There is some talk of a Fourth of July celebration in Andover this year. Why wouldn't it be a good scheme?

Last Friday the Junior ball nine from Alfred came to Andover and were defeated by the Junior nine of this place by a score of 27 to 38.

The Allegany County Historical Society should have more members in Andover. Surely there are many persons in this town who should be interested in the history of this county. Full information may be obtained of T. N. Boyd.

Among the new sidewalks built within the past week are those in front of and alongside the Andover State Bank building; on the south side of the Ellis block, owned by O. E. Vars, and in front of the residence of Frank Rogers, at the east end of Dyke street.

At St. Ann's church, Wednesday morning, the marriage of Miss Winnie Hessian of this city, to Michael Dixon of Andover, occurred. The newly wedded couple left on train 8 for a ten day trip to New York and Boston, after which they will be at home in Andover. —Hornellsville Herald.

James Gilmore, a former resident of this place, and a brother of Mrs. James Owen, is visiting in town. He is accompanied by his little daughter Florence, and also by his mother, Mrs. Wm. Gilmore, of York, N. Y. Mr. Gilmore has just returned from California, where he has been for some time past.

The Commissioners appointed to determine the matter of opening a new road from a point near the residence of John Mitchell in Shovel Hollow to the Slate Creek road in Greenwood, will meet at Crayton L. Earley's law office in this village, Wednesday, May 15th, to hear arguments, and will then take a trip on the route of the proposed new road.

It is said that Alfred Station is henceforth to be known as Keller. Not being up in the classics, we don't know whether Keller was a Greek god or a Latin poet. We take it for granted that he must be a famous ancient or illustrious modern personage; but it looks to us from this distance that it will be no improvement on the present name.

The band boys are making an effort to purchase new uniforms and are meeting with substantial help from many citizens who appreciate the organization. Enough money should easily be raised to buy the suits, and all persons in this place who believe in sustaining a first class musical organization should do what they can to defray the expense.

Several local bicyclists have joined the national organization called the League of American Wheelmen, and there is talk of organizing a club here, either as a branch of the above-named society or independent of the same. There are many advantages to be derived by organization, and Andover cyclists propose to have whatever benefits there are going.

John S. Minard, writing to the Fillmore Observer, says: "It was mainly in deference to Andover and grand old Alfred that the celebration has been postponed a week. It was found to be upon the same date as their Commencements, which would really work to the mutual injury of two or three events, and so it was wise in the committee to take the course they have."

Alfred has a number of lady bicyclists, and on account of mock modesty, they are trying to ride their wheels with the cumbersome skirts. Some, however, we are glad to see are adopting the bloomer, or something similar. —Alfred Sun. That's sensible, and the indications are that by the time the limbs of the trees shall be in bloom, those of the lady bicyclists will be in bloomers.

Two of Andover's wheelmen started on a cycling trip early Monday morning, expecting to be absent the greater part of this week. We don't know whether these two young men made their regular Sunday evening visits the previous evening or not, but if they did, we scarcely think they mentioned the fact that at the other end of their proposed cycling route were two certain fair ones impatiently awaiting the arrival of these same two young men. It may be that upon their return home a story will be told of a number of days spent camping and dining many miles from civilization with another company than the ones in the brook and the pond. —Alfred Sun. It will be a fair story, and the town is printed to serve as a "pointer" to all interested parties.

The remains of John Padden, son of Hubert Padden, arrived on train 12 Friday evening, and the funeral services and burial took place Saturday morning, the obsequies being largely attended. The young man was employed on a railroad in Illinois, and came to his death in an accident while in the discharge of his duties.

The News is requested to announce that a meeting of ladies will be held at the residence of Mrs. Mourhess next Monday evening, to appoint a committee to secure relics for the museum to be exhibited at the Centennial Celebration in Wellsville June 28 and 27. This matter was noticed at some length in the News last week. It is desired to have a large attendance at this meeting and every lady in the village and town who can is urged to attend.

Telegrams will reach P. S. Place, the undertaker of Alfred, who has charge of J. A. Robinson's undertaking business, at any hour of the day or night.
