Subject: " A Welcome to Congress.

TEXT: "And the Lord opened the the young man, and he saw, and, behold, the mountain was full of horses and chariots of fire round about Elisha."—II Kings vi., 17.

The American Concress is assembling. Arriving or alresty arriving are the representatives of all sections of this beloved land. Let us welcome them with pravers and benediction. A nobler groun of men never entered Washington than those whe will to-morrow take their places in the Senate Chamber and the House of Representatives. Whether they aone alons or leave their families at the homestead far away, may the blessing of the Electrand God be upon them: We livite them to our churches, and together they in political spheres and we in religious circles will give the coming months to consideration of the best pictoress of this country which God has blesset is omen in the past that I surpose to show you and show them, so far as I may now rest their ear of to-morrow their eye thing the printing press, that the fort in the printing press, that the fart in the hoppenen is to be the sentence of the sentence

Through tribulation is incompleted from the period of fire. But how do I move that this divine equipage is on the side of our institutions? I know it by the history. If the last 119 years. The American Revolution started from the pen of John Havpösk in Independence Hall in 1775. The colonies, without stains, without trained warriors, without runs, ru against poverty. It was not large, States against small States. It was theroism require heroism, it was the resources of many generations against the resources of generations, it was the prayer of the North against the prayer of the North against the prayer of the South, it was one-half of the Nation in armed wrath meeting the other half of the Nation in armed intignation. What could come but externation? At the opening of the war the commander-in-chief of the United States forces was a man who had been great in battle, but old age had come, with many infirmities, and he had a right to quieturie. He could not mount a horse, and he rode on the battle-field in a carriage, assing the driver not to jott it too much. During the most of the four years of the context on the Southern side, was a man in middle, who had in his value that the region of the context on the Southern side, was a man in middle, who had in his value that the sum of the context on the Southern side, was a man in middle, who had in his value that the sum of the context of the context on the Southern side, was a man in middle, who had in his value that the sum of the context on the Southern side, was a man in middle, who had in his side, was a man in middlic, who had in his veins the blood of many generations of warriors, Mingelf .cue of the heroes of Churubusco and Cerro Gordo, Contreras and Chapuitepes. As the years passed on and .ha acroli of, caraage unrolled there came out from both side a herolem, and a side register of the control of caraage unrolled there came out from both side a herolem, and a side register of the control of caraage marked and a determination that the world had never seen markeded. And what but extermination, could come when Philips Sheridan and Stoid-wall Jackson, met, and Nathaniel Lyon and Stoid-wall Jackson, met, and Nathaniel Lyon and Stoid-wall Jackson, met, and Lee, the type than tertolistic buttle, claims if fit, we ask a Nation, and yet we are at lease. The close of a Presidential addition muons for fercedity. A darker cloud yet estiled down upon this Nation. The result of the election was in dispute, and revolution, not between two or three sections, but revolution never town and village and dity of the United States seemed imminent. The prospect was upon this Nation. The result of the was two or three sections, but revolution not bet awas two or three sections, but revolution in the waste two or three sections, but revolution in the sections, but revolution in the sections was and village and dity of the United States seemed imminant. The prospect was that New York would throtte New York, and New Orleans, and New Orleans, was selected, and how near we have a selected, and how near we have a selected, and how near we have a selected and they have a selected and how near we have a selected and they are the outcape not to the honesty and rightecourses of infuriated politicians, but I serble outcape not to the honesty and rightecourses of infuriated politicians, but I serble it to the upper forces of the text. Charloted it meny rolled in, and though the wheels and though the whole the work of the two the waste of the revolution of the North. And the Honesty and rightecourse of the revolution of the North, and the Bouth and the East, and the West, to come the head and the Wast, who have the hoofs did not clatter, the charlot of the North, and the Honest and the West, to ded galloped by. To you say that this is impracticable? No. The time is coming just as certainly as there is a God, and that this is His book and there is a God, and that this is His book and the hones will be the section of the his the strength and the hones under the his the strength and the hones under the his counselors said was impossible, and there God's cases. "Hath He said, and shell He not do it? Hath He commanded, and will He not bring it to pass?" The charlest of every balled to do it will He not bring it to pass?" The charlest of every balled to yo, of every school, house, of every home, of every yalley, of every mountain, of every acreed our National domain. This Nation, notwithstanding, all the evil indigence that are trying to destroy it, is going to live.

Never since, according to John Milton, when "satan was hurled headlong flaming from the etheresis kies in hideous ruin and combustion down," have the powers of darkness been so determined to win this continent as now. What a jewel it is—a jewel carred in relief, the came of this planet! On one side of us the Atlantic Ocean, dividing us from the succession of which his every acreed to the property of the continent of the work of the property of the continent of the work of the continent of the con

Exgpt. Sostratus, the architest and sculptor, after building that watch tower, cut his name on it. Then he covered it with plaster, and to please the king he but the monarch's name on the outside of the plastering, and the store beat and the seas dashed in their fury, and they washed for the plastering, and the store he had they washed it out, and they washed it out, and they washed it out, and they washed it down, but the name of Sostratus was deep cut in the imperisable rock. So across the face of this Nation there have been a great many names written, across our finances, across our religions, names written or remembers, and our schools, and our asylums, and our homes of mercy, but God is the architected of this continent, and He was the study to of this continent, and He was the study to of this continent, and He was the study to of the wash of the ages and the temperate of conturies—all other names shall be obliterated the divine signature and divine name will be brighter and brighter as the millennium go by, and the world shall see that the God who made this sontinent has redeemed it by His grane from all its sorrows and from all the ordines.

