Big Pulpwood Refts

The monster raft of pulpwood which has been expected at Long Tail Point, Wisconsin, has arrived in tow of the tugs Sampson and Saugatuk. There are about ,000 cords of pulpwood in the raft, which is about one mile in circumference and is worth in round figures $40,000. The raft was on the road eighteen days from Detour, Mich. There are 550 boom sticks around the raft, and hese are worth $13,000 or $14,000. The tug A. J. Smith is on the way with another big raft.

There is certainly some slight feeling of hu niliation in being bent down and obliged to reep along for fear of a snap in the spinal olumn. It is such a plain show of decrepicolumn. It is such a plain show of decrepi-tude that we feel embarrassed. It is seen every day when lumbago takes: cood hold on a sittoh in the back. There a vary little sympathy for one in such a plight, for it is so well known that 8t. Jacobs Oll will cure it promptly and that neglect is the cause of so much disability. Why not keen the remedy always on hand and prevent such discomfort?

ASTHMA THE WHITE BIRCH.

A Splendid Tree That is Put to Many Uses.

Why not call trees people? since, if you come to live amou since, if you come to live among them year after year, you will learn to know many of them personally, and an attachment will grow up between you and them individually." So-writes that "Doctor Amabilia" of woodcraft, W. C. Prime, in his book "Among the Northern Hills," and straightway launches forth into eulogy of the white birch. And truly it is an admirable, lovable and comfortable tree, beautiful to look upon among fortable tree, beautiful to look upon and full of various uses. Its wood is strong to make paddles and axe handles, and glorious to burn, blazing up at first with a flashing flame, and then holding the fire in its glowing heart all through the night. Its bark is the most serviceable of all the products of the wilderness. In Russia, they say, it is used in tanning, and gives its subtle, sacerdotal fragrance to Russia leather. But here in the to Kussia leatner. But here in the woods it serves more primitive ends. It can be cut into square sheets to roof his shanty in the forest. It is the paper on which he writes his woodland despatches, and the flexible material which he bends into drinking cups of silver lined with gold. A thin strip of it wrapped around the end of a candle and fastened in a cleft stick makes a practicable chandelier. A basketfor hercable chandelier. A basket for berries, a horn to call the lovelorn moose through the autumnal woods, a canvas on which to draw the outline of great and memorable fish—all those and muny other indispensable luxuries are stored up for the skilful woodsman in birch bark.

Only do not robor mar the tree unless you really need what it has to give you. Let it stand and grow in virgin majesty, ungirdled and unscarred, while the trunk becomes a scarred, while the trunk becomes a firm pillar of the forest temple, and the branches spread abroad a refuge of bright green leaves for the birds of the air. Nature never made a more excellent piece of handiwork. "And if," said my lady Greygown, "I should ever become a dryad, I would become the become a dryad, I would shoose the become a dryad, into a second second into a second second into a second second second into a second secon should be be transformed into a white birch. And then, when the days of my life were numbered, and the sap had ceased to flow, and the last leaf had fallen, and the dry bark streamers, some wandering hunter would come in the wintry night and touch a lighted coal to my body, and my spirit would flash up in a fiery chariot into the sky. my spirit would flash chariot into the sky. -

The Nautch Dancer.

The tent was already densely packed with Hindoo spectators, a line of statuesque torch bearers stood around a long carpet, and at the end of the carpet lay a pile of cushions under a canopy, all of gold worked crimson velvet. This was the Rajah's place, but as he had sent word that he could not be present, the music struck up when our parby had seated themselves in a row of chairs on a raised platform at the right. Then the dancing began—dances by several bayaderes, and single dances acraised platform at the right. Then the dancing began—dances by several bayaderes, and single dances accompanied with song or recitative, ending with a performance by the court actors. After a preliminary ballet, in which two or three took part, a dainty little personage came forward—graceful, gazelle—eyed—enveloped in a filmy cloud of black and gold gauze, which floated airily about her; she was the living incarnation of the Nautch, as interpreted by the sculptors of Chitor; from the air of laughing assurance with which she surveyed her assembled subjects, it was evident that she was accustoment. was evident that she was accustomed to homage and sure of conquest. She held her audience absorbed and She held her audience absorbed and expectant by the monotonous and plaintive cadence of her song, by long glances full of intense meaning from half closed eyes, and by swift changes of expression and mood, as well as by the spell of "woven paces and of waving arms." One may see many a Nautch without retaining such a vivid impression; much of its force was owing, no doubt, to the fitness of the place and the charm of strange accessories, the uncertain glare of the smoking torches, the mingling of musky odors with the overpowering seent of attar of roses, and of wilting jasmine flowers; these perfumes were intensified in the close air of the each by the heat of the air of the tent by the heat of the night—the prelude to the fiercer heat which comes with the morning and the rising of the hot wind.

