

Handover News.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 26, 1895.

A St. Louis court has ruled that an engaged girl has an insurable interest in the life of her fiancé.

Gladstone said recently that he was too old to have an opinion on the new woman. His "ideal woman had not altered in the last three score years and ten."

It has been recently calculated that during the eighteen years ending with June 30, 1890, no fewer than 1826 persons were killed in cyclones in the United States.

A society for the suppression of scandal has just been started at Interburg, in East Prussia. Every scandalous story spread in the town will be traced and the originator prosecuted by the society.

The New Orleans Picayune is astonished because Henry W. Rall, of New York, has been sentenced to prison for a year for shooting himself, and the same day, in the same city, a woman, who had tried to murder her husband, was discharged.

Two reasons given in the New York Sun for the falling off in the receipts at Monte Carlo are the financial stringency in the United States and in Italy—the Nations that spent most money at the tables—and the rise of Cairo as a winter resort.

It is not generally known, declares the New York Sun, that "the territory proposed to be annexed to this city slightly exceeds in area the present annexed district. The new area measures 13,000 acres, which is nearly equal to the area of Manhattan Island. The entire area of the city is now about 41 1/2 square miles. With the new annexation it will be a little short of sixty-four square miles. New York even then will be one of the smallest in area of the large American cities."

The English ruling classes are showing a high degree of intelligence in the manner of their recruiting system, admits the Atlanta Constitution. They have got rid of the fundamental idea of an aristocracy of birth. They no longer insist that in order to be entitled to rule others the aristocrat must be able to trace his pedigree back to Odin and Thor. They are carefully constructing a new aristocracy on the fundamental principle that the strong are entitled to rule the weak. Whenever in the England of to-day a strong man appears the ruling class at once attempts to conciliate him. He may be a successful brewer, or a great and powerful pawnbroker or an artist or a poet or an actor or a soldier. It makes no difference what he is or where he comes from. If he shows strength, if he demonstrates his ability to thrust his way to the front in the struggle for existence, if he has shown the power to push the weak aside or even if he is merely excellent without being aggressive, he is watched in the hope that his strength can be added to that of the governing class.

If there was ever an historical event of peace that deserved commemoration by painting or statuary it was the laying of the Atlantic cable, maintains the New York Independent. In our own history the Declaration of Independence or the signing of the Emancipation Proclamation may be greater, but they were events of war as well as of peace. It is highly proper that the Chamber of Commerce of New York City should have honored the memory of Cyrus W. Field and the distinguished men who were associated with him—Peter Cooper, Moses Taylor, Marshall O. Roberts, Wilson G. Hunt, Samuel F. B. Morse, Chandler White and David Dudley Field, by the unveiling of a noble painting of the projectors of the Atlantic cable, by the venerable artist, Daniel Huntington. Mr. Field is represented as standing by a table in the presence of his seated associates, and explaining to them his project on a map. Mr. Dewey delivered the address in honor of Mr. Field. Two brothers of Cyrus W. Field are now living, one Justice Field, of the United States Supreme Court, the other, Dr. Henry M. Field, of the Evangelical Justice Society, of the Supreme Court, in his members.

STILL FOR ANNEXATION

Policy of the Hawaiian Government.

Special Session of the Little Republic's First Legislature—Efforts To Induce Immigration from America Favored—Weakness of the Government Denied.

Honolulu, June 16, via San Francisco, June 24.—The special session of the first legislature of the republic convened at noon of the 12th in the former Throne room. A large assemblage was present. The only uniforms seen were those of United States naval officers. There was a total absence of parade.

Friendly Relation with All.
President Dole delivered an address of 15 minutes. He stated that the republic of Hawaii had been recognized by all the principal nations with whom relations were friendly. Internal affairs had been in an orderly and prosperous condition except the January insurrection, which had been suppressed without serious difficulty.

Annexation Still the Policy.
The outline, including expenses of the military court, had been over $90,000, paid from current funds. Annexation to the United States continued to be the policy of the government and would be earnestly sought for. A liberal policy was recommended in administering the public lands, so as to facilitate the acquirement of permanent holdings by industrious persons of small means. The crown lands should be managed to the same end. A bill would be submitted embracing such a land policy.

To Induce Immigration.
Special reference should be paid to inducing immigration of desirable American and other white settlers. Asiatic immigration was deprecated. Cable communication must be secured. Franchises and subsidies had been promised, but the time had come for the government activity to initiate the matter. A bill would be submitted.

Government Not Tottering.
Those reports were totally without foundation which were sent from San Francisco May 16, that the government was tottering and Thurston planning to restore the monarchy under Kaulani. The whole thing was a canard. The steamer Lehua cruised for three weeks but heard of no filibusters and gave up the search.

SEWED UP A BULL'S EYES.

Shocking Case of Inhumanity at Otisco, N. Y.
Syracuse, N. Y., June 24.—Special officer Casey, of the S. P. C. A., late Saturday afternoon, arrested Pries Parsons, an Otisco farmer, for a case of shocking and inhuman treatment of an unruly bull which persisted in knocking down fences. Parsons sewed up the eyelids of the unfortunate animal with two pieces of heavy wire sharpened at the points, which he inserted as a physician would a needle. After he had taken three or four stitches in each eyelid he twisted the ends of the wire together, and in this condition the bull was found, with his eyes terribly swollen and bleeding. The justice of the peace at South Onondaga let Parsons off with a paltry fine of $10.

AGROUND IN THE KIEL CANAL.

