

Recover News.

WEDNESDAY, OCT. 16, 1896.

More than 100 canning factories have been started in North Carolina this year, and hereafter there will probably be a great increase in the number of factories with each recurring fruit season throughout the whole South.

Mrs. Wynwood, in Zangwill's novel of "The Master," lays it down as an axiom that nine-tenths of the unmarried women in England have never had a proposal—this being, it must be remembered, only a man's guess, uttered under a woman name. On the other hand, an American woman of great social experience in many cities has committed herself to the opinion that the proportion is, in America, just the other way.

In casting about for a suitable title with which to characterize the passing century, it is not improbable, suggests the New York Telegram, that the "Age of Speed" will be found to be the most comprehensive. A glance at the news of the day shows, in addition to fast yachts, the trial trip of the fastest express train that has ever been run in America, a meeting of the three fastest four-year-olds that have ever run on the American track, the training of the fastest amateur sprinters for the international athletic contest, the fastest cable message ever handled by any of the cable companies, and the attempt of the St. Louis, one of the fastest of the ocean greyhounds, to break her own record.

Toronto, Canada, seems, to Harper's Weekly, to be one of the most regulated cities in the civilized world. Sunday is kept there like a suit of best clothes. There are no Sunday newspapers; the street cars don't run; nothing goes on except interest. Even the tides in Lake Ontario omit to ebb and flow on the Lord's Day. On week days you can ride on the Toronto street cars for four cents a ride, and if you are going to school you can ride at half rate, no matter how old you are or how big. The street railways pay the city a just rent for their franchises, and the resulting revenue is very large and saves taxes. Nevertheless, it is asserted from time to time that Toronto is losing in population. The good people don't care, for they say they would rather live in a good city than in a big one, but covetous persons who do business or own real estate in Toronto grumble, and say the town is too good to succeed.

The Chicago Times-Herald observes: "Albert Bach, who suggested before the medico-legal congress that physicians should have the right to destroy the life of a person afflicted with an incurable disease and suffering intensely from it, is not the first to advance the proposition. The subject, repulsive as it is to the imagination, has been discussed by more radical European scientists, who would also dispose of the congenitally insane and persons deformed from birth and liable to protracted pain. Their suggestions have never amounted to anything more than a temporary sensation. It may be conceded that in a few cases, such as acute mania or hydrophobia, where the patient is suffering from a pitiless malady without hope of relief short of death, the physician has taken the responsibility of ending the agony by administering an overdose of opiates. It is well known that during the war surgeons sometimes gave the coup de grace to tortured victims of battle. But what a responsibility these well-intending practitioners take! What an unholy function to gain the name of philanthropy or science! If the practice is common or if physicians generally approve of it they keep knowledge and approval to themselves. Their offense is murder under all laws, human and Divine. The sanctity of life is paramount to every other consideration, and it would be indeed deplorable if the right to slay and fear not should be delegated to any class of men, either by law or by common consent."

Money Offering from Mexico. Oct. 14.—The pope has received numerous money offerings from the Mexican episcopate.

Paris, Oct. 14.—A dispatch from Seoul, the capital of Korea, confirms the reports that the queen was murdered while the Japanese troops were at the palace gates. There is nothing to show, the dispatch adds, that the Japanese minister was aware of the plot. The king is now a prisoner, and his father, Tai-Won-Tun, the leader of the reactionary element, has been proclaimed dictator. The new cabinet will be made up of pro-Japanese elements. The queen's officials have fled. A Japanese named Soshi has been arrested for the murder of the queen.

NO-FIGHT AT HOT SPRINGS. Gov. Clarke Determined To Prevent the Mill.

Little Rock, Ark., Oct. 14.—Gov. Clarke said last night: "You may put it in your pipe and smoke it that there will be no prize fight at Hot Springs. There may be a fight and riot, for these people are very determined, but there will be no prize fight. This force bill (referring to the old statute discovered Saturday) empowers me to organize an army of 100,000 men if necessary and take possession of any section of territory in this state, hold possession of such territory until order and quiet are restored. Under this statute it is not necessary for the governor to be called on by the sheriff, and I am empowered to step in and stop this fight should an attempt be made to bring it off at Hot Springs or any other place in the state. This law gives me the power, and if necessary I will use it. You may state positively that there will be no prize fight at Hot Springs."