Have you faith in such a thing as that? After all the charlots have been crippel, the charlots which Elishs saw on the moraling of his peril will roll on in triumph, follows they all the arrivach heaven them.

SEEN IN NEW GUINEA.

Strange Life in the interior of the The only white man known to have crossed the island of New Guinea from shore to shore, to have actually traversed shore to shore, to have actually traversed the vast unknown interior and seen the aboriginal Papuans face to face in their native forests, is Yan Gestel.

"I started in 1874 from the mouth of the Fly River, in the Gulf of Papua, on the south coast of New Guinea, to run the frontier line. There was talk at, that time of the annexation of New Guinea by time of the annexation of New Guinea by the Government of Queensland, Australia, and so the Dutch Government resolved to define its possessions. I entered Papna with a detachment of a hundred Dutch soldiers, in their tidy uniforms of light blue hnen, and a band of as many coolies to carry supples.

"The interior of New Guinea is one to carry supples.

"The interior of New Guinea is one vast mass of upheaved granite, without takes of minerals or metal ores, the stratailited and piled topsy-tury. Everywhere the work of volcanic eruptions is to be seen. Such a thinly populated region, considering the fact that it was an absolutely new country and that fruits and small game were so plentiful, I did not suppose could exist. The natives we saw from time to time, at a distance mostly: they never molested us. Their heads were flat on top, with long, curly, black hair, they went entirely naked. Their buttocks extended out eight and even ten inches, this repulsive deformity constituting a fleshy support amply capable of sustaining a child in a sitting position. Nor was this their most marked poculiarity.—Some of the nursing mothers threw their breasts back over their shoulders or under their arms, at will, to feed the inferse said in a slar pattern the straint of the inferse said in a slar pattern their shoulders or under their arms, at will, to feed

"The Papuans are a very unattractive race to look upon. In arms they were primitive to a degree that was satounding. They had neither bows nor spears that I saw, their only weapons being stone hatchets. Of the use of metals they saw, their only weapons being stone latchets. Of the use of metals they seemed to be entirely ignorant. In the dry season they made their homes in rayes, which they found or excavated for themselves. Some of trese cave dwellings I visited, discovering fragments of their repasts and occasionally a broken stone axe. In the rainy season they live high in the trees, where they build rude houses of sticks laid around and intertwined with the branches, thatched with dried alangalang, and reached by shaky looking stick ladders.

"Most startling was the solitude, the destitution of life and motion, in the great central plateaus which we reached in our gradual ascent from the river level. There were plenty of small creatures of the squirred tribe, some of the peculiar pigheaded deer we have in Java, and an occasional little tiger cat, rather handsome than hurtful looking. That was all I saw in my whole journey, from the mouth of the Fly River on the southeast coast to Geelvink Bay on the northwest, not a single heast of prey, unless those pretty little sported tree cats could be dignified by that name. Not a kangaroo of either the tree-climbing or grass-jumping variety was seen, nor any of the dingos or wild dogs elsewhere reported. I did see a number of specimens of the great bat by that name. Not a kangaroo of either the tree-climbing or grass-jumping variety was seen, nor any of the dingos or wild dogs elsewhere reported. I did see a number of specimens of the great bat called by the natives kalong or 'flying dog,' with its curious coat of light brown hair and its wing expanse of six feeturuly a formidable looking creature, but not burtful as I found it.

"But of birds there is, I verily believe, a vaster profusion of more beautiful tints and delicate plumage in New Guinea than anywhere else in the world. They fairy flamed through those sombre forests, which but for their bright hues and sharpcries would have been funereally suggestive. What a paradise the interior of New Guinea would be for a naturalist! From the great cebn, which devours stones, and the cassowary, through all the species of peafowl and the bird of paradise, down to the cockatoos and the wood pigeons, there were birds of beauty in never ceasing variety and numbers.

"At suitable stations along the route I had the soldiers nail up on trees the Dutch flag and iron charts of the Dutch coat of arms, on most of which no white man's eyes have since fallen. When we reached Geelvink Bay, and realized that our task was finished, and that Holland's part of New Guinea was so definitely determined then and thenceforth that no other nation could lay claim to it, we gave a rousing cheer, and it must have been music in the cars of the solitary post holder whom the Government had even then for some years maintained on the coast. The poor fellow probably didn't see a friendly face more than half a dozen times a year. He lived in a block house, watching the coaling station for the Dutch war vessels in those waters."
