

THE ANDOVER NEWS.
ONE DOLLAR A YEAR.

HAMILTON C. NORRIS, EDITOR.

ANDOVER, N. Y., July 24, 1896.

Gov. McKinley is evidently going to talk it out, if it takes all summer, and next winter and spring, too.

It seems to be easier to arouse sympathy, in some people's hearts, for the faraway Armenians than for the sufferers at their doors.

While a man who has grown rich in office may be personally honest, his constituents will lose nothing by allowing him to enjoy his wealth as a private citizen.

Hardin deserves defeat for his cowardice, in promising not to discuss the silver question, to which he owes much, if not everything, in his canvass for the governorship of Kentucky.

The makers of New York city's excise laws never intended that they should be enforced. The present board of Police Commissioners are trying to enforce them; hence the riot.

A Presidential literary bureau is a dangerous thing for would-be candidates to monkey with, although several gentlemen will not believe it; they will later on—say about this time next year.

Five years is a long time in the life of a politician. In 1890 Secretary Hoke Smith, now a goldbug of the goldbugs, wrote a letter advocating free silver and a currency based on agricultural products.

The French duel doesn't go in Oklahoma, where both participants in a recent duel were dangerously wounded; nor in Missouri, where a duel lately resulted in the death of one of the principals and the jailing of the other.

When President Cleveland described his married life as "one grand, sweet song," there were no babies in his house. There is more than one song now, and when one of them starts in the dead of night it is apt to be neither grand nor sweet.

President Cleveland's latest baby has been named Marion. If the Cleveland household can't have a boy, it will have a girl with a boy's name, unless an error in spelling has been made by the dispatches from Gray Gables which announced the naming of the newcomer.

According to Senator Jones, of Arkansas, one of the callers, that August conference to be held in Washington is to be held for no other purpose than to organize the silver democrats in order to make a fight in the several States for silver delegates to the next democratic national convention.

Dr. P. J. Gibbons has some peculiar ideas concerning electricity. It may be recalled that he is the Syracuse doctor who, a few months ago, created something of a stir by declaring that execution by electricity was a failure, and offering to prove it by resuscitating the next murderer to get into the death chair. Needless to say, his challenge was not accepted by the authorities. Had he succeeded, too many puzzling questions could have been raised. Dr. Gibbons is now out with a theory that electricity is not hot, but of extreme cold. Of course electricity burns, but that is a degree of cold which produces what we know as burns upon the human flesh. "Electricity," says Dr. Gibbons, "is usually said to have a temperature of over 100 degrees Fahrenheit, but I claim on the contrary, that it is in itself a cold medium which is not warmer than 60 degrees. I have come to the conclusion that it is a material substance with a specific gravity, and in proof of this assertion will state the well known fact that when a storage battery is charged with electricity it gains in weight. This proves that the fluid is in itself of a ponderable nature. My researches have convinced me that the day is not far distant when the electric fluid will be directly used, with no intervening media, as a promoter of cold, and if I am correct in this supposition it will open up vast and hitherto unknown possibilities in this field. Among the uses to which it might advantageously be applied are the reduction of the temperature in fevers, for cooling residences and for cold storage. Ice might even be made directly from electric currents." Syracuse may be hiding a genius in Dr. Gibbons. Certainly he has theories enough, and all that he needs to do now is to fit the fact to the theories. The doctor has also been making a motor, a small model of which he has in his office. This is about six inches in height and consists of a solid wheel of paper mache in which some blades of steel are obliquely imbedded on the circumference. The doctor holds two small magnets of the ordinary horseshoe form close to the little wheel at the extremities of its diameter, and this causes it slowly to turn on its axis. Dr. Gibbons explained that by carefully balancing each magnet on a pivot, so as to allow them a small latitude of motion, a perfect motor would be obtained which would continue to act until the power of the magnets was exhausted. —Buffalo Express.
