Union Prohibition League.

The Union Prohibition League of Andover was formally organized on Tuesday evening, Sept. 1st, at a meeting duly called for that purpose, at the Methodist Episcopal Church. Mr. John Cochran was elected President, and W. H. Phillips was chosen Secretary. The enrollment card has been signed almost without exception by the leading business men and citizens of the place, and it was deemed best, at the aforesaid meeting, to make the following statement: "If those who are engaged in the sale of intoxicating liquors shall hereafter cease from the business, and show a disposition to abide within the restraints of the law, the object of this organization will, for the present, have been accomplished. If not, let it be understood that prosecutions will ensue, backed by such numbers and public sentiment as will make opposition utterly impossible."

This paragraph was duly submitted to the League, at the aforesaid meeting, and, after discussion, was adopted, and the Chairman and Secretary pro tem. were requested to sign it and, in behalf of the League, to request its publication in the ANDOVER NEWS.

By Order of the League
SECRETARY pro tem.
Andover, N. Y., Sept. 1st, 1891.
Harvest Home.

The annual Harvest Home of the Presbyterian Church is a festival in which the people of our town, irrespective of denominational affiliations, are interested. It is looked forward to by our citizens, who appreciate intellectual enjoyments and are not indifferent to the blandishments of skillful caterers to the palate, with a keen zest. Yes, the Harvest Home is the event of the year to more than those under whose immediate supervision it is conducted, and with each year the interest in it seems to heighten.

On Friday, Sept. 11th, Maple Grove will again be resonant with music and oratory and redolent with the savor of toothsome viands. Hon. Milo M. Ackers name as one of the speakers will attract not a few persons, for it is not so long since we claimed him as our townsman, and his record in the Legislature has enhanced the regard in which we held him as a pupil, a teacher, and a citizen. Unless he departs from his established custom, he will say something worth hearing. Rev. Edward Deems and Rev. W. M. Veenseloten, of Hornellsville, eminent divines, eloquent, instructive and entertaining speakers, will contribute to the interest of the occasion. Let all unite to make the Harvest Home of '91 a most appreciable and memorable event.

IN WEDLOCK'S BONDS.

Wwcox--Best.

Married, at the residence of the bride's mother, at Tip Top Summit, Alfred, N. Y., Sept. 2d, 1891, by Rev. G. W. Gibson, of Andover, Mr. Henry H. Wilcox, of Hornellsville, and Miss Della L. Best, of Alfred.

At 9 o'clock this morning, a number of the very many friends of the couple now happily united assembled at the ever-hospitable home of Mrs. M. A. Best to witness the event above chronicled. The bride has a large place in the hearts of all who know her virtues, the bridegroom enjoys the esteem of all his acquaintances, the good wishes expressed for both were no idle words, and no congratulations are more sincere than are those of the News. Among the guests from out of town were: E. W. Hempstead, wife and daughter, Elmira; Mrs. A. M. Deitz, Long Eddy; Mrs. F. A. Wilcox, Hornellsville, and Miss May Gibson, Andover. Mr. Alfred Wilcox, of Hornellsville, served as best man, Miss Lillian Hempstead, of Elmira, as bride's maid, and G. W. Canfield, of Tip Top, gave away the bride. A bounteous wedding breakfast was served.

"The table groaned with costly piles of food, and all was more than hospitably good."

Among the many articles of beauty and utility bestowed by loving friends as wedding presents were: A very fine lamp from the bride's mother; chair and bedroom set, Mrs. Wilcox; lamp, Albert Wilcox; water set and berry dish, Mrs. A. M. Deitz; bedspread, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Hempstead and daughter Lillian; sugar spoon, Mrs. G. M. Wright, Long Eddy; N. Y.; half dozen teaspoons, Mr. and Mrs. B. S. Baker; a similar present from James L. Witter and wife; half dozen butter plates and salt cellars, Mrs. McKoon; bedspread, Misses May and Angie Bennett; picture and easel, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Lee; clock, Messrs. Geo. N. and Frank Martin, and "other articles too numerous to mention," as the auction bills say, from donors whom your reporter has no wish to overlook.

Train 10 stopped at Tip Top and took on the newly-wedded pair, who will visit Cohocton, Hammondsport, Elmira and other places, on their wedding tour.

INDEPENDENCE NEWS.

Elder Jared Kenyon took in the Hornellsville Fair last week.

Elder H. D. Clarke returned from his trip to Western, R. I., last week Thursday.

Miss Elma Snyder, of Andover, was visiting friends in town, several days last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Rochford Bundy, of Greenwood, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Potter, Sunday.

Mr. George Alvord and family, of Andover, were visiting Mrs. A.'s mother, Mrs. Caroline Forsyth, Sunday.

Comrade J. P. Remington and wife are making an extended visit to friends in Almond and other places.

Mr. C. S. Armstrong, of Whitesville, has recovered from his late illness.

Mr. Wm. Heinenmann, who resides somewhere in Pennsylvania, is visiting relatives in this vicinity.

Mrs. Charles H. Austin, Spring Mills, visited several families in this place last week.

Mrs. Leroy Costley, of Whitesville, who was recently threatened with typhoid fever, is now convalescent.

Equestrianism is booming, and your correspondent was just called to the door to greet four young ladies and the same number of young gentlemen, who were mounted on spirited nags. The sight recalled to my mind a night raid by the cavalry during war times, only there was no braying of trumpets or clash of arms.

Last week Friday, Elder Jared Kenyon preached the funeral sermon of Mrs. Daniel Dexter, of Elmira, who was brought here for burial. Her aged husband was unable to be present, as he is rapidly failing, and it is said the separation will not be for long. Uncle Daniel was among the pioneers of this town and one of the hardest workers. He succeeded in securing a comfortable competence, and has only one child left alive to care for him in his old age.

Mr. John O. Barney, who has been quite ill for several weeks past, has so far recovered as to be able to visit relatives in Andover last week.

It is reported that Mr. Leman Woodcock, of Hornellsville, formerly proprietor of the Whitesville brick hotel, and Miss Charlotte Swift, of the latter place, were married at Hornellsville, last week. May health, happiness and prosperity crown their union.

Last Saturday, Mr. Leroy Costley, who runs a steam sawmill in Whitesville, was cleaning the lubricator on the engine, preparatory to oiling the bearings, and he used hot tallow instead of oil. The bearings were heated, and one of employees called, "Look out!" but the words were scarcely uttered when an explosion occurred, throwing the hot grease into Mr. Costley's face, burning and blistering it severely; but under prompt treatment he is rapidly improving.

SOME GUMPTION.

The Erie's Enterprise.

The Erie Railway's new book for 1891, "Summer Excursion Routes and Reports," proves very interesting, containing a complete description of all popular summer resorts. It is a larger and more elaborate work than has ever been gotten out and does credit to the Erie management. By addressing A. W. Bodle, Division Passenger Agent, Buffalo, N. Y., enclosing a two-cent stamp, one can be received by return mail.

Dissolution of Partnership.
Notice is hereby given that the Andover Carp Fish Company has this day dissolved partnership by mutual consent of all parties.
