

THE ANDOVER NEWS.
ONE DOLLAR A YEAR.

HAMILTON C. NOBBS, EDITOR
ANDOVER, N. Y., May 29, 1895.

Secretary Carlisle has opened his batteries, but the free coinage flag still flies.

Popular ten per-centers—those who make that advance in their employes' wages.

When John Bull wants anything he sends a few gun boats after it, and gets it.

There is no discount upon the white-washing abilities of certain New York legislators.

It isn't every man who expresses joy over the income tax decision who saves money by it.

According to the newspaper pictures Mr. Benjamin Harrison is growing a bay window as well as a boom.

Lots of politicians are lying awake o' nights trying to figure out which side of the financial question will pay them best.

Ex-President Harrison is reported to have had his beard trimmed to a point. Perhaps he's getting ready to stick somebody.

Wonder if Dr. Talmage is thinking of having a go at politics? He says the good done in New York ought to be more talked about.

A silver dollar represents more value to the average man than does a paper dollar issued by a private bank, and it's perfectly natural that it should.

It seems that justices of the Supreme Court are just as liable to change their minds as the rest of us. If they were women men would have more to say about it.

A Russian church has been added to the religious institutions of New York, but the church presided over by Old Nick is still doing a big business in that town.

Secretary Carlisle toots his gold horn quite skillfully, but the sounds are not so melodious to many of his former followers as were those he once produced on a silver instrument.

Fashion decrees that brides shall not wear décollete gowns during the first year of their marriage. If fashion would like for once to be synonymous with common sense it will issue another decree, prohibiting décollete gowns being worn by unmarried women.

Ex-Senator Butler, who was for some years one of the political bosses of South Carolina, has also discovered the great joys of private life, or says he has. He said the other day: "I don't know that I could get an office if I wanted it, but, thank God, I don't want it."

The Carnegie company is being overpraised for having kept its word, to raise its employes' wages as soon as business would justify it. It may be unusual for corporations to keep their words, but it isn't as rare as might be supposed from reading so much editorial praise of Carnegie.

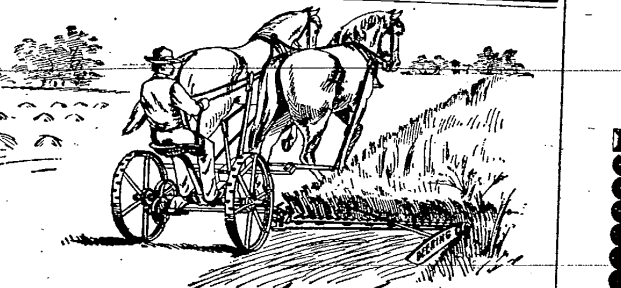

The News recently mentioned a law enacted by the late Legislature which made the widow an heir with lineal descendants. This law, according to the Syracuse Post, was repealed at the same session at which it was passed, a very unusual occurrence. In some way the bill was pushed through the Legislature without attracting much attention. It was signed by the Governor and became a law before many people fully realized its full import. At once serious objections were raised and members of the New York Bar Association took active steps to have it repealed. They were successful, and an act repealing the law passed the Legislature and received the Governor's approval at the same session in which the act to be repealed was passed. It is said that this is the first occurrence of the kind in a quarter of a century. It was a short lived law, and though harmful in its possibilities it probably did little mischief during its short existence.

Mr. D. Wiley, ex-postmaster, Black Creek, N. Y., was so badly afflicted with rheumatism that he was only able to hobble around with canes, and even then it caused him great pain. After using Chamberlain's Pain Balm he was so much improved that he threw away his canes. He says the liniment did him more good than all other medicines and treatment put together. For sale at 50 cents per bottle by L. A. Burrows.

ELEVATOR EXTENSIONS make it practically open-end for long grain, and enable it to handle longer straw than any other binder, at the same time protecting and shielding the heads of grain.
