BLACKING is cheaper
at 20 cents a bottle than any other Dressing at 5 cents.

A LITTLE GOES A LONG WAY

because shoes once blackened with it can be kept clean by washing them with water. People in moderate circumstances find it profitable to buy it at 20c. a bottle, because what they spend for Blacking they save in shoe leather. It is the cheapest blacking considering its quality, and yet we want to sell it cheaper if it can be done. We will pay for a recipe that will enable us to make WOLFF'S ACME BLACKING at such a price that a retailer can profitably sell it at 10c. a bottle. This offer is open until Jan. 1st, 1893.

$10,000 Reward

VICINITY NEWS.

Some Things That Have Happened Within One or Two Hundred Miles of Here.

The Hornellsville electric street railroad commenced the regular running of cars Saturday.

A. S. Fenner of Alfred, who has been an inmate of Willard Asylum for some time, has returned to his home fully recovered.

It is reported that the old Baxter University of Music, located at Friendsburg, is to be re-opened. Joseph Luce, an old student of the school who has accumulated a fortune in mining, is at the head of the movement.

At Chautauque, a few days ago, a test vote was taken on woman's suffrage, and only twenty votes were recorded against it. It was woman's day at the camp and a big crowd was present. Bishop Vincent was among the twenty who refused to give the ladies a complimentary vote.

Mrs. Mary J. Willard has been president of the Allegany W. C. T. U. for ten years. Last week she was again re-elected to the position, and the compliment came to her on her fiftieth birthday. But there was a little incident connected with the occasion which tended to make it a surprise party. When she was declared elected, Mrs. Allen, wife of Prof. Jonathan Allen of Alfred University, presented her with fifteen dollars in gold, and accompanied the present with fitting remarks. It was indeed a surprise, but as a mark of confidence and respect, it was most pleasant and acceptable. Reliance Post.

Calvin S. Stowell, ex-mayor of Olean, a prominent Knight Templar who went with the Elmiran Commandery to the convolve in Dever, was killed at Maniton Springs Thursday. He dove into the plunge bath at the springs, and he did not come up to the surface until brought up dead. No citizen of Olean was better known, or more respected than Mr. Stowell. He was a postmaster of that city under President Cleveland and had been deputy sheriff, and had held other important offices besides that of Mayor. He occupied a responsible position in the Exchange National Bank for a number of years before he received his appointment as postmaster, and was prominently identified with building projects and various public improvements. He stood high in Masonic circles. His death will be a loss to the community and will be universally regretted. He leaves a wife and several children. Mr. Stowell formerly resided in Friendship.

James Faulkner, who with his brother, Lester B. Faulkner, wrecked the First National Bank of Dansville, will soon be a free man again, having been pardoned by the President. A dispatch from Washington says: In the case of James Faulkner, formerly president of the First National bank of Dansville, N. Y., who was convicted September 30th, 1890, of violating United States banking laws in making false reports to the comptroller of the currency, and sentenced January 22d, 1891, to five years' imprisonment at the Erie county penitentiary at Buffalo, the President has remitted the unexpired portion of the sentence, which he says he does "only because I am advised that the United States having used the prisoner against one jointly indicted (his brother), an equitable right to clemency under the decision of the supreme court is established. The right, if it can be called such, could not be enforced, but as it has become a settled rule in criminal procedure, I very reluctantly act upon it."

Last Friday's Elmira Gazette says: Gustave Nascholds, who six years ago resided in this city, and was a bridge builder, made his appearance here today and applied to Overseer of the Poor Lucy for assistance to go to Buffalo. He was given a ticket as far as Hornellsville. Gustave's case is a remarkable one, probably without parallel. He was employed by an elevator company putting up elevators. While at Portland, Maine, he fell a distance of seventy-five feet, and lived to tell the tale. He carries a letter from Albert Coleman, the foreman, stating that his skull was broken as well as his legs, arms and jawbone, and the accident also left him subject to epileptic fits. Every tooth in his head was knocked out. A wife and five children are dependent upon him for support in Buffalo. Such a case as Nascholds' was never before recorded. He was in a hospital at Portland for eighteen months. He stated to a Gazette reporter this afternoon that the accident was due to a rotten rope. He had been offered $8,000 by the company and had accepted. He was sent to Elmira from Susquehanna.

Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Burdick's Silver Wedding.

From the Centraia (Ill.) Sentinel we copy the following account of the celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Burdick, who formerly lived in Andover, and taught school here. We are sure it will be read with interest:

Pursuant to a call issued by a duly authorized committee, a large number of the very best people in Centraia went, last Saturday night, to the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Burdick, in the absence of these worthy and much beloved people, and when the lawn had been lighted with scores of gay Japanese lanterns and decorated with a profusion of flags, the multitude took the lawn chairs provided for the occasion, and waited for the arrival of the host and hostess.

Everybody wanted everybody to know that Mr. and Mrs. Burdick had been married a quarter of a century, and that there was not so much silver in their house but that room could be found for more, and that a most elegant assortment was on hand as a token of loving remembrance, the gift being the united contribution, not only of those who had assembled, but of many others who could not be present.

When the good man and his faithful spouse appeared on the scene, the surprise was perfect. Not a hint had reached their ears, although the plan had been several days developing.

Surprised as they indeed were, they soon recovered themselves, and bade one and all a hearty welcome. So many teachers were present, so many high school students with their parents and other friends were there, that a casual observer would almost have mistaken the affair for one of those old gala days we so much enjoyed when Mr. Burdick was the popular superintendent of our city schools, and Mrs. Burdick was the equally popular principal of the high school.

Now that Mr. Burdick is County Superintendent, extending his influence over a wider territory, and Mrs. Burdick is sought for by school officers from other towns and asked to fill better positions than we have to offer her, the Burdicks have not lost a bit of their old time interest in the host of friends they have at home.

The presentation of the silverware, one part of which was an entire silver tea service with gold linings, was very happily made by Mrs. Kate Andrews, whose excellent record as an impromptu speechmaker lost nothing by this effort. To this address Mr. and Mrs. Burdick responded in a few words but with voices trembling with emotion.

Refreshments had also been brought by the guests and were served by a bevy of high school girls. Finer cakes and better ice cream never graced a royal feast or gave better satisfaction to all who shared them.

After the repast enough uncut loaves remained to keep several families well "caked" for some time to come, yet Mrs. Burdick's neighbors know that nothing of that kind is needed to keep them and her firmly "caked" or bound together in sympathy and regard.

More than one family will testify that when scarlet fever, diphtheria, or some dreaded scourge has overtaken their household and frightened away almost every other friend, there was one woman who could be relied upon to stand by like a soldier on duty, ministering to the sick as far as lay in her power, or smoothing with gentle touch the pillow of the dying, and then performing with willing hands the last sad offices for the dear ones whose coffin sleep was dreamless. Blessings be upon you, good friends, Mr. and Mrs. Burdick, both for the "uplift" you have given our children educationally and for the good influence you have exerted upon those around you. Your hands have been ready to help the oppressed and abused ones, and some day we hope you may reap what you have sown. When your pupils have become the business men and women of Centraia, may the "bread you have cast upon the waters return to you with butter on it."