The Sheriff Against the Fighters. Little Rock, Ark., Oct. 14.—Sheriff Houpt of Hot Springs, who was here to consult Governor Clarke regarding the proposed prize fight, in reply to a question said: "Most certainly the fight will not come off. If they attempt to fight I will stop them," and the earnestness of Sheriff Houpt's manner of speaking showed that he meant every word of it. "My word is out for it that the fight will not occur in my county and I mean to keep it."

Corbett Continues His Training. San Antonio, Tex., Oct. 14.—Corbett spent all of Sunday training. He began work at 9 o'clock and quit at 5. He is in jovial spirits to-day, having received a telegram from Brady stating that there is a fair chance of the fight being pulled off in Hot Springs.

Protection Guaranteed. Corbett later received another telegram from Brady telling him to leave for Hot Springs at once. The telegram further stated that training quarters had been secured and that protection is guaranteed. Corbett said he would leave to-night. It is very evident that Corbett still doubts the ability of the Florida Athletic club to bring off the fight at Hot Springs, notwithstanding the reassuring telegram from Brady.

The French Lost Seven Killed and Fifty Wounded.

Paris, Oct. 14.—An official dispatch has been received stating that severe fighting preceded the capture of Antananarivo by the French forces. The French lost seven killed and fifty wounded, including four officers.

Severe Engagements. General Duchesne, commanding the French forces in Madagascar, telegraphs that the troops who marched from the coast to the capital had severe engagements with the Hovas on Sept. 28 and 29. On the 30th the French attacked the enemy, who had taken up their position in the mountain ridges east of Antananarivo. The positions were strongly held, and the French force was divided into two columns under Gens. Metzinger and Voyron. After a hot contest the Hovas were driven out of their position, but still resisted the advance of the French.

Royal Palace Struck by a Shell. The dispatch briefly records the progress of the battle until 2 o'clock in the afternoon. Then the enemy's batteries at the palace and at the north end of the capital opened fire on the French. Gen. Duchesne then ordered a general bombardment and sent six columns to attack the town. At this point the Hovas sent messengers to demand a truce. Gen. Duchesne stipulated that the French should occupy the town. This was agreed to, and the occupation was immediately effected. The royal palace was struck by a shell during the bombardment.

Pittsfield, Mass., Oct. 14.—Frank L. Pope, aged 65 years, one of the most prominent citizens of Great Barrington and with a large acquaintance among the electricians of the eastern states, was instantly killed by a shock of 3,000 volts in the cellar of his house last evening. He was manager of the Great Barrington Electric Light company, the principal buildings of which are located at Housatonic, five miles north of here. To facilitate the operations of the plant he had placed in his cellar a large and powerful converter. When the power was turned on last evening he visited the cellar to adjust the bearings. His family, up stairs, heard a heavy fall, and upon investigation found Mr. Pope dead on the floor. Doctors say death was instantaneous. When the car reached this point the brake rod broke and the motorman lost control. The car dashed down the hill until it reached McCarty street, where there is a sharp curve. Here it jumped the track and turned completely over, landing in a ravine alongside the road. The car was broken into splinters, and the three persons killed were horribly mangled. Just before the car jumped the track the conductor yelled to the passengers to all fall down to the bottom of the car. Before they obeyed the order Mrs. Foley dropped her young daughter Katie out of the car window and probably saved the child's life.

HARD ON PRIZE FIGHTERS

Danny Needham Arrested in St. Paul, Minn.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 14.—Danny Needham, who was to have engaged in a prize fight yesterday with Dick Moore, was arrested and compelled to give $1,000 bonds that he would not fight. The warrant also contained the name of Dick Moore, but the officers were not able to find him. There was a bare possibility of the fight being arranged by other means than by the use of a boat, so the last preventive was resorted to by prevailing upon Attorney-General Child to procure from the district court of Ramsey county a writ of injunction against the principals in the fight, their trainers and managers, and all the railroad companies whose roads led out of the city from in any manner aiding in bringing off the fight. When this had been done the anti-fight faction retired from the scene and left the officers of the law to execute the various orders and mandates. Behind all this was the governor's proclamation, issued a few days ago, to the effect that the prize fight must not occur.