A Curious Dust Shower.

Some interesting results have re-cently been obtained by analyzing a portion of a curious shower of dust which fell during a snow storm las month in Indiana. It was proved that the dust was not the nuclei of snow lakes, but was composed largely of silt mixed with organic matter, fibres of grass, shreds of woody tissue It has been found that the soil in certain sections of Indiana is made to of large deposits of this dust.

The Rose.

Some indication of the origin of the rose, both in time and in country, is probably given in its name. This, undoubtedly, comes to us through the Latin from the Greek hrodon, a word which is now agreed to be, in the wider sense, Oriental, not Greek. But to which of the two great families of language it belongs, is less certain. Heyn maintains it to be Iranian, that is, of the Aryan family—of the older tongue of Persia and Bactria: and Persia might unquestionably put forward strong claims to be the true put forward strong claims to be the tru native country of the rose. But Professor native country of the rose. But Professor Skeat, who has the majority of modern authorities on his side, declares it to be a pure Semitic word—the Arabic ward, a flowering shrub, thus denoting the flower of flowers par excellence. It is worth noticing that the Persian word gul similarly meant at first only a perfumed flower, but has come to be used of the rose alone. Ut rosa flos florum, sic est domus ista domorum, is the emphatic way in which the inscription over the lovely—Chapter-house at York claims it as being the very bower of architecture.

Both theories, however, of the name agree with all other indications that we can trace, in placing the original home of the trace, in placing the original home of the rose, much as that of our earliest forefathers, in the central or western-central district of Asia: but, instead of spreading only in a westerly direction, the rose took, apparently, a more catholic view of the earth, and expanded impartially east and vest without they included. west, without showing any reluctance about longitude, while disliking the more violeut changes of temperature implied by an extension of latitude. It has been found an extension of fatitude. It has been tound by travelers as far south as Abyssinia in one hemisphere and Mexico in the other; but it never seems, voluntarily, to have come very near to the equator. Northward, however, nothing seems to stop it, since it has conquered leeland, Greenland. and Kamschatka. The modern cultivated rose, on the contrary, has leapt the equa-or, and, like ancient Rome, has taken all he world for its province.

Within a few years the Great American Desert will be transformed American Desert will be transformed into one of the most fertile spots in creation." is the prophecy of Col. W. H. Already the Rec River Valley is a blooming bower, with its sweetest oranges, vegetable and fruit products of all varieties, and surprising combinations in the propagution of many vegetable grades. A movement is now under propagation of many vegetable grades. A movement is now under way to dam the Agua Fria River in the highlands west and northwest of Phoenix and bring thousands of acres of arid land within sands of acres of and land within cultivation. This entire country, at one time unproductive of anything but cacti and sage brush, will soon be-considered highly valuable and worthy of attention."

Rattlesnake Weed.

In Santa Clara County, California, there grows a weed called the rattle-snake weed. It is so named from the story that when rattlesnakes get to fighting and bite each other, this weed, if eaten by them, will prevent death. It grows about six inches tall, has a red stalk and slender-leaves. On the top of the stalk comes a head of flowers, and the seeds of these flowers are said to be very annoying to one in passing through a mass of them, as they are furnished with sharp barbs, commonly called with sharp barbs, commonly called stickers. Man in the White Waistcoat.

At a public meeting some time ago a centleman, while speaking, frequently made use of the phrase, "this is a fact." One gentleman at the farther end of the room, wearing a white waistcoat, kept interrupting the speaker by calling out: "Give us the facts."

"At list the speaker could not stand it any longer, so he said: "Ladies and gentlemen: I will now endeavor to give you a personal fact. I have traveled in almost every part of the world, have spoken to people of all nations, but I have never come across such a foolish fellow as the man at the end of the room in the white waistcoat, and this is a fact."
