SUNDAY'S SERMON.

ONE OF DR. TALMAGE'S STERL ING DISCOURSES.

Subject: "Lessons From the Story of Daniet."

TEXT: "Tontel was first." — Danisl vi., 2.
Where in romance can you find anything qual to what Daniel was in reality? A young man, far away from bome, introduced into the most magnificent and most dissolute palace of all the earth. The king, wishing to make this young man a prodigy in personal appearance, orders his attendants to see that he has plenty-of meat and wine, and Daniel refuses these delicacies and insists on a vegetable diet, refusing everything but pulse and water, waving back all the rich viauds with a determined. "No; I thank you." He surpasses all the princes in brilliance, As this sun ris s. higher and higher in the firmanent, it puts out all the significant of the results of the product of the start of the TEXT: "Paniel was first "-Daniel vi 9 stars, and if there is anything the stars hate it is the success of much of a favorits with King Darius that our young hero is promoted to be prime minister or secretary of state—the Frelinghuysen or the Bismarck. of the ancients. But no man ever attained so high position without exciting the envy of others. The meanest and wrathiest passion of the soul is jealousy. You see it among all professions and occupiations. I am sorry to say you see it among all professions and occupiations. I am sorry to say you see it among clergymen as among other classes of many the star of the which consumes only themselves.

There were demagogues in Babylon, who, highly appreciative of their own capacity, doubted the policy of elevating $2.54 a young man as Daniel. They said: "Why, mow more than he does. We could manage the public affairs better than he can manage them. The idea of putting Dan in such a place as that." Old Babylon was afraid of young Babylon. They began to Flot his ruin. He was an illustrious target. Their tiller the cedar the more apt to be struct with the lightning.

These demagogues asked Darius to make an unalterable decree that any man who within thirty days shall ask a petition of any one except the king, shall be pub to death. Darius, not mistrusting any foul piay, makes such a decree. The demagogues have accomplished their purpose, for they knew that Daniel would not stop sending up petitions to his God, and Daniel, instead of being affrighted by the decree, went three times a day to his houstop for prayer. He is caught in the act. He is condemned to be devoured by the lions. Such a healthy young man will be for the leoniter monacons the best barquet they ever had. By the rough executioners of the law he is hurried and paniel shoved into the day. The propose has a discussed in the ground the growth of the monators. You builded your own house. You got to be one of the first men on the street. Now he one of the first men on the street, to we say our pass a number of those late sympathizers stand on the corner of the street. They score lat you from under the rim of their hats. You have more money now than they have, and you ought to be scowled at from under the rim of their hats.

Before you get fully past you hear a word or two. "Stuck up," saysone. "Didn't get it honestly," says another. "Will burst soon," says a third. Every stone in your new house was laid on their heart. Your carriage house went over their nerves. Your carriage house went over their nerves. Your carriage cutrageous enex. What have you done, outrageous enex. What have you done, couring one the street of the lions. You have dad the first to be cast to the lions. You have dad the lions—you go you green upon it that if an are more truthful, more wise, more elequent, more industrial—the shadow of your success will chill somebody. The read of hears and more influential—the shadow of your success will chill somebody. The road of honor and wirtue is within reach of the enemies guns. Jealouy says, "Stay down or I will knock you down." In midair a snowfake said to a snowbird. "Idor' like you." "Why don' you like nee" said the snowbird. "Because," replied the snowfake, "you are going upland I am coming down."

replied the snowflake, "you are going upland I am coming down."

Success is often a synonym for scorn. The first thing a man wants is religion. The second is grit. If you do not want to free wild beasts you must never get to be prime minister. If you are now, as a young man, rising in any one respect, 10 less dod for your nation and you have to the lions. Young necessary, young this thought, look out for the lions. Young have and kind advice is given them at first, but as you become your own masters and begin.

to succeed in your different cooupations and professions, how is it then, young merchants, young lawyers, young physicians, young misters! How is them?

Again behold in our subject an exhibition of true decision of character. Before Daniel were condemnation and death, if he continues faithful to his religion. Yet, just as before, three times a day he prayed with his face toward Jorussion. There is nothing more fatal for the religious or worstly advancement than a spirit of indecision. How often youth is almost gone before the individual has determined upon his profession.

There are those who for thirty or forty years have accomplished nothing any where because they have not feit themselves settled. They have thought of the law, of merchanders of merchanders of merchanders of merchanders of merchanders of merchanders of the settled of the properties of merchanders of merchanders of the settled of the settled

The man who begins to build a house in the Corinthian style and when half way up concludes to make it Doric, and then completes it in Ionic, will have an unseemly pile and be cursed of every school of architecture. These men that try everything get to be nothing. God worde in your brain and engraved on your bones what you ought to be. Then be that, nothing more or nothing less. In that direction is your success. Every other road is ruin. Having adjusted your compass, go ahead. Set your teeth together. Small difficulties do not notice. Great difficulties, by Gords grace strike them down. Undard I dete owards skulk.

yet master languages and away a very scepter over his fellows. Many an education which is now considered complete is made up of a smattering of newspapers and the last page of a fashion magazine.

