We use Alcohol

pure alcohol to make Wolff's ACME BLACKING. Alcohol is good for leather; it is good for the skin. Alcohol is the chief ingredient of Cologne, Florida Water, and Bay Rum the well known face washes. We think there is nothing too costly to use in a good leather preservative.

Acme Blacking retails at 20c. and at that price sells readily. Many people are so accustomed to buying a dressing or blacking at 5c. and 10c. a bottle that they cannot understand that a blacking can be cheap at 20c. We want to meet them with cheapness if we can, and to accomplish this we offer a reward of

for a recipe which will enable us to make Wolff's ACME BLACKING at such a price that a retailer can profitably sell it at 10c. a bottle. We hold this offer open until Jan. 1st, 1893.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

Washington, May 9, 1892.

The President makers consider the action of the Alliance presidents at their meeting at Birmingham, Alabama, in deciding to support the third party in the coming campaign, to be the most important political news of the week, notwithstanding the large number of State conventions which have been held this week. The Alliance men are jubilant over it, and they say that it is certain to result in throwing the election into the House, if it does not elect an Alliance President. The democrats don't like it, although they will lose nothing by having the election of President thrown into the House. The republicans publicly poo-poo it, but among themselves they admit that it largely increases the chances of the third party to carry northwestern states.

The candidate puzzle is daily growing more intricate. Although a table has been sent broadcast this week by the friends of President Harrison showing that he is certain to be nominated at Minneapolis on the first ballot, it is known that he feels anything but certain about it, and it is also known that several conferences of prominent anti-Harrison republicans have been held here within the last 48 hours, and that great confidence was expressed of the ability of the participants therein to prevent the nomination of Mr. Harrison. On the democratic side there seems to be a disposition on the part of many men of prominence to wait and see who the republicans will nominate before committing themselves.

The country is to be congratulated on the prospects of a serious attempt being made to bring the laws to bear upon the trusts. This attempt is the one really good thing that can be credited to partisan politics, but if it shall succeed in even curtailing the power of the big trusts its origin will be forgiven if not forgotten. A while ago several shrewd democrats in the House came to the conclusion that it would be beneficial to their party for the House to "jump on" the Attorney General because of his failure to begin suits against the notorious sugar trusts, under the anti-trust law passed by the last Congress, and a resolution calling for the whys and wherefores was accordingly introduced in the house and referred to the Judiciary committee. This stirred the republicans up and some of them went to the acting Attorney General—Miller is away—and told him that something must be done at once to head off that resolution, and the result was that the U. S. district Attorney at Philadelphia this week began legal proceedings against the sugar trust. Meantime the Judiciary committee has reported and the House adopted that resolution.

Like all other compromises the new Chinese legislation fails to entirely satisfy anybody. The majority of the House think the bill passed by the House was preferable, while a majority of the Senate believe that the renewal of the present law for another ten years, which was provided for in the original Senate bill, was all that was necessary. The House had to give up its bill entirely, and the Senate had to accept amendments to its bill extending the present laws ten years, providing for the registration of all Chinamen now resident in the U. S. and for one year's imprisonment before being sent back to China of all Chinamen detected in violating the new law, and denying the right of Chinese persons to be released on bail pending result of writs of habeas corpus. It is believed by those familiar with the matter that if the new law be honestly and strictly administered it will practically put an end to Chinese immigration.

The Interstate and Foreign Commerce committee was not intended to be one of the leading committees of the House, but if the investigation which a sub-committee is now making of the Reading coal combine shall be pushed with vim it may in the near future become the leading committee, in popular estimation.
