DIBERIAN RAILWAY.

It Will Shorten the Journey Round the World by Twenty Days.

The works in connection with the great Siberian Railway are being pushed along with much energy, and there can be little doubt but that this extended line will be completed earlier than was anticipated. Before six, and perhaps even before five, years have clapsed it will be possible to complete in ten, twelve or fourteen days a railway journey over a vast region which a few years ago was comparatively un-known, and the trip around the world will probably have been shortened by some twenty days. From St. Petersburg the journey via Moscow and Somora to the Ural Mountains can be done in three days. The distance from St. Petersburg to the Siberian frontier done in three days. The distance from St. Petersburg to the Siberian frontier by rail is about 1700 miles. At Tschet-jubinsk commences the West Siberian Railway, which has a length of nearly 900 miles. This section of the line passes through a flat, fertile, somewhat monotonous country, and crosses the four rivers, Tobol, Ischjin, Irtzsch and Ob. The cost of this portior of the Siberian Railway has proved to be rather less than was originally calculated, and the works have been so rapidly advanced that it was possible in the early part of the present year to open the Siberian section to the town of Omsk, on the Irtzsch. Before the end of 1895 the railway will be completed as far as the river Ob, and there will then be an unbroken line stretching eastward from Paris for a distance about 950 miles greater than the longest American transcontinents. distance about 950 miles greater than the longest American transcontinental line. In nine days it will then be pos-sible to travel from the borders of the Atlantic to the heart of Asia

Construction becomes more difficult Construction becomes more difficult between the river Ob and the city of Irkutek, which is close to the Baikal Lake. The works on this section have been pushed forward rapidly duringthe last two or three years.

At Krosnojarsk a bridge of 3200 feet length across the Jenisey is required. Although the transport of quired. Although the transport of rails has been very difficult, there is every reason to believe that the rail-way will be completed as far as Krosway will be completed as lar as Aros-nojarsk before the end of 1895. Ac-cording to the original plan, it was expected that the line as far as Irkutsk would be opened for general traffic by the year 1900, but it may now be conthe year 1900, but it may now be confidently predicted that this date will be considerably anticipated. The Krosnojarsk-Irkutsk section will now be pushed forward with a considerably increased staff of workmen.

There will be about 200 railway stations distributed over the line. Wherever it is impossible for passengers to tions distributed over the line. Wherever it is impossible for passengers to obtain private accommodations hotels will be attached to the stations. The rolling stock will comprise 2000 locomotives, 3000 passenger carriages and 36,000 wagons. The passenger traffic will, with few exceptions, be confined to third and fourth-class, and the tariff will be very low. The whole distance from Tschelbalinsk, at the distance from Tschelbajinsk, at the Asian frontier to Omsk costs a present about 23s third-class, and half that on fourth-class. Between any two sta-tion (which on the average are twentytion (which on the average are twentysix miles apart) the fares are respectively 1s 4d and 8d. According to this tariff, it will be possible to travel from one end of Asia to the other for about £15. There will be restaurant cars on some of the trains.

The average speed decreases eastward. Whilst from London or Paris to St. Petersburg the average speed is some twenty-seven to twenty eight miles an hour, it is barely twenty-two miles between St. Petersburg and the Ural Mountains, and in Siberia only fifteen miles an hour. The goods tariff will be fixed at a very moderate basis, and although the distance between Wladiwostok and Paris is about 8150 miles, it is expected that valuable goods, such as silk tea spices. ble goods, such as silk, tea, spices, etc., from the East, westward, and dry. goods, machinery, in the opposite di-rection, will be profitably carried by the Siberian Railway.—Engineering.

PRESIDENT OF TWO BANKS.

P. G. WEITING, PRESIDENT OF THE BANK OF WORORSTER, N. Y., AND OF TOURDO, IA., TELLS HOW HE SUPPERED.

Give up the Fight, but Persever-ance and Science Conquer His Troubles.

From the Republican, Cooperstown, N. 1 The people of the present are traveling a pace that would surprise the good old wives and knickerbookered grandfathers of a hundred years ago. Things are not done by degrees or stages in those days, but with a rush and hurry and says "no" to every setback. In fact, this is the great leading trait of the American people, and it never falls to at-tract the attention of other nations.

tract the attention of other nations.

This constant hurry and ever present business pressure has not been without its effect upon the nerves of the race, and every year wineses the increase of nervous disease. Medical science, however, has been keeping abreast with the times, and from the very demands made upon it there have sprung new departures and discoveries.

A reporter recently met Mr. Philip G. Welting, who is President of the Bank of Worcester, and of the Toledo City Bank, of Toledo, as, in the handsome little town of Worcester among the hills of Oisero County, N. Y., and conversation drifted to the present topic. Mr. Weiting had been a sufferer from locomotor staxia for twenty-five years, somethic which none but those who was a sufficient of the property of the pr

Mr. Weiting had been a sufferer from locomotor staxia for twenty-five years, something which none but those who have themselves been afflicted by the disease can appreciator. Knowing that he had traveled fur and wide in search of some beneficial treatment for his affliction, the reporter asked the President to give some facts in his own case. He responded wilhingly, Yes, "I suffered twenty-five years from locomotor atacia," Mr. Weiting said, "and during all that time I was seeking some relied. Well, I found it in Dr. Williams Pink Pills. Of course I have it yet, to some extent, but I'm feeling better and my legs are stronger than ever before. I never did have much faith in either doctors or medicines, and my long siege of suffering helped along this distrust in them. Why, I could scarcely walk any distance at all, and could not stand long without my knees yielding beneath my own weight. A porson cannot conceive of the suffering such a state brings upon the sufferer.

"I would go to Florida every year, and visited almost every health resort in the sountry. I went to the Sanitarium at lowa Falls, lowa, and also the very best in Michigan, but they didn't do me any good. I took the full course of their baths and massage and rubbing, without receiving the least benefit. Ithought I would have to give up all hope of ever curing myself. Finally I heard a good deal about Pink Pills through common report; and although, as I said, I heard as good deal about Pink Pills through the work without deriving any apparent benefit. but was advised to keep it up. So, when I went to Florida that year—three years ago this summer—I took a large quantity with me. them. They did what nothing slee could do."

During the entire interview Mr. Weiting remained standing and evidently did not experience the slightest discomfort, in spite of the protatoted period of his affliction. Although well along in years, he is still actively engaged in financial enterprises that necessitate a rast amount of mental and nervous energy. Suffice it to say he lacks neither, but makes his influence felt where over he is known. Beeldes being President of the Worcester Bank, Mr. Weiting is also President of the Tolodo City Plank, of Toledo, Lows, where his advice and south business policies are a controling element.

His commendation of Pink, Pills came unsolicited, and with the sincerity of one who fells what he says.
