

THE ANDOVER NEWS.

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR.

HAMILTON C. NORRIS, EDITOR

ANDOVER, N. Y., July 17, 1895.

Don't bank on the work in English waters of the new Valkyrie. John Bull knows how to play possum.

The Presidential candidates are all envious of the attention bestowed by the country upon the new Cleveland baby.

Indiana doesn't believe in hiding her light. She is willing to furnish Presidential candidates for at least two of the political parties.

A man may be President and still be disappointed in his hopes, just like other individuals. Mr. Cleveland wanted that last girl to be a boy.

The smart aleck pokes fun at the victims of green goods men and bogus spiritualist mediums and then goes broke on a "sure thing" stock speculation.

What a high old time the professional masher will have 3,000 years from now, when, according to scientists, there will be 220 women for every man.

Some one should send Senator Hill a batch of newspaper clippings on the speech made in London by Ambassador Eustis, in order that he may realize the danger of sneering at jingoism.

The introduction of negroes, in place of the strikers at the iron works at Starou, Pa., is not regarded as a mark of good business sense, although it may, for a time, save the owners of the works a few dollars.

The two most disappointed men in the country are Corbett and Fitzsimmons; the last obstacle in the way of pulling off the fight vanished with the opinion of Judge Clark, that there was no law to prevent it.

All the newspaper oarsmen are now criticising Courtney's coaching. The fact that Cornell has won thirty-three out of thirty-five races since Courtney had charge of the crew seems to have been forgotten.

According to the cable news, European astronomers are studying the geography of the star Venus. Americans are also studying Venus, but it is the sea nymph Venus, emerging from her daily salt water plunge.

According to statistics, it is safer to travel on an ocean steamship than to walk around the streets of a city. Still, a majority will continue to shin around the streets, unless the ocean steamers are more liberal with passes.

It doesn't take much to offend royalty. Queen Victoria is hopping mad because one of her accountants has given away the amount of her personal fortune. The poor, old woman has only managed to scrape together about $175,000,000.

Three of a kind may be prayed for by wicked men who dally with seductive jack pots and other combinations which sometimes accompany "sitting up with a sick friend," but three girls and no boys looks like an attempt to corner the "new woman" market.

Four of the leading hotels of Boston have determined to no longer serve pie to their patrons. The news comes as a sort of shock, for the New Englanders have long been regarded as the champion pie eaters of the world. If Boston now taboos pie, how long will it be before the ban is placed upon the baked bean?

In the little town of Freeville, Tompkins county, just south of Cortland, is the W. R. George Industrial Camp, a most practical charity which has been in operation for five years. The Industrial Camp was organized for the purpose of giving health, education and moral teachings to as many of the children taken from the slums of New York City as could be accommodated. It is in the nature of a republic, and the children who attend it are educated, especially in the duties attendant upon American citizenship. They make their own laws, elect their own legislators, coin their own money, keep their own banks and in general maintain all the features of a colony during the months of July and August of each year, when they are in camp. It is intended to instill into the gamins who are taken from the metropolis a civic pride and general intelligence which will be profitable to the city of New York and the State of New York when they attain to manhood. Boys and girls between the ages of 12 and 15 years are among the majority of those taken. For the boys are established classes in farming, architectural carpentry and cobbling; for the girls, classes in cooking, housekeeping, millinery, sewing, dressmaking and flower gardening. The children at the camp have to pay for everything they receive, but, at the same time, receive salaries for the work which they do.
