We use Alcohol

pure alcohol to make Wolff's Acme Blacking. Alcohol is good for leather; it is good for the skin. Alcohol is the chief ingredient of Cologne, Florida Water, and Bay Rum the well known face washes. We think there is nothing too costly to use in a good leather preservative.

Acme Blacking retails at 20c. and at that price sells readily. Many people are so accustomed to buying a dressing or blacking at 5c. and 10c. a bottle that they cannot understand that a blacking can be cheap at 20c. We want to meet them with cheapness if we can, and to accomplish this we offer a reward of $10,000

for a recipe which will enable us to make Wolff's Acme Blacking at such a price that a retailer can profitably sell it at 10c. a bottle. We hold this offer open until Jan. 1st, 1893.

INDEPENDENCE NEWS.

In thought profound I sit me down
To compose this trite saw:
'Tis cheaper far to pay one's debts,
Than wrestle with the law.

Mrs. John Lamore, of New York City, is the guest of her sister, Mrs. Jud D. Jacobs.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Forsyth, of Smethport, Pa., were in town to attend the Chapin reunion, last week.

Elders Kenyon and Clarke went Little Genesee last week, to attend the S. D. B. Association.

Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Saunders, of Alfred Centre, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Potter one day last week.

A number from this place were in attendance at the Wallace-Warfield reunion in Greenwood last Wednesday.

The annual reunion of the Chapin family occurred at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Erwin D. Jean in Willing, the 15th inst., and those who were in attendance from here report a fine time, although the crowd was not as large as usual.

FULMER VALLEY NEWS.

Our correspondence last week was mislaid and failed to reach you. Among other things was mentioned a present to Miss Maggie McAndrew of a beautiful parlor organ from her parents. We consider it a credit to Fulmer fully appreciated.

Dr. Clark, who has been sick for a long time, is improving slowly, but I think he begins to go out some.

This neighborhood was recently awakened in the dead of night by what proved to be a genuine old fashioned "horning bee." Boys, such entertainments are not always pleasant.

Fred Clark narrowly escaped severe injury by his horse being frightened at a swinging gate through which he attempted to lead him. Fred is on his taps and we are glad to hear it.

Mrs. Jane Trask and son Floyd visited at F. O. Livermore's Saturday.

Wm. Stout paid a visit to his son A. A. Stout of Morrison Pa., last week, to attend his wedding. Mr. Stout was a former resident here and his many friends will be pleased to extend congratulations. We understand the bride was Miss Gates of Fillmore, N. Y.

Judge Tourgee's Prediction.

At St. Paul, recently, Judge Tourgee said: "If there is not a marked change of conduct towards the colored race we shall have within the next ten years a massacre such as not has been paralleled since the French revolution. The gravity of the danger which threatens us is not appreciated. I am amazed that the negro has been so patient under the intense persecution which he has to endure. Since the proclamation of emancipation there has been more colored men murdered by whites in the South than there have been days in the years that have elapsed, and yet in that fearful array of crime justice has been only four."

The patience of the colored people under the continued outrage and injury is indeed remarkable. It is wonderful that they do not become desperate under this injustice, abuse and outrage and turn upon their assailants. There is no prospect of redress from the State authorities and the national government is powerless to protect them. There is nothing to be gained by retaliation and resistance and yet the very hopelessness of their case may drive them to desperate and bloody reprisals if their cruel wrongs are continued.—Exchange.

There is probably a great deal of truth in the above, but those who have lived both North and South say the "race problem" is an entirely different thing in the South from what it is in the North, and they claim that a Northern man who goes South is very liable to change his views. We don't know anything about it but give the statement for what it is worth.

BY THE MORNING LIGHT.

Oh, glad and red the light of morn
Across the field of battle broke,
And showed the waste of trampled corn
And smoldering farmsteads wrapped in smoke;
And cold and stark the settler lay,
Shot down beside his shattered gun;
And, grimly splashed with blood and clay,
His face looked ghastly in the sun.

Oh, glad and red the morning shone
In happy England far away,
Where knelt a bright haired little one
Beside her mother's knee to pray,
And prompting each fond faltering word,
The soldier's wife was glad and smiled—
She knew not 'twas a widow heart
The prattle of an orphan child.

Oh, glad and red, oh, glad and red
The morning light glowed everywhere,
And one beam touched the father dead,
And one the child who knelt in prayer;
And from the trampled corn and clay
A skylark sprang with joyous breast—
For shot and shell had spared that day
Its four brown eggs and little nest.
—William Canton.

Ruskin Opposed to Bicycles.

Ruskin's views of the bicycle were expressed years ago in a letter not generally known. It has recently been brought to public attention in England, and contains the following: "I not only object, but am quite prepared to spend all my best 'bad language' in reprobation of 'bi, tri and 4, 5, 6 or 7 cycles, and every other contrivance and invention for superseding human feet on God's ground. To walk, to run, to leap and to dance are the virtues of the human body, and neither to stride on stilts, wriggle on wheels or dangle on ropes, and nothing in the training of the human mind with the body will ever supersede the appointed God's ways of slow walking and hard working."

What We Call Malaga Grapes.

"The grapes that are sold in New York and other markets as Malaga grapes," said a fruit dealer, "are really not Malaga grapes at all, but are a grape that grows in the almost inaccessible mountain regions of Spain, in the district of Almeria. The true Malaga grape is so tender and delicate a fruit that it will not stand shipment well, and ever when it arrives here in good condition it is so perishable that unless quick sales are made the importer will have his labor for his pains. Nearly all of the Malaga grape crop is made into raisins. The white and pinkish white grapes sold here as Malagas are a hardy fruit. The region in which they are grown is wild and primitive, and the grapes are all transported from the vineyards to Almeria on donkeys, a distance of fifty miles, there being no roads to the hills."—New York Sun.

Lightning Strikes a Person.

It is indisputable that persons are sometimes struck by the full force of the electric fluid and live. In such cases, however, it will be found that the current in no instance enters the body, but passes down the clothing via the collar studs, watch chain, pocket knife and other conductors. In such passage the flesh is often badly burned. June 11, 1874, lightning struck a tree on South Water street, in New Bedford. It stripped a line of bark from the tree down to a point five feet from the ground. Then it sprang across the sidewalk to a nail in the fence, and so on into the earth. There was a young woman on the sidewalk just at that point and she fell senseless. A free application of cold water restored her to consciousness, and then it was discovered that her dress was burned at the shoulder and that her collar bone was broken. The steel buckle that fastened a bretelle to her dress at the shoulder was torn off. In this case it would appear that the lightning used the metal buckle as a stepping stone in its path from the tree to the nail in the fence.—Boston Globe.

Negroes Eat Lion.

The lion is eaten by some African races, although its flesh is in small favor with them, while the Zulus find carnion so much to their liking that, according to Dr. Colenso, they apply to food teeming with large colonies of grubs the comprehensive word "ubornu," which signifies in their uncouth jargon "great happiness." David Livingstone tells us that the aboriginal Australians and the Hottentots prefer the intestines of animals, and he adds that "it is curious that this is the part which wild animals always begin with, and that it is the first choice of our men." The hippopotamus is another favorite meat of the Africans, when they catch it. Its flesh when young is tender and palatable, but it becomes very coarse and unpleasant with advancing years. The Abyssinians find the rhinoceros much to their liking; so they do the elephant, which is also eaten in Sumatra.—Scottish Review.
