Rev. Rogers Accepts Position At Alfred

Rev. Albert N. Rogers announced in the Presbyterian Church last Sunday his acceptance of the post of assistant to the Dean of the Alfred School of Theology effective July 1, 1952.

Mr. Rogers has served as supply pastor of the Presbyterian congregation for seven years while residing in Alfred Station where he is pastor of the Second Alfred Seventh Day Baptist Church. The late Erwin D. Baker prevailed upon him to assume work in Andover because of the shortage of ministers when many were serving in the chaplaincy of the Armed Forces.

The Alfred University School of Theology serves primarily to train ministers for the Seventh Day Baptist denomination. Dean A. J. C. Bond who has been head of the school nearly 17 years will continue one more year with the assistance of Mr. Rogers and Rev. Loyal F. Hurley of Salem, W. Va., who was appointed to the faculty last week. Other instructors are Rev. Everett T. Harris, Dr. Ben R. Crandall, Rev. Melvin Nida, Rev. Ronald Hargis and Dr. Wayne R. Rood, who is leaving the school in June. S. B. Crandall of Andover is a member of the board of managers of the school.

Steps to fill the local pulpit will be taken at the annual meeting of the Presbyterian congregation January 13. Mr. Rogers stated that he would be available up to the time he assumes his new duties.

A reception took place immediately after the ceremony for 30 guests. Miss Robert Bartlett of Olean and Miss Barbara Bartlett, sisters of the bride were assisting hostesses.

Yellow candles and yellow and white chrysanthemums decorated the bride's table, which was centered with a white three tiered cake, trimmed with yellow flowers, and topped with miniature wedding bells. Guests were present from Scio, Wellsville, Andover, Elmira and Olean.

The couple will reside on Main Street, Andover.