CROWDS SEEK CURES. Schlatter Closes His Fourth Week of Public Healing.

Denver, Oct. 14.—Schlatter, the healer, closed the fourth week of public work here yesterday by treating as many people as usual. The crowd around the Fox home was the largest yet noted. They began to arrive as early as 1 a. m., and before Schlatter emerged the line extended four abreast for more than two blocks. After he returned to the house in the evening many disappointed ones could not repress their grief and they went sobbing away. Schlatter has announced that he has been told to stay again, and he will enter upon this duty before he leaves Denver. His strength shows no symptoms of failing, and he seems unchanged in disposition in spite of constant annoyances. Stories of cures difficult to believe are heard on every side, but not every one who takes the treatment is benefited. Many sad cases occur where people come long distances only to fail in finding relief. Schlatter does not profess to cure all, and he safely leaves the cases with "The Father."

DANNY

CHAPTER VII.—(Continued.) He returned to the depot whence he had come, and the very next train carried him back to New York city. He thought of the exchange of overcoats which he had made with his traveling acquaintance, and muttered: "By Jupiter! I left the keys and the wax impressions in my coat pocket. I hope they will not be the means of getting the young fellow with whom I exchanged coats into trouble."

When Stuart Harland alighted from the railway train the officers who were on the watch when the stranger whom they have followed, leaped upon the platform, were still at their post. Harland had not taken five steps when a heavy hand fell upon his shoulder, and as the light of the policeman's lantern was reflected full in his face the officer said, in a stern voice, as he grasped the young man's arm: "You are my prisoner! I arrest you in the charge of being a fugitive from justice!"

These two police officers were watching for Stuart Harland, for to them Sergeant Smith had wired the young man's description, and when they stopped the man who had taken Harland's overcoat, they were on the alert for the latter.

Stuart Harland's surprise was unbounded, and he was indignant, as well as angry. "What is the meaning of this outrage, there is certainly some mistake!" he exclaimed.

In a few words the police officers acquainted him with the fact of John Oakburn's murder, of which Sergeant Smith's dispatch had informed them.

"One of the officers added: "My instructions are simply to arrest you and return you to New York City at once."

"I suppose I must submit, but if you will only permit me to visit the house of a friend for a few moments, I shall be under obligations to you," said Stuart. "Impossible; the return train will leave in ten minutes," replied the officer. Stuart groaned.

"I have had my journey for naught," he muttered. Then he thought of Marion Oakburn and the singular circumstance that Stuart was in the broker's office at midnight. He recalled her frightened manner, and his mind was troubled.

The reflection as to how the public might construe his sudden night departure made him nervous and apprehensive. He was not skilled in the art of hiding his emotions, and they betrayed what was passing in his mind.

The officers who accompanied him watched him closely, and they said between themselves: "This business troubles him. He looks as though he were guilty."

Stuart never thought of examining the stranger's overcoat, which had carried into his possession as we have seen. His surprise and consternation were therefore, quite genuine when the skeleton keys and wax impressions were taken from his pocket when he was brought before the coroner.

In a few words after this discovery while the coroner motioned to the man who had taken the broker's office to be silent, Stuart explained how the exchange of overcoats came about, and he related it.

But Stuart's story was greeted with a murmur of incredulity, and it was clear that it was not generally credited. Harland observed this, and he turned to the young clerk who had been one of his co-laborers in the broker's office and said: "I am sure no one of you would wish to impugn my veracity, and I ask you if you recognize this coat as mine? If you do not see that it is never made for me—that it is at least three sizes larger."

The broker's clerks replied affirmatively, and expressed their conviction that Stuart's word was not to be doubted. This was certainly a confirmation of Harland's statement.
