Window Washing

It's almost time to exchange screens for storm windows and a good time to give the windows a thorough washing. For very soiled windows, specialists at the New York State College of Home Economics at Cornell recommend these procedures:

Wipe off some of the dirt with a damp cloth or paper. Use a solution made of 1 tablespoon of household ammonia or vinegar to a quart of warm water. As you wash the windows be careful not to spill the ammonia on the window sills as it may injure the finish.

With the screens down and the storm windows not yet in place, you can do a really thorough job of wiping off sills, sashes, and frame with a clean, damp cloth. If you wax the sills and sashes with a colorless liquid wax, you will give them additional protection over the winter.

Apple Time

When apples are fresh on the market, father and the boys look forward to their favorite apple pie and applesauce. And, of course, you do treat your family often to these good old American dishes. But sometime for a change, try this simple apple pudding: Two cups of thick sweetened applesauce mixed with 2 well-beaten eggs, a little lemon juice, cinnamon or nutmeg to taste, a few dabs of butter or fortified margarine.

Bake the mixture in a moderate oven until the pudding is set. Serve it with sweetened whipped cream, plain coffee cream, or whipped and sweetened sour cream. Good with thin ginger cookies.

Open Toes and Heels

Even since open-toed and open heeled shoes have been on the market, many women have wondered whether such shoes were good for the feet. Open-toes, say clothing specialists, are not harmful if the toe opening is wide enough. A small opening in the middle of the shoe, however, can crowd the toes together. Never buy open-toed shoes in a size smaller than your usual one.

Regardless of the toe style, you still need the correct fit from the heel to the widest part of the foot, and you need plenty of toe room. Shoes with open heels may cause the heel of the foot to spread. If you buy an open-heeled style be sure your foot does not extend over the back of the shoe.

Save the Bones

Nippy evenings and hot homemade soup are among the pleasant childhood memories of many folks—and all because of Mom's thrifty habit of saving bones and meat trimmings for stock.

When you buy meat remember that you pay for the bones and trimmings and so are entitled to take them along with you when you leave the butcher's. Save the bones from the meat platter, too, for the soup pot. The stock is easy to make: Soak bones and meat trimmings in cold, slightly salted water. Then simmer them in the water for 3 to 4 hours. Add vegetables and seasonings toward the end of the cooking time.

A Thought For Spring

Though there's a call in the air and leaves have begun to turn, you can plan now for the flowering house plants you'll welcome in the spring. Tulips, narcissi, hyacinths, and other hardy bulbs can be planted in pots during September or October and kept in the basement until January. Then you can bring them upstairs to a sunny room to flower. Be sure to keep the soil moist while the planted bulbs are in storage.

After the plant has flowered, let the foliage grow until it turns yellow. Then let the soil dry out. Later on you can plant the bulbs in your garden. Don't try to force the bulbs in two sucessive years.

STATE SESSIONS. We have had so many requests for information on the 79th Annual Sessions of N. Y. State Grange, scheduled for October 30th through November 2 at Syracuse, that we hasten to pass along all that we can at present. It should be remembered that there are so many details to be attended to, speakers to be engaged, that even the officers cannot announce a definite calendar now. Here are some of the highlights. Most gatherings and meetings will take place in the Mizpah Auditorium on Jefferson street, between Warren and Montogmery.

Monday evening, October 29, Singing Contest. This delightful program will bring together solo, duet and quartet winners of the regional place for 1951. The winning quartet will be eligible to compete in the National Grange contest at Atlantic City November 17th.

Tuesday morning at nine a. m. State Master Henry D. Sherwood will bang the gavel to officially open the 79th Annual Sessions as more than 1,300 delegates and alternates, 53 deputy state masters and visiting members take their places to discuss matters of interest to rural folks in the state and nation. In the afternoon Onondaga County Pomona Grange will confer the Fifth Degree in the ballroom of Hotel Onondaga to all members qualified to take it. In the evening probably the largest attendance of the sessions is expected at the new War Memorial building for the state or Sixth Degree. Ample room for this colorful affair is available for spectators and candidates, with interesting guest speakers on this and the following two days. In the evening the annual officers' reception will be held, followed by the State Lecturers program.

Thursday evening the variety program furnished by each of the N. Y. State Agricultural Institutes will take place. Those who have experienced similar offerings by the students of these schools know that it is a hign spot in the Grange sessions.

On Friday, completing the monumental work on business and resolutions, adjournment will take place around four o'clock.

Of particular interest to members and delegates this year is the fact that this is an important election year for state officers. Also many awards and prizes will be given Granges.

If the frames of window screens need repainting, do it before the screens are stored.

Mrs. Wayne Stout Christmas Seal Chairman

Mrs. Wayne C. Stout, of Wellsville, will serve as chairman for the 1951 Christmas Seal Sale in Allegany County, Mrs. Ramon F. Reynolds, president of the Allegany Health & Tuberculosis Association, announced this week.

The sale of Christmas Seals will be conducted in the county by the tuberculosis association from Nov. 19 to December 25. This year's Christmas Seal Sale, to be conducted throughout the nation by the 3,000 associations affiliated with the National Tuberculosis Association, marks the 45th annual Christmas Seal Sale in this county, and the 31st in Allegany County.

In accepting the chairmanship, Mrs. Stout said that she was honored by this appointment and would do all she could to make this year's Christmas Seal Sale the best the county has ever had.

"I am proud to serve in any capacity that helps the Allegany Health & Tuberculosis Association, which is fighting 12 months a year to protect us against a disease which is killing at the rate of one person every 13 minutes in this country." said Mrs. Stout.

"The association is working for us the year 'round", Mrs. Stout pointed out, "yet it appeals just once a year, with the Christmas Seal Sale, for financial support for its many services. The forthcoming Christmas Seal will finance the work of the association during 1952".

Mrs. Stout also said that she was "counting heavily" on Allegany County people to volunteer their services for Christmas Seal work.

"I appeal to anyone who would like to serve to get in touch with me at 40 W. State Street, Wellsville," Mrs. Stout added. "We are getting started on Christmas Seal Sale preparations and we need all the help we can get."