The parlor and the drawing room cannot educate us. They may give us outward adornments of man—but getting valuable knowledge it like sweltering at a forge, below, in one hand and hammer in the other—like diging in mines with crowbars, prying under the ledge and the constant bang of blasted rock. Especially is it true that no growth in gree is possible unless, like Daniol, was are willing to take up the cross, however heavy it may be and rough with mails. Moses mose affliction with the people of God reflec. Then the pleasures of sit, and it we would be anything like him we must be willing sometimes to choose the hard bread of self-denial rather than the imperial clusters from royal vineyards.

To get strength and depth enough in rivers for turning inill wheels an i manufactories, dama are built across them, and then through the mill race the quick floods leap on the water wheel to turn it with tremendous power. So natures thal would otherwise have been powerless and insufficient by self-restraint have been dammed back and deepened, until with consecrated power they rush into the world, turning its, ponderous machinery of important interests. Unrestrained men may have much good in them, but it is so scattered that you see no positive effects. Electricity in the air does not strike, but gathered in the cloud with its bare red arm it cleaves the mountain.

Passions harnessed and yoked make excelent beasts of burden. However attractive may be the sinful offers of the world, though rich and luxurious as the provision of the king's table, wa must be willing to refuss them if nothing be left us but pain pulse. Oh, how we want the faith and courage of a Daniel and a Paul, but how we dread the hot attrosphers of trial, in which their graces ripened. The richest fruits of religion grow in the sutry trooise of trial. Again let the story of Daniel texto us the beauty of that youtful character which remains unblemished and uoright when away from home. Had Daniel, on arriving in Bahylou, plunged into every excess, his friends in derusalem would never have heard of it. His dissipation and remunciation of religion would not have east one sortex on the family hearth where he hed Fivel et the old family hearth where he hed Fivel et the old family hearth where he hed Fivel et the old family hearth where he hed Fivel et the old family hearth where he hed Fivel et the old family hearth where he hed Fivel et the old family hearth where he hed Fivel et the old family hearth where he hed Fivel et the old family hearth where he hed Fivel et the old family hearth where he hed Fivel et the old family hearth where he hed Fivel et the old family hearth where he hed Fivel et the old family hearth was maintained at home.

Frederick watching his father's sheep among the hills or thrushing rye in the barn is far different from Froderick on the Stock Exchange. How often does the kind, retiring apirit become bold effrontery, and the accommodating, self sacrificing disposition once exhibited among brothers and sisters becomes a cold and unresponsive selfishness, and conomy, wastefuness and open handed charity, tight fisted stinginess, and the keeping of good hours is changed to miduting trevelry.

I probably address young men nox, distant from their father's houst, and others who, still under the parental root, look forward to a time when they will depart alons to conflict with the world and among strangers be called to build up characters for themselves. Happy for you, oh, young man, if you shall, like Joseph, be the same who, still under the parental root, look forward to a time when they will depart alons to conflict with the world and among strangers he called to build up characters for themselves. monument ceremonies, was served with a legal summons growing out of a libel suit brought by a former employe of the Interior Department.

William Lapham was removed from the office of Chief of the Stationery Division of the Patent Office by Secretary Noble, and in the letter of dismissal the Secretary is alleged to have used libellous statements against him. The latter, who is now in business in New York, sued the Secretary for libel, and on learning that Mr. Noble would be in New York city to participate in the Grant monument exercises, notified the officers of the coart and had the attachment served upon him at his hotel just before he started for Riverside Park with the Presidential putty.

The city officials were prevailed upon to keep the matter quiet, and as the day was practically a general holiday, the transaction seems to have escaped attention. The Science, it is understood, gave baif for his appearance when the richt shail take place.

This mass crushed into the cellar where six men were engaged mixing plaster. Zimmer, Desola, Palist and Hurley were buried in the debris, while the others escaped.

Palist and Hurley were carried out more frightened than hurt. One hundred tons of mixed plaster had been piled on the floor which gave way by order of the contractor, Michael Powers, who is held responsible for the accident, and will be arrested. The damage to the building will not exceed $3,000.

- Important Engineering Test.

New York, May 6.—An important engineering test has been made on locomotive No. 870, running the Empire State Express on the New York Central railroad. The work was done by Angus Sinclair, editor of "Locomotive Engineering." He sat in a bux on the front of the engine ciyinder and took steam indicator diagrams all the way between New York and Albany. A speed of seventy-eight miles an hour was recorded, and the engine developed 1,600 horse power. The work of pulling that fast train was performed on a coal consumption of two and one-eighth nounds of coal per horse power per hour.

Arkson-Slavin Fight.

New York. May 46—Johnny Redganhas issued a challenge to fight any man in America at 145 pounds. Advices from London say that the date of the Jackson-Slavin fight has been challed from May 30 to the time selected by the National Athletic Club. The club is anxions to keep the date from the general public, so as to avoid the crush of a London mob. It is thought that the mill will take place on the night of June 2.

Rome, May 9.—It is reported that King Humbert requested Signor Giolitti, who led the recent attack in the Chamber of Deputies which resulted in the downfall of the Ministry, to form the new Cabinet, but that Signor Giolitti had refused to undertake the task until the King had consulted with ex-Premier Crispi and Signor Zanardelli in regard to the matter. It is thought that Signor Giolitti will probably form a "stopgap" Cabinet pending an appeal to the country.
