

THE ANDOVER NEWS
ONE DOLLAR A YEAR.

HAMILTON C. NORRIS, EDITOR
ANDOVER, N. Y., October 16, 1895.

Secretary Herbert says he approached the silver question as a bimetalist. He ought to know, but we had an idea that he approached it as though he thought it was loaded.

In Cattaraugus county recently the foreman of a grand jury was himself under indictment. We know nothing of the circumstances of his case, but the mere fact of the occurrence brings to mind the saying "It takes a rogue to catch a rogue."

A peculiar, Puritan-like sentence was imposed on three offenders in Norristown, Pa., a few days ago. They were accused of assault and battery, and were released on their promise to accompany their accuser to church on each of the twelve next succeeding Sundays.

By the new Constitution and by laws passed by the Legislature, on and after January 1st next the court called the General Term will be a thing of the past. In its place will be an appellate division of the Supreme Court, which will sit at Albany.

Apparently Governor Clark of Arkansas is thoroughly imbued with the idea that it will be a great thing for his state to have a prize fight between Fitzsimmons and Corbett take place there. There are plenty of people in the country who look upon a prize fight as one of the most disgraceful performances that could be given, but all the same, if there is no way of preventing it, these same people would like to have their best eye close up to a good sized "peek hole" in the fence. And who among the News readers will say he is not one of them?

BALLOT LAW POINTERS.

In voting at the election this fall the elector will use the "blanket ballot," with the names of candidates of all parties on one ticket.

The column on the official ballot headed by the eagle will contain the Republican State and local nominations for all offices to be voted for.

The column headed by the star will contain the Democratic nominations.

The column headed by the ship will contain the Democratic Reform Organization nominations.

The column headed by the four-tain will contain the Prohibition nominations.

The column headed by the three leaf clover will contain the People's Party nominations.

The column headed by the arm and hammer will contain the Socialist Labor nominations. The emblems are solely for the guidance of voters who cannot read. The name of the party will be printed at the head of each column.

There will be a column on the right of the ballot in which a voter may write the name of any person for whom he desires to vote who is not nominated by any party.

Directly beneath the party emblem, in each column, will be a circle. To vote a straight ticket, the voter will simply make a cross (X) mark within the circle in the column containing the names of candidates for whom he wishes to vote.

If a voter wishes to vote a mixed ticket he may do so in either of two ways, viz:

1st. By ignoring the circle under the party emblem and making a cross (X) mark before the name of each candidate for whom he desires to vote in whatever column his name may be found.

2d. By making a cross (X) mark in the circle under the emblem in the column containing the greater number of candidates for whom he desires to vote, and then making a cross (X) mark before the name of every candidate in the other columns for whom he wishes to vote. His vote will then be counted for all candidates in the column under the circle where he has placed the mark except for the offices for which candidates are marked in the other columns.

Remember this: Do not draw a line through the name of any candidate, nor make any mark whatever on the ballot except the cross (X) mark. If you do the ballot will not be counted. The only exception to this is as follows: A voter may, in the extreme right hand column, write the name of any person for whom he wishes to vote, whose name is not printed on the ballot. He must also make a cross (X) mark before each name so written.

In addition to receiving a ballot containing the names of candidates to be voted for, the elector will also receive a ballot to be used in voting for or against the proposition to bond the State for $9,000,000 for canal improvement. If the voter wishes to vote for the proposition he will make a cross mark in the little space opposite the words "For the proposition to issue bonds," etc. If he wishes to vote against the measure he will make a cross mark in the space opposite the words "Against the proposition to issue bonds," etc.
