COAKS

While merchants generally are complaining of dull times, we are enjoying an unusually good trade. Especially is this true of our Cloak department, making it difficult to keep up our lines, but with an extra trip to New York and frequent use of the telegraph lines, we have not been obliged to turn anybody away.

People who have gone to the cities on purpose to buy Cloaks have come back well satisfied with our goods and prices.

We show excellent values in plain and rough Jackets at $7.50, $10.00 and $12.50.

Fine Coney Capes at $9.50. Electric Seal Capes $19.00. Worth $25.00.

Stylish Jackets and Cloaks for misses and children.

Garments sent on approval for responsible parties, we paying express in case of sale.

Our store will be closed all day Thanksgiving.

The tax payers of the village of Angelica will, on Dec. 7, vote on the question of village ownership of water works. The people of that place have at last taken hold of the water works question at the right end, and if the vote is favorable, and the village secures a good system of water works, it will not take two years to demonstrate the fact that the action was wisely taken. The only people in Andover who are not satisfied with the plant here are those living in sections on the outskirts of the village where the mains do not reach. And in our opinion it will not be long before they, too, will share the privileges of the system.

Last week Stillman Burdick went to Buffalo on the excursion. On Thursday he was in East Buffalo, and was running to catch a street car, when he slipped and fell on the cobble pavement, sustaining a painful injury to his right ankle and leg. At first he thought that the limb was broken, but an examination showed that such was not the case, although the weight of his body falling on the member caused a severe injury. Mr. Burdick returned as far as Hornellsville that night, and was unable to proceed further until Sunday, when he came home. He will be laid up some time, but the injured part is doing as well as possible under the circumstances.
