thinks and loves with your blood in his veins —Is Your Blood Brother.— Do you have a Blood Brother?

Come to the Andover Central School Monday October 22nd from 1—7 and become a member of this proud clan.

Adult Education Enrolled 86 Tuesday Night

Considerable interest was shown in Adult Education at the registration held Tuesday night at the Central School. Eighty-six people enrolled for classes and there are sufficient numbers to start the following classes: Tuesday night, Oct. 15 at 7:30; Arts & Crafts, Driver Training, Sewing, Open Forum.

Andover is again sponsoring Adult Technical courses at the Alfred Ag-Tech in the following fields: machine shop, welding, electricity, radio, sheet metal and many other fields. These courses are free and open to the residents of Andover and surrounding communities.

It is hoped that we can have some commercial courses at the school this year. Last year we were unable to start them due to lack of enrollment, and so far this year the number is not sufficient to start the courses. We have a very fine instructor for typing, bookkeeping, shorthand or any other business course and it is a wonderful opportunity for adults who wish training in these fields to obtain it.

The woodworking and Young Farmer's group do not as yet have enough registered to start them. Why not get behind the Adult Education Program in Andover and register today. You can contact Mr. Mandel, or call the Central School.

Little League Baseball Needs Support

If the people of Andover want a Little League Baseball Team to represent Andover next year there will have to be a real turn out to the next meeting Friday October 12th, 7:30 at the Andover Central School. This is a big undertaking and takes considerable man power. To list a few of the many things to be done:

1. Obtaining the necessary funds; 2. Organizing of league and registration of the same; purchase, care and distribution of the equipment; conditioning and upkeep of the playing field; coaching and caring for the Little Leaguers.

The present temporary committee feels that there has been a lack of real interest demonstrated by the attendance at the recent meetings and unless there is enough physical and moral support in evidence it would be a falacy to enter a team from Andover. Are we going to let the boys down just because of adult indifference?

Township Census Figures Released

Wellsville's township population of 8,555 stands at the top of the list for Allegany County towns, in final census figures released out of Washington this week on the U. S. 1950 census. This is an increase of 58 over the preliminary figure of a year ago.

Alfred township comes to the front to claim second population place among county towns, with 2,862. This is a role Alfred itself could scarely have envisioned up to the time a benevolent census system bestowed upon college towns the residential status for its students, for the first time in 1950. Caneadea, which embraces Houghton as Allegany County's other college town, is credited with a township population of 1,845.

Population count determines in part the percentage of state aid granted towns in tax shared categories and educational purposes. Alfred and Caneadea sections have fared fabulously from millions poured into their college communitities in late years from veteran student payments, and now stand to benefit handsomely for 10 years to come at least from what seems a dubious census ruling in fixing student residence.

Cuba township ranks third, next to Alfred, in totals, with 2,784. Bolivar is next with 2,680.
