OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

Washington, June 24, 1892.
Again the expected has happened in National politics. It is already evident that this Presidential campaign is not to be run on the enthusiastic plan. The nomination of Mr. Cleveland was received by the Democrats with much the same Oh-well, it-had-to-be-anyway air that the republicans did the re-nomination of President Harrison. One thing is certain, both men were nominated against the wishes of the men who have in the past arrogated to themselves the privilege of controlling the nomination for President in their respective parties and both of them are free of obligations to the political bosses.

Another thing also is certain, and for it all decent people should be thankful. The campaign will be free from the personal abuse, which all too often forms the greater part of the arguments used on both sides in a National campaign. There is little doubt that these two men clearly represent everything which the majority of their respective parties stand for; as ex-Governor Jackson of Maryland, at present residing in Washington, puts it: "Both men have been tried and the people know just where they stand; both men hold the same views on the money question; Harrison would retain the present tariff, Cleveland would largely reduce it and increase the free list, Harrison favors the enactment of a Federal election law, Cleveland opposes it."

Not even the the important political events of Democratic convention week could entirely overshadow the communication sent to the Senate by President Harrison concerning the commercial relations of the United States with Canada, although they have prevented its receiving the attention due to its importance. It must be remembered that the communication was not voluntarily made, but was an answer to a resolution adopted by the Senate calling for all the facts and copies of correspondence between the two governments. Mr. Harrison says that there is no probability of commercial reciprocity between the two countries and goes into particulars as to the reasons, the principal of which is that Canada is not willing to put any of the manufactures of the United States on the free list; she wishes to send her agricultural products to the United States free of duty and at the same time to shut out American manufactures, in order that English goods may retain their supremacy in her markets. Mr. Harrison practically recommends that Congress shall adopt retaliatory legislation against Canada because of its violation of the treaty of 1870 by discriminating against American vessels using Canadian waterways, and a resolution has been introduced in the Senate authorizing him to retaliate.

Nowwithstanding denials made by the gentlemen whose names have been mentioned in connection therewith, there is a belief here, which is constantly growing, that a full Presidential ticket will be put in the field south and that it will be made up from the Senate, one being a republican and the other a democrat. Senators Stewart, Wolcott and Teller are the republicans mentioned in this connection, and Senator Morgan, of Alabama is the democrat. It is rumored here that a movement is on foot to get the people's party convention, which meets at Omaha, July 4, to make its ticket from a list of silver Senators, including those mentioned above and several others.

Gen. Horace Porter, of New York, has declined the chairmanship of the republican National committee, which was tendered him by President Harrison, who as the nominee of his party is entitled to the privilege of naming the head of the committee which shall manage his campaign, and suggested Chauncey M. Depew for the place. It is now said that Mr. Depew never had any idea of accepting the vacant cabinet portfolio, although it was offered to him and indeed pressed upon him; but it is just as well to make some allowances for such statements, as it is certain that they do not originate with President Harrison or with Mr. Depew, and only those two know all about it.

Adjournment is now becoming a pressing question in both Senate and House, and unless something unexpected shall occur it may be expected in about a month. Little outside of the appropriation bills will get any serious attention from now on although the Senate may vote upon the free coinage bill, which is now before it as "unfinished business," but even that is uncertain.

The old depot at Belmont was burned down last Friday.

The Rushford Spectator appears improved in its make up. It is a better paper, and deserves all the success it achieves.

Found—a gentleman's watch. The owner can have it by proving ownership and paying for this notice, which will be published at this office.

J. A. Hunt has received a beautiful American tin. He is using some on the roof of his house, and says he has now learned that there is such a thing as American tin.

Last week's Wellsville Democrat published a fine picture of the new school building in that place. The Democrat says: "The new school building is built rapidly and substantially, and with the most beautiful addition to the appearance of the many fine buildings on the street."

Last Thursday night E. J. Atwood's hardware store had a narrow escape from being burned. About 10:30 p. m. was seen in the tinshop on the second floor. A few pails of water extinguished the flames, but if it had happened an hour later the village would probably now be minus several business places.

As a result of the Regents' Examinations held in Andover Union School there are now held by students, 15 advanced certificates and 20 preliminary certificates. Prof. Armstrong informs that the school has now earned $110.80 from the Regents' fund.

A pretty good showing, and does not include a full year's work, either.

The News man was in Alfred County a short time last Thursday, and inspected among other things, the new brick hall, owned by the Crandall and Ladder Company. The building is of brick, and contains on the first floor a parlor, dining room, kitchen, a room for meetings and a store-room for the News. On the second floor is a large hall, with stage and gallery, seating capacity for 500 persons.

Many well known persons are expected.
