It is a generally known fact that the fourth or ring finger of the human hand is not on a par with the other fin gers, it being the weakest, the least llexible and the most rebellions in ac tion. Scientific men explain this feeble ness by the theory that the lateral ten dous foining the ring tinger to the oth res composing the hand in a measure be just as good as we say it is, paralyze its movements. To the malority of people it matters little that to come back and get their one of the fingers should be inferior to the rest in strength. As a scientific addity, however, it is worthy of note. To the pianist or the player of stringed instruments it is a source of consider-able incompanions. able inconvenience.

As art can in the present day remedy most defects which incommode us a medical man has thought that some-thing might be done to free the ring finger. He informs those interested in the matter that if they wish to have a strong, flexible fourth finger they have strong, nextote fourth inger they have but to submit to a surgical operation, which consists in dividing the tendons of the hand. The operation, which is very simple, scarcely deserving the name, has recently been performed our several New York, Boston and Brooklyn pianists.—St. Louis Republic.