The Augusta Victoria Towed Off by a German War Ship.
Hamburg, June 24.—The Hamburg-American line steamer Augusta Victoria ran aground yesterday in the Kaiser Wilhelm I canal near the 29-kilometre stone. The German warship—Seeadler—towed her off and took her to a siding, where she will remain until the channel is dredged to a depth sufficient to allow her to continue her passage. Her grounding detained the steamers Rugia and Rhaetia of the same line, but these passed when the Augusta Victoria was towed into the siding.

Twenty-Five Cents, Moves.
Massillon, O., June 24.—Bridegroom Brown, according to his latest fulfilment, is proceeding to Washington by easy stages where he expects to be the central figure in the reunion of the pining commonweal. The necessity for proceeding by "easy stages" is plain, in view of the fact that he was obliged to borrow 25 cents to get as far as Canton. A complacent probate judge provided him with the marriage license for which no fee was paid, and an easy-going justice tied the knot on the same terms.

The Bride's Trouseau.
The bride, nee Coxey, travels from town to town in street attire, with her bridal outfit in a carpet bag. This trouseau was secured by Brown through an obliging acquaintance and consists of a gown of mud, a cheap white veil and a pair of white shoes, all of which cost exactly $4.82. Brown's programme is to deliver daily speeches while his wife sells "reform literature." Fort Scott, Kan., June 24.—The squad of deputy United States marshals who were in attendance upon the federal court in this city Saturday averted an attack upon the jail early yesterday morning by secretly removing Jerry Wallace, one of the prisoners who was sentenced by Judge Williams to be hanged September 27. He was hurried away in a carriage and taken to the Leavenworth penitentiary. Wallace killed his father-in-law, Alex Seane, who was an Indian.

INJURY TO THE RUDDER CAUSES THE DELAY IN ARRIVAL.

New York, June 24.—The American line's new steamer St. Louis, which arrived Saturday, traveled over one thousand miles without the use of her rudder, which was rendered useless by a break. The vessel was steered by her twin screws.

Flaw in the Steel.
The accident which delayed the vessel was due principally to a flaw in the steel of which her rudder stock is made. The severe racking the metal received during the first two days out unquestionably widened the weakness and started the fracture. The St. Paul, now nearing completion at the Cramp yards, in Philadelphia, has such another rudder and this will be in all probability brought to this city and fitted to the St. Louis. If this may be done, and both Mr. Cramp and Mr. Towne believe that the change can be effected, the St. Louis will be ready to start on her outward trip at the regular time on Wednesday.

Expect Great Things of Her.
Mr. Towne was enthusiastic when speaking of what the ship had done. "I believe," he said, "that she will certainly do 20.50 knots an hour, and in all probability 21 knots when she has warmed up to her work. She will be the fastest vessel of her class afloat, and will knock the stuffing out of everything save the Lusitania and Campania, which are not of her class. She made 19 1/2 knots an hour for thirty-four consecutive hours just before her rudder gave out, and this was without being pushed.

CHICAGO TEAM ARRESTED.

Charged with Violating Sunday Law—The Game Not Stopped.
Chicago, June 24.—The Sunday observance league made good its threat yesterday and arrested the members of the Chicago league ball team after the third inning of the game with Cleveland. President Hart told the five constables that he would submit quietly to arrest if the players were allowed to give bonds on the spot. This was agreed to and Justice Cleveland, of Norwood park before whom the warrants were sworn out, accepted M. Posner and E. Frank as securities for the players. Each man was held in $100 bonds until July 2, when the case will come up for trial. Warrants were also sworn out for Tebeau and McGann. BERENICE ST. CYR

A Story of Love, Intrigue and Crime.

BY DWIGHT BALD

CHAPTER VI.—Continued.

Cole Winters had heard nothing of above conversation which had been tried on in low tones, but the square in the rough floor was sufficient to apprise him of the diabolical scheme of his heartless enemies. No one spoke, but stepping closer to the lantern, Sears produced a book with the contents of which he began muttering a large handkerchief.

"Chicago form" gasped Cole, as he read the contents of the book. "Yes," retorted the youthful villain, "it comes high, but I don't care exp in making your exit pleasant."

The inhuman wretch laughed, and, vanishing, applied the handkerchief to face of his victim.

Cole Winters struggled manfully, realizing that his efforts at escape would be in vain, and tried to fix his mind upon the awful change which seemed inevitably to await him.

He was fast losing consciousness when an awful thought sped his sluggish brain into action.

When, in accordance with the plan of his murderers, his dead body was covered, there would be found upon it, alone the one bond placed in pocket by Sears, but the fifty-nine cents, aggregating in value the enormous sum of $300,000.

For these Mr. St. Cyr had been killed and their presence would establish guilt beyond all possible question.

Not only was he about to lose his life but the honorable name bequeathed by his dead father was to become a blot upon his name.

The guilty thought he uttered served only to renew the pressure of the death handkerchief.

Then men, light, hope of life, thought of honor, and, lastly, a vision of Berenice St. Cyr, disappeared from his sight and his mind.

Five minutes later the trio of villains departed the deserted den.

"Hold on," whispered Sears as he extinguished the lantern, and made ready to open the street door, "that we were for a run of good luck. We've got a line and won't be so much as expected."

CHAPTER VII.
TWO SURPRISES.

"Mat Hyland, you're a fool!"
"Mat Hyland, you're the detective!"
When they were addressed made no attempt to rejoin; on the contrary he added his head approvingly, though the expression upon his face seemed somewhat.

"You not only spotted him, but he was dead to rights. You ran upon him and then you ran upon you, and you wouldn't have the fish when you hooked yourself on your tackle. I'm ashamed of you, Mat Hyland!"
The person who was so freely upbraided the unfortunate detective passed in a walk, and spat upon the ground to emphasize his disgust.
